New Board To Control Food Output, Distribution

Wickard Heads Group Under WPB; Will Also Decree Types to Be Grown

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

A Wartime Food Requirements Committee, with complete control over the production and distribution of foods and regulation of the type of foodstuffs grown for both American and foreign diets, was set up yesterday by the War Production Board under the chairmanship of Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard.

The new organization, decisions of which will be final, subject only to "over-all direction and approval of the WPB," is in effect the equivalent of the World War I Food Administration. It was created in answer to persistent demands that a special group be established to handle war food problems.

Agencies to Carry Out Policy

As distinct from an independent administration, the new committee will have its policies carried out by already existing operating agencies—the Agriculture Department, WPB, State, War and Navy Departments, Lend-Lease Administration and Board of Economic Warfare, which are all represented on the committee.

Given its instructions by WPB Chief Nelson, the committee is charged with determining civilian, military and foreign food requirements, and to direct—increase or decrease,—domestic production and imports of foodstuffs in line with the demands.

The production, importation and conservation phases of the program are to be carried out by the Agriculture Department in line with committee policy. Thus, the department would have power, for example, to order farmers to stop growing corn and grow more wheat, according to the dictates of domestic requirements and food needs of the United Nations.

The operation of rationing food will remain, as at present, with the Office of Price Administration.

WPB to Control Processing

Control over processing foods—baking, candy-making, etc.—rests with the WPB industry operations division. The WPB materials division will be responsible for the non-

Committeemen Open Drive For Sales Tax

Two influential members of the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday launched a drive for a Federal retail sales tax, as the committee squared off for test decisions next week on the tax controversy.

Representative A. Willis Robertson (Democrat), of Virginia, told the committee that "my definite conclusion is that in the midst of the most terrible war of all history our tax program must be on the basis of equality of sacrifice, which of necessity will include some form of general consumer tax."

Representative Wesley E. Disney (Democrat), of Oklahoma, meanwhile told reporters he believed that from two billion to four billion dollars in additional revenue could be raised from a retail sales levy, more than overcoming the committee's present two-billion-dollar revenue shortage under the Treasury's $8,700,000,000 goal.

Robertson, Disney and some other members of the committee have requested Colin F. Stam, staff Congressional tax expert, to prepare for the committee—suggested schedules of sales tax rates.

House Revolt Menaces Gas Ration Plans

The gasoline stew, brought to fever heat by the prospect of Nation-wide rationing, boiled over yesterday.

A congressional rebellion, sparked by 100 members of the House, flared openly against country-wide rationing after President Roosevelt had canvassed the problem with a group of his topflight aides at a White House conference that reached no decision as to whether such a program, advanced as a means of rubber conservation, should be undertaken.

Following the President's conference, Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures, said a statement would be issued in "the nearish future" which, according to him, is a "matter of days." The statement, he said, would come from the White House.

Present at the conference were Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Budget Director

Dead, Missing In Shell Plant Blast Put at 51

Terrific Illinois Letgo Halts Work in Only One of 12 Units

By the Associated Press

Joliet, Ill., June 5.—An explosion inside the Elwood ordnance shell loading plant left 51 men dead or missing today, but it halted production in only one of 12 units inside the plant, one of the biggest in the Nation.

One building was destroyed. Army officers said there was no suspicion of sabotage.

Capt. David P. Tunstall said 21 persons were known to be dead and 30 others were missing.

Only 10 bodies had been identified 12 hours after the blast. Others were literally blown to pieces and finger print experts were summoned to help with identification.

Calls were being made to homes of missing to see if, by good luck, they had stayed away from work last night.

Tunstall's original list contained 57 names, but it was shortened as workmen were located in hospitals or away from the plant.

The ordnance plant's hospital treated 41 injured cases, five of a serious nature.

The ordnance department's policy of scattering buildings over an immense area—the Elwood plant covers 15,000 acres of flat prairie—helped localize the explosion, felt 100 miles away.

With one ear-splitting roar and a flash of flame, the shipping building in group two was demolished. Army officers said the shipping plant could be replaced with less trouble than other ordnance buildings and that group two would be back in production "very shortly."

Meantime the 11 other loading lines continued on a 24-hour-a-day basis.

Lieut. Col. Don. M. Hoffman, Elwood's commanding officer, was expected to convene a board of inquiry. Captain Tunstall said the cause of the blast was unknown and probably couldn't be determined before debris is cleared away if at all.

While Dr. H. L. Schultz, medical director, took charge of rescue operations, Dr. E. A. Kingston, Will County coroner, said an inquest would be held as soon as the extent of the casualties had been definitely determined.

Conferees Approve $46 Service Pay

Agreement Ends Weeks of Bickering; All Increases Would Date From June 1

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Congressional conferees yesterday snapped out of their deadlock on the soldier-sailor pay bill to compromise on a $46 monthly basic pay rate for all branches of the armed forces.

The unexpected agreement, reached after weeks of bickering between the two Houses, split the difference between the $42 minimum pay rate approved by the Senate and the $50 demanded by the House.

The $46 compromise, proposed by the Senate conferees and accepted by the House group after two afternoon sessions, makes all of the increases provided in the bill retroactive to June 1.

Senate Approval Predicted

Senator La Follette (Progressive) of Wisconsin promptly announced that he would move in the Senate Monday to reject the report and send the conferees back with instructions to take the House $50 figure.

But Senator Johnson (Democrat) of Colorado predicted the Senate would accept the agreement and send it on to the House for final action next week.

In addition to the $46 minimum, which will go to buck privates, apprentice seamen and corresponding ranks in the Marine Corps, the compromise provided $32 a month for first class privates, second class seamen and related grades in the other branches.

The Senate had asked $42 and the House had demanded $54 for this group, which is now paid $36 monthly to start.

Approval Is Unanimous

The proposed $46 minimum for the lowest paid ranks compares with the initial $21 now paid aviates, who now move up to $30 after four months' service and to $40 after a year.

Senator Johnson said the compromise was approved by a unanimous vote of the nine conferees present. Two of the Senate conferees and one of the House managers were absent.

An earlier compromise proposal providing for payment of $42 in cash and another $8 in nonnegotiable bonds, was first considered but rejected by the Senate group.

The hurried agreement came on the heels of a flat warning from Senator La Follette that he intended to move in the Senate on Monday to discharge the deadlocked committee and instruct a new Senate conference group to yield to the House increase.

La Follette Not Satisfied

La Follette, who charged in the Senate on Thursday that the bill was being held up "to chisel a few dollars" from the pay of enlisted men, told reporters the agreement was not satisfactory to him and he would continue his fight in the Senate. Representative Rankin (Democrat) of Mississippi who drew the $50 amendment twice demanded by the House, will ask that the House again insist on its stand.

Other features of the conference report, earlier accepted by the House, provides increases for non-commissioned officers and for lower bracket commissioned officers. A sergeant's pay, which now ranges from $60 to $126 for four grades, would increase to a $78 to $138 range. Corporals and first class seamen, now receiving $54, would be raised to $66.

Four Fighter Armadas Strafe Nazi Air Bases Along Channel

New Body Blows

By the Associated Press

London, June 5.—R. A. F. fighters swept over nearly 400 miles of the German-held continental coast this afternoon in what the air ministry announced was one of the biggest simultaneous offensives by these swift craft in all the war.

The vast operations ranged along the entire French Channel coast from Belgium to Britanny and followed morning bombing attacks upon the Calais and Dunkerque area.

Four separate sorties were made, three in which American-made Boston bombers attacked targets at Ostend and Le Havre and air-dromes at Morlai and Lannion, bases 100 miles across the Channel from which German convoy raiders operate.

All Raiders Return Safely

The other attack was of a diversionary nature and was made by more than 100 Spitfires thrusting to Abbeville.

Morlai and Lannion were attacked in a single operation against heavy antiaircraft fire but little Nazi fighter opposition, the air ministry reported.

The raiders planted their bombs squarely on Nazi airdromes and everyone of them returned safely home.

Before the Germans had recovered from the shock of the first sortie, Lannion was attacked again by Whirlwinds, each blazing away at low level with all four of their cannons. They were accompanied by Spitfires.

At Morlai British pilots on a follow-up sweep found buildings and hangars ablaze. The second section shot up planes which the Germans had hurriedly pulled from the burning hangars.

While the Ostend and Le Havre attacks were in progress, the German ground staff at Abbeville had a grandstand seat for dogfights in which their own airmen came out second best, although at least 50 Nazi craft were hurled into the battle.

Part of the fighting which developed on the diversionary raid took place directly above the airdrome. One German was sent down almost on his own runways and another plummeted in flames on the outskirts of town.

Joint Operations in Offing?

U.S. Officers Working With Commando Staff; Chief, Here to Confer, Tells Details of Raids

Indication Is Seen That Americans Will Take Part in Forays

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Vice Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten disclosed here yesterday that American officers have joined his combined operations staff which plans the spectacular commando raids.

The tall British officer, cousin of King George VI and a symbol of the rampant offensive spirit that has gripped his own and this country, said that the presence of the American officers on his staff showed that it was truly an inter-Allied staff.

Beyond that he didn't go, but it was assumed that if American officers were taking a part in the staff work, American soldiers, sailors and airmen soon would be joining in the commando raids against the Germans.

He described some of the spectacular feats of his forces to date.

Lord Louis flew to Washington this week to consult with "representatives of the United States fighting services." On his last visit to Washington, he was a captain, newly assigned to command of the much-bombed H. M. S. Illustrious, which had been repaired at Norfolk. Yesterday, at his press conference in the Willard, he wore the stars of a vice admiral. In his role as chief of combined operations and commando director, he not only is a vice admiral but an honorary lieutenant general and air marshal as well.

Mountbatten Speaks Of St. Nazaire as Most Important 'Show'

In the clipped accent that is typical of British royalty, Lord Louis yesterday told of some of the commando raids—of the attempt to kill Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in Libya, of the dock wrecking at St. Nazaire in which two young Royal Navy officers sacrificed their lives to blow up 80 German experts, and of the raids on Norway.

He emphasized, however, that while his staff did the planning, the raids were carried out by the Army, Navy and Air Force. There were some special service troops, he said, and they had some special assault landing craft; but he went on to underscore the fact that all the services played a part, working in close cooperation and on a split-second time table.

"We don't like the word commando to be harped on too much," Lord Louis said, "because it suggests that only a small body of British troops want to get into the fight. You would be astounded to know the number of people who want to go on our raids. There is a highly-

Enemy Repulsed, Says Nimitz but Great Victory Is Not Yet Won

Bulletin

Honolulu, June 5 (INS).—Japanese naval forces involved in the action at Midway have been decisively repulsed, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet, said tonight, and American forces are continuing the assault.

In his second communique, Admiral Nimitz said that Japanese losses had been heavy, and added that all classes of battle craft were participating in the fight, which he said is continuing.

The Japanese have not followed up their attack on Midway, Nimitz declared.

It is too early, the American commander said, to claim that the battle has resulted in a major Japanese disaster, but he added that he could say "conservatively" that the United States was in firm control of the Midway area.

Foe Out in Force

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

American and Japanese forces apparently were engaged yesterday in a great naval and air battle off Midway Island, following the repulse of a heavy initial raid on the strongly guarded outpost.

A powerful enemy fleet, including battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers, which sent large numbers of carrier planes against the isolated American submarine and air base Thursday, was being attacked somewhere in the area by units of the United States Pacific Fleet.

Whether American surface warships comparable to those in the Jap fleet were involved was not known, but it seemed likely that at least submarines and bombing planes from Midway were striking at the enemy naval forces.

Island Repulses Foe

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet, announced that Midway's stanch defenders, including units of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, had turned back the enemy air attack with only minor damage to the base.

Direct bomb hits were made by the defending force on one enemy battleship and an aircraft carrier, while other Jap vessels were probably damaged. Many of the Nipponese bombers were shot down by the island's fighter planes and anti-aircraft gunners.

"Our attacks on the enemy are continuing," Admiral Nimitz said.

A Major Assault

How the battle was developing was not known last night, but it seemed clear that the Midway attack was no hit-and-run raid. The fact that battleships were included in the Jap naval force—the first time they have appeared in the mid-Pacific—made it plain this was a major assault.

But whether it was a battle for Midway or the main body of the enemy fleet was seeking a showdown with our Pacific Fleet, was not apparent.

There was no further word as to whether the enemy force was standing by, heading eastward, returning to home or moving elsewhere.

If it is still off Midway, a renewal of attacks on the island can be expected—may be perhaps already under way.

Long Way From Honolulu

The base will then have to stand it alone for a time at least, unless our naval forces anticipated the raid and were deployed in the vicinity. For it would take some time for the Pacific Fleet to reach Midway

Sub Menace On Wane, Gas Supply Pushed

Navy Announces 3 More Sinkings; Week's Total Now 20

By the Associated Press

Naval officers of the Eastern sea frontier, a wreck-littered stretch of 1200 miles extending from Canada to Jacksonville, Fla., said yesterday that the submarine menace in this district was steadily decreasing and that steps were being taken that would insure more gasoline for the drying New England States.

This information came as Rear Admiral James L. Kauffman, commander of the Gulf sea frontier, promised more protection for vessels plying between Jacksonville and the Mexican border.

Kauffman, recently transferred to Miami from Iceland, said, "We must consider this area as a battlefield until every enemy submarine which enters it is destroyed."

Meanwhile, three more ship losses in the Atlantic—one Dutch, one Norwegian and one British—were

Nazis Slay 30 More Czechs; Heydrich Toll Rises to 207

Body of 'Hangman' Placed in State At Prague Castle

By the Associated Press

London, June 5.—While the body of Reinhard Heydrich, the assassinated Gestapo "hangman," lay in state in the castle of Czech kings at Prague today, Nazi firing squads executed 30 more Czechs, making a total of 207 put to death in the Nazi terror campaign now ten days old.

The sentences were imposed by courts-martial set up by Heydrich himself before Czech patriots hurled a bomb at him a week ago Wednesday. According to Nazi custom, the Prague radio announced, they were carried out immediately, maintaining the score-a-day average once again.

Through torch-lit streets lined solidly with heavily armed German storm troops and Blackshirt Elite Guards, the body of the 38-year-old "Henker" (hangman) was borne last night to Prague Castle from the hospital where he had died a few hours earlier.

Silent Czechs, standing behind the German guards, watched the ornate procession. Between them and the soldiery stood Nazi Party representatives.

At the castle a death watch was established over the swastika-bedecked casket.

Meanwhile, in Brussels, German authorities announced that three Belgians, described as Communists, had been executed at Liege.

The announcement said the three not only had killed two Germans but had effectively sabotaged railway lines, mines and high tension lines.

Half Rommel's Tank Force Reported Lost

340 Declared Blasted; British Smash Assault On Anchor of Line

By Frank L. Martin
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo, Egypt, June 5.—The British have repulsed weak efforts of German tank-dive bomber teams to erase the desert anchor at Bir Hacheim, military quarters said today, as the 11-day-old battle temporarily died down and the combatants prepared for a renewal of the indecisive struggle.

(A Reuters dispatch from "near Kingsbridge" said Friday night the Axis forces now have lost about 340 tanks, or about half of Marshal Erwin Rommel's estimated front-line strength.)

With supply the key of the whole battle, a force of British torpedo carriers sank an enemy merchant ship, despite its destroyer protection, in the eastern Mediterranean, while other British planes hammered at German transport, bases and airfields and ranged on to attack Catania in Sicily.

District Budget Bill Increased $185,110 in Senate Committee

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday approved a 1943 District Budget bill carrying a total of $36,322,281—a net increase of $185,110 over the amount voted by the House.

The increase actually represents the balance between reductions totaling $750,420 and aggregate additions of $935,530. Bulk of the reductions, however, came through transferring funds from one item to another and in the elimination of funds which agencies can replace with unexpended balances.

The supply bill is still $272,559 under the amount asked by the Commissioners, but Chairman O'Mahoney (Democrat) of Wyoming pointed out that several tardy estimates were still to be received and would be added to the bill on the floor.

It was estimated that these would total $270,869, bringing the appropriation less than $2000 under the original estimates.

Principal items that are still to come are funds to rehabilitate the old District Tuberculosis Hospital and for financing the new Recreation Board.

Already in the bill is a total of $399,394 to meet expenses of the new Recreation Department, which the board will administer. Although this entire sum was listed as an increase—since the department had not been created when the House appropriation was voted—it is comprised of funds shifted from the Community Center Department,

House Votes CCC Into Discard, But Grants NYA Reprieve

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

Democratic leaders yesterday called on the House to follow the leadership of President Roosevelt rather than Republican Representative Engel, whom they titled the "new self-appointed leader" from Michigan, but the House chose to follow Engel with a 158 to 121 vote to extinguish the Civilian Conservation Corps after June 30.

The House refused to countenance continuance for war work of the earliest and one of the most popular of the New Deal depression establishments, even on a scale drastically reduced, but it rejected, 118 to 62, a proposal to halt the war-training program of CCC's twin youth agency—the National Youth Administration.

The vote on CCC came on an amendment by Representative Tarver (Democrat) of Georgia, to restore to the $1,058,451,680 Labor Department-Federal Security Agency appropriation bill, the $75,818,000 in CCC funds cut from the measure by the Appropriations Committee. The bill was passed and sent to the Senate.

It was Engel who led the fight in the Appropriations Committee that resulted in a 15-to-12 vote to liquidate the CCC, and in the closing minutes of yesterday's Administration-led struggle to override the committee, Representative Johnson (Democrat) of Oklahoma read off to the House a long list of instances when Engel opposed the President's program before Pearl Harbor.

Johnson recalled Engel's "no" votes on lend-lease, Selective Service, removal of the arms embargo and legislation for naval expansion, asserting that subsequent events had proven the President to be right, Engel wrong.

"The point is whether or not you are going to follow the Commander in Chief or this new self-appointed leader, the gentleman from Michigan," Johnson shouted. "The gentleman from Michigan was wrong. I submit that he is wrong now."

Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts picked up the line of attack where Johnson stopped. He accused Engel of assuming the role of leadership by being willing to support the President as long as the President agreed with Engel.

McCormack described the vote on CCC as a "test" of "whether there is going to be politics in war measures." The majority floor

'Poison for Poison'

U.S. Will Use Gas if Japs Persist In Doing So, Roosevelt Warns

By Thomas F. Reynolds
Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

The United States accused Japan yesterday of using poison gas in its war against China, and President Roosevelt warned the Japanese warlords that further use against any United Nation will bring retaliation in kind by American armed forces.

Mr. Roosevelt issued the warning in a formal statement. He declared responsibility for refraining from use of this "inhuman" weapon now rests squarely upon Japan.

Should Japan persist in its use, the President said, America is ready to pit poison against poison "in full measure."

"We shall be prepared to enforce complete retribution," the President said. "Upon Japan will rest the responsibility."

His statement had the effect of completing United Nations warnings against use of gas to the two chief powers of the Axis—Germany and Japan. On May 10, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told Germany that should the Reich use gas against Russia, Britain will consider such attack as if it were a gas attack on England itself and "we will use our great and growing air superiority in the west to carry gas warfare on the largest possible scale far and wide against military objectives in Germany."

Mr. Roosevelt's warning to Japan, however, was even broader. He promised retribution in full measure not only if Japan continues use of

2 More Jap Subs Sunk Off Australia

3d Probably Lost As Allied Fliers Continue Successes

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters, Australia, June 5.—Allied fliers sank two and probably three Japanese submarines for a week's total of perhaps seven in swift retribution against enemy undersea stabs at the continent's vital supply lanes, headquarters announced today.

Four midget submarines were sunk Sunday night in and around the great Sydney Harbor.

The communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's operational base said of the latest successes:

"Allied aircraft of one Netherlands East Indies and two Australian squadrons on reconnaissance off the east coast located three enemy submarines on the surface in widely separated localities. In ensuing attacks, two submarines certainly were destroyed, and a third probably sunk."

Observers believed that the Japanese, unable because of Australian-based air power to pursue the island-to-island hops that marked their advance in other areas, and thwarted in the Coral Sea in their first effort at a sea-borne invasion, had now turned to a third phase—a submarine offensive against the supply lanes.

But at a cost of six or seven submarines, the Japanese so far had been able to sink but one old ferry boat in Sydney Harbor Sunday and one Allied merchant ship 35 miles east of Sydney last Wednesday. Twenty-three more survivors of the crew of about 50 from this ship were landed today. Twelve previously had been picked up.

Without let-up, Allied fliers continued to bomb Japanese bases along the vast northern arc from Timor to the Solomons. Fires were started and antiaircraft installations destroyed at Koepang, in Dutch Timor. A troop camp was bombed and wharves blasted at Rabaul in New Britain. A seaplane was machine-gunned at Tulagi in the Solomons.

Twenty-five occupants of a lifeboat from a vessel torpedoed off the New South Wales coast were landed today after fishermen guided them to shore. This brings to 37 the number accounted for out of a crew of 50.

Great Convoy Arrives at India Ports

By Preston Grover
Associated Press Staff Writer

New Delhi, India, June 6.—The United Nations have reinforced India with the greatest convoy of modern equipment and fighting men ever to reach that sub-continent, it was officially announced today, at a time when Japan's troops seemed moving with determination within 45 miles of the Indo-Burman border.

British officials, lifting for a moment the curtain of military secrecy which has enveloped the defense of India since the failure of the British independence plan and the loss of Burma, disclosed the convoy had reached India a month ago without the loss of ship or life.

It was unloaded at several East India ports, because it was too large for the facilities of any one harbor. Possibly, officials hinted, it was the largest convoy ever to leave Great Britain.

United States and British light and heavy tanks, antiaircraft weapons of various caliber, and a large number of both fighting and technical personnel came in the ships.

A British spokesman said the troops were very fit. Included were some Indians trained in Britain and other troops with battle experience in both France and Libya.

Crews for United States Kittyhawks and British Hurricane fighters now operating in India also were on the convoy.

(As far back as April 22, Louis Johnson, United States Advisory Envoy to India, said in New Delhi: "United States troops already are in India and more will come." Before that, long-range United States Army bombers were striking effective blows at the Japanese invaders of Burma.)

The British spokesman who announced the convoy's arrival disclosed also that Japanese troops now were operating about Homalin, 45 miles east of the Indian boarder in Burma, and that others were streaming north toward that area along the Chindwin River, which was the route of withdrawal for Lieut. Gen. Harold Alexander's British army.

The spokesman said the number of Japanese troops now within striking distance of the Indian frontier was not large enough to indicate the peril of an immediate attack, but he made it clear that the enemy is at least determined to strengthen the forces in northwest Burma.

R. A. F. attacks on barge and boat movements on the Chindwin have slowed up this strengthening process, however, and the early deluges of the monsoon season also have handicapped the Japanese movements.

House Designates June 13 MacArthur Day

The House completed legislative action yesterday on a resolution designating June 13 as MacArthur Day in honor of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his men.

Meanwhile, Minority Leader Martin (Republican), Massachusetts, proposed legislation under which special bronze medals would be given to all men and nurses who stood the seige of Bataan and Corregidor.

U. S. Diverted War Vehicles, Canada Says

Ottawa, Ontario, June 5 (AP).—Canada's expeditionary force to Hongkong, which surrendered to the Japanese Christmas Day, 1941, fought without its mechanical transport because 212 vehicles were diverted by United States naval authorities, a royal commission reported to the House of Commons today.

"There is no evidence, however, that the troops suffered" through this "miscarriage," the report said.

When Canadians sailed for Hongkong there was not room on the troopship Awatea, the report said, but "shortly after the expedition sailed, space for the vehicles unexpectedly became available in an American ship and that ship sailed with the vehicles on November 4, but did not reach its destination before the outbreak of hostilities, as she was diverted by the United States naval authorities."

"Had she been allowed to follow her normal route, she would have reached Hongkong before the Japanese forces or before the Japanese attack opened."

The report said that 6 per cent of the two regiments, the Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Royal Rifles of Canada, had less than 16 weeks of military training but that this did not detract from the "efficiency of the battalion as a whole."

The inquiry, which was made by Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff, was ordered after complaints in the House of Commons that the expedition was not properly equipped and trained.

Chinese Halt 100,000 Japs At Chuhsien

By Spencer Moosa
Associated Press Staff Writer

Chungking, June 5.—The Chinese high command announced tonight that the Japanese had hurled 100,000 troops in new onslaughts against the walled defenses of Chuhsien, but said the western Chekiang province rail town still held out as a barrier to a broadened scheme of Japanese conquest.

Attacks in two days of intensive fighting on three sides of the town in one of the closest air base areas from which Japan could be bombed were reported officially to have cost the Japanese 10,000 casualties in two days.

Underlining the importance of the action, high Chinese said the eastern seaboard province had been marked by Tokyo for the first blows of an intended knockout of all southeastern China that would open overland communications with French Indo-China, Thailand and Burma.

Shipping Worries Japs

These sources said that Japan, concerned over a shipping shortage and the possibility that the Allies eventually might threaten seriously the coastwise shipping lanes, hoped to smash on from Chekiang across Kiangsi, Hunan and Kwangsi provinces for rail and road connections with Indo-China.

Fighting already has intensified during the past week ni Kiangsi Province west of Chekiang, where the Japanese have a wedge from the north, and in Kwangtung Province where a wedge is being driven up from the Canton area to the south.

The announcement that the Japanese suffered 8000 casualties yesterday alone at Chuhsien was taken by some as an indication that the tide of fighting might be turning against the invaders in this salient. During the first part of the week the Japanese swept rapidly toward the town in a drive which carried them within three miles of the northern city limits.

Chinese Fire Point-Blank

It said the Japanese, despite support of their field guns and bombers, were held off by point-blank Chinese artillery fire and rolled back in fierce hand-to-hand conflict in the sectors north and south of the city.

The little farm town of Lingshanchen northeast of Chuhsien was reported recaptured.

Another battle was reported underway in Kiangsi Province south of Nanchang, one of the Japanese-held terminals of the Hangchow-Nanchang Railway which runs through Chuhsien.

The Chinese said the Japanese also were meeting stiff resistance in their thrust north from Canton, and announced that new Japanese attempts to cross the upper Salween River in Yunnan Province, bordering Burma, had been repulsed.

Pounding Airfields To Reduce Attacks On Arms Convoys

Moscow, June 5.—The Red air force was declared tonight to be pounding at Germany's Arctic airdromes in a major counter-attack on the Nazi air fleet which is trying to cut the midnight sun supply line from Russia's Western Allies.

Destruction of at least 40 German aircraft was claimed in the initial stages of the assault.

(Norwegian sources in London said they had learned that the R. A. F., in raids on Trondheim April 29 and 30, had scored direct hits on the German super battleship Tirpitz and the heavy cruiser Admiral Hipper, which for weeks have been considered a grave menace to the Arctic supply route.

(Although these great warships have been holed up in Trondheim, Anglo-American convoys sailing the frigid route to Murmansk have been continually attacked by German dive bombers, torpedo planes and other aircraft from Nazi Norwegian bases, as well as by U-boats and destroyers.)

Barges Massed in Baltic

(A Reuters dispatch to London, quoting "reliable sources" in Stockholm, said today that flat-bottomed invasion boats, which the Germans massed in large numbers along the Dutch, Belgian and French coasts in the summer and fall of 1940, were being moved through the Kiel Canal into the Baltic Sea.)

(An invasion of Sweden by Germany, particularly if the United Nations make a move into Norway, has been rated by expert observers for weeks as one of the top possibilities on Hitler's 1942 schedule. The Associated Press, in a symposium of expert observers' opinions, reported on April 13 that Hitler "seems to be preparing for an invasion of Sweden.")

(The International News Service reports it also is believed the boats are destined for the Finnish front and a final attempt to overcome the defenses of Leningrad, which can be attacked frontally only by water through the Gulf of Finland.)

Russian dispatches from Murmansk said planes of the northern Red air fleet had conducted two assaults on German airports deep in Nazi-occupied territory.

In one attack, 12 German planes were wrecked; in the second, the Red fliers destroyed 25 aircraft which the Germans just had brought north.

Fuel Depot Blown Up

At another air base a fuel depot and repair shops were reported blown up and three more airplanes destroyed.

Other Russian warplanes fought duels with German aircraft trying to raid Murmansk itself, and in one of these a Soviet fighter was said to have blown up a Junkers with its entire bomb load. The explosion was so great, the dispatches said, that a second Junkers following the first crashed with its crew in Kola Gulf.

On the battlefront, action was mounting from the Kalinin sector northwest of Moscow to Leningrad, and the Red Army reported it was ejecting the Germans from favorable positions and improving its own lines.

With wide expanses of terrain now open for maneuver, the Germans were throwing more and more men, tanks and planes into local encounters—but the Russians, too, were getting strong forces into the field.

During Prayer

Fascists Mob Synagogue In France

Vichy, June 5 (INS).—Twenty French Fascists assaulted a Jewish synagogue at Nice yesterday during prayers, and several persons were wounded, it was reported in Vichy today.

Several Jewish shops were said to have been stoned. Later, near the scene, stones and bludgeons bearing the inscription "Clement will be avenged" were found.

Albert Clement, Paris editor and right-hand man of Jacques Doriot, leading exponent of collaboration, was assassinated on a Paris street early in the week.

The Queen Bowls

Glasgow, Scotland, June 5 (AP).—Queen Elizabeth, touring Scotland with King George, obliged a miner's wife today by taking a turn of lawn bowling.

While the King looked on, she threw a bowl which stopped within a yard of the jack, winning a tribute from the Bowls Club president.

Brazil Quells Jap Plot

Rio de Janeiro, June 5 (INS).—Numerous arrests in Sao Paulo State and northern Brazil have followed discovery of Japanese undercover activities designed to foment an uprising, it was announced today.

Sao Paulo police found political pamphlets distributed throughout the state calling for Japanese to "occupy the position in this country they deserve owing to their higher breeding and intellectuality."

Making maps and plans for an uprising also were confiscated, it was reported.

Belgians Registered

London, June 5 (AP).—German occupation authorities in Belgium have ordered the compulsory registration of all Belgian army officers, including non-commissioned officers, military doctors, chemists, chaplains, it was reported today. Belgian government circles here said this might foreshadow forcing these men into German service on the Russian front.

Yanks in Libya Fight

With the British Forces in the Libyan Desert, June 4 (Delayed) (AP).—Three Americans are fighting with the R. A. F. in the desert here. They are Lanes Wade, of Tucson, Ariz., who already has two Axis planes to his credit and who recently was promoted from pilot officer to flying officer; Oliver C. (Sandy) Kallio of Ironwood, Mich., and Walter Schwartz of Philadelphia. Kallio and Schwartz are newcomers trained in Canada.

British Hero Jailed

London, June 5 (AP).—Capt. Robert Davies, awarded the George Cross in 1940 for removing a time bomb from St. Paul's Cathedral, was sentenced today by court-martial to be cashiered from the army and to serve two years in prison. The term was reduced later to 18 months.

Davies was convicted on seven charges of improperly receiving funds from a business firm. He was acquitted on six counts and had pleaded guilty to 14 others, mainly for having issued bad checks.

Yanks Bag 2 Jap Planes in Daylight Raid on Rangoon

Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton reported yesterday that American Army heavy bombers shot down at least two enemy planes in a daylight attack on the harbor of Rangoon, Burma. One American plane failed to return.

The bombers, led by Capt. Frank D. Sharp, raided enemy shipping and docks Thursday, but because of a heavy overcast it was impossible to determine the damage inflicted.

Reporting the raid in a communique, the War Department said 12 Japanese fighter planes attacked the American force, which also encountered heavy antiaircraft fire. Two enemy planes were shot down and a third is believed to have been destroyed, the War Department said.

Malone, principal, announced yesterday. Nearly every pupil has contributed to the drive, Mrs. Malone said.

Castillo Policy Irks Deputies

By the Associated Press

Buenos Aires, June 5.—An aroused Chamber of Deputies, even supported by the Conservatives, who ordinarily back Acting President Ramon S. Castillo's "policy of prudence," voted 85 to 13 today to require Interior Minister Miguel Culaciati to appear and explain "the true reasons" for the state of siege imposed last December.

Angered also by the Axis submarine sinkings of two Argentine ships, Luis Carlos Cagliano, a Radical (liberal), declared the state of siege "either was a weapon for cowardly governments or a weapon for those who have dictatorial ambitions."

Castillo's reason for the state of siege was to check "agitators" said to be inflaming public opinion by taking sides in the war. But Radical Reginaldo Manubens Calvets said this explantion was "ridiculous and tragic," since the measure had for its goal the silencing of the press, "which in peace and war constitutes the fourth power of government."

Miguel Orosio's Conservative bloc supported the Radicals and Socialists in the move to make Culaciati appear on June 10 to explain the government's motives.

U.S. Forces Attacking in Midway Battle

from Hawaii—1149 miles away. And whether Nimitz would send his battleships, cruisers and carriers against the enemy depends upon the relative strength of the enemy force and what he has available.

If the Jap fleet, on the other hand, is moving east, after taking a passing smash at Midway, the opening rounds of a great naval battle might have begun.

There remained also the possibility that the Midway raid was merely a diversion, and that another raid in force elsewhere might be forthcoming—perhaps on Hawaii, Panama or the West Coast.

But the enemy's grand strategy was still undisclosed. It is not known beyond the high command whether the Jap force off Midway is the main body of their fleet or simply a strong task force. Admiral Nimitz's announcement was interpreted by some Navy men here as indicating the latter.

Until it develops, therefore, that the enemy main fleet is involved, informed circles were inclined to view the attack as a determined attempt to capture Midway. This might be either to clear the way for later attacks on Hawaii or simply to drive us back eastward prior to a move elsewhere.

May Be Linked to Russia

Blows at Midway and our Alaskan bases could be a preliminary to a Japanese attack on Russia. If American air bases in Alaska were crippled, the Allied supply route to Siberia would be threatened.

The fact that Admiral Nimitz failed to mention any transports in his description of the enemy force indicates that no major attack on Hawaii is contemplated. Sailors and Marines from the attack fleet might be enough to capture Midway, should the bombers and warships be able to level the island's fortifications.

An expedition setting out to take America's great mid-Pacific base, however, would have to be a massive one, and include a huge force of troops. It could hardly be undertaken while our Pacific Fleet remained in being.

Another air raid on Hawaii, however, might be made by a powerful carrier force such as Japan now has in the mid-Pacific. The latter, however, would be in grave danger of being badly hit by counterattacks of American planes and naval forces.

Honolulu Raid Report False

Rumors spread through Washington yesterday that Honolulu had been bombed. Though apparently emanating from an Axis radio broadcast, they were even mentioned on the House floor. The report was flatly denied by the Navy at 4:15 p. m. yesterday.

"We've had direct communications with Honolulu," a spokesman said. "All has been and is up to this time quiet there. This is a flat denial of all rumors of air raids on Pearl Harbor."

Admiral Nimitz's communique, telling of the repulse of the Japanese air attack on Midway, did not state what units of the defending force damaged the enemy warships. They must have been Army, Navy or Marine fliers, however, inasmuch as only an air attack was mentioned, the Japanese warships would hardly come within range of the island's shore batteries.

His communique follows:

"At 6:35 a. m. today (Thursday), Midway time, that island (Midway) was heavily raided by Japanese carrier-based planes. The attack was repulsed by local defenders in which all armed services are represented. A heavy toll of attacking planes was taken. Damage to material and installations on Midway were reported minor. No reports of personnel casualties were received.

"The Japanese carriers were accompanied by battleships and cruisers. One battleship and one carrier definitely were damaged and other vessels are believed to have been hit. Our attacks on the enemy are continuing."

drink until the British cancel an order which the Germans said did not permit Axis prisoners to have rest, food or water until they had been questioned by officers.

The German charge was branded as without foundation.

The carefully-husbanded dive bombers of Rommel were brought into use against the Indians and Free French—dubbed the fighting French by Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck—at Bir Hacheim, but British fighters twice intercepted these vulnerable warplanes and shot down six of them as well as three of other types.

German tank attacks likewise were broken up by British and Indian armored forces which struck from their rear.

Front line reports said these encounters were hardly more than skirmishes and the rest of the front was described as quiet.

But strong Axis reinforcements, including tanks, were reported moving up in parallel columns from the west, and the British were not idle.

The position of the forces, with the Germans occupying a wedge 9 miles wide through the British line and threatened from both sides, seemed to assure that the battle would be renewed with all violence before long.

Flanking the Germans, the British had brought up heavy and light artillery ranging from antitank rifles to 9-inch siege pieces and with these they were pounding the German positions.

The Free French, their position at the south side of the German spearhead still unimpaired, were said to have rejected two German demands to surrender.

Roosevelt Warns Japan on Gas

gas in China, but also if the Nipponese use poisonous or noxious gas against any one of the 26 United Nations.

The President's statement was brief, and to the point. Here is the text in full:

"Authoritative reports are reaching this Government of the use by Japanese armed forces in various localities of China of poisonous or noxious gases.

"I desire to make it unmistakably clear that, if Japan persists in this inhuman form of warfare against China or against any other of the United Nations, such action will be regarded by this Government as though taken against the United States, and retaliation in kind and in full measure will be meted out.

"We shall be prepared to enforce complete retribution. Upon Japan will rest the responsibility."

Declines to Elaborate

Explaining that his statement had been drafted carefully by the State Department, Mr. Roosevelt declined to go further into details of Japan's use of gas.

On several occasions, the Chinese government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has accused the Japanese invaders of employing poison gas.

The United States is not barred by any international agreement from using gas or any other type of chemical in warfare. Neither is Japan. The United States signed the Protocol of Geneva of March 4, 1929, in which more than a score of nations pledged themselves to refrain from gas warfare, but this protocol was not ratified by the United States Senate and therefore never became binding upon this country. Japan refrained from signing the pledge, Germany, the first nation to use gas in the first World War, signed the protocol four years after it was drafted and only after it had been signed by Britain and 26 other nations.

River Dragged Vainly for Victim

Harbor police dragged the Potomac River between Bellevue and Alexandria until dark last night in an unsuccessful attempt to recover the body of Geno Pinterpe, 35, who, it is believed, drowned Thursday night.

The victim, a seaman aboard the S. S. Potomac, a pleasure boat, fell overboard while attempting to make fast several sections of rope.

Lyttelton's Job

British Seek Joint Agency On Production

By the Associated Press

Britain's Minister of Production, Sir Oliver Lyttelton, said yesterday that the objective of his visit to this country was the "integration" of British war production with that of the United States through establishment of a joint production agency.

He told reporters this after a call at the White House to discuss with President Roosevelt the production blueprint for a United Nations victory. He had conferred previously with Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chairman, and remarked that "we see very much together" on Anglo-American production problems.

Lyttelton said he had taken up with Mr. Roosevelt "the war on broad lines, and more particularly the thing I've come here to fix up—the integration of British production in the general plan."

"We feel," he added, "that the war doesn't wait, and we want to relate our production not only to the future strategical plan but also to the plan for the next few months."

The projected joint production agency, Lyttelton explained, would analyze the requirements of the strategic plan from both the short and long term points of view, add them all up, and then determine whether they could be met by Anglo-American production facilities.

Interrelated with this problem he added, was that of adequate shipping.

'Damnedest Fifth Column Waiting,' Authority Asserts

By the Associated Press

An authority with the best of information on conditions in France declared yesterday that "the damnedest Fifth Column you ever saw" would spring into action against the Germans if a second front were established in France.

Further, he said the bulk of the French fleet was at Toulon in southeastern France under orders to yield to no one, Axis or Allied.

The people of both occupied and unoccupied France, this authority declared, would begin immediately to increase sabotage and to snipe at their German oppressors once the United Nations established a foothold in France.

Laval May Be Ousted

The French were described as thoroughly out of sympathy with the men at the top of their government, with the exception of Marshal Henri Petain, the chief of state.

Although the Germans put on pressure to make Pierre Laval head of the government, this source said that if Laval could not deliver what the Germans wanted and apparently he could not, he would be ousted.

In such event, it was said Laval's successor probably would be Jacques Doriot. Doriot was said to have avowed openly his support of the Nazi regime.

Some units of the French fleet were said to be at the African ports of Casablanca and Dakar, but most of it is at Toulon.

"The French government," this authority declared, "doesn't intend to turn it over to the Germans. But it didn't intend, either, to put Laval in charge of the government.

"The French fleet is assumed to be sufficiently loyal to carry out orders."

Prepared to Scuttle Ships

If anyone tries to take over the fleet, its orders are to send the warships to the bottom, it was stated. A lot of the navy, it was said, does not want to help the Nazis, but some of it would if ordered to do so. And, by and large, the French navy has little liking for the British.

Commando raids, as well as American pamphlets dropped from the air and American short wave broadcasts, were described as having made little impression on the French. It was noted, however, that the Nazi domination of the French press is virtually absolute and that few persons can have radio sets adequate to bring in American broadcasts.

Many Frenchmen were reported to view with favor Britain's raids on plants making weapons and supplies for the German armed forces, although naturally regretting the loss of some French lives.

Desperation Seen in Hitler Trip to Finland

By Joseph S. Evans, Jr.

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, June 5.—Adolf Hitler's visit to Marshal Mannerheim in Finland was regarded by authoritative circles in London today as indicating Germany's desperate need for man power from her Axis satellites for forthcoming operations against Russia.

The visit was seen as the Fuehrer's most remarkable personal move in a long time—a begging move, no doubt accompanied by threats, but startling that in the past he has summoned peremptorily his puppet leaders to him and this time considered it advisable to go to them, so Germany's needs as far as Finland is concerned must be vital, it was pointed out.

Germany is tremendously dependent upon Finnish troops in the forests and tundras in the northernmost parts of the Russian front, for in these areas the Nazi troops have shown themselves markedly inferior, it was said. Futhermore, a growing anxiety among the Finns as to their country's capacity to face another winter of war is reported.

Some authorities in London saw in Hitler's visit the prelude to a renewal of large-scale German attacks on Leningrad and Murmansk. They emphasized that such an offensive would have the dual aim of cutting the route by which British and American supplies reach the Red Army and of drawing off Russian planes and equipment from more important fronts.

The action of the United States in declaring war on Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary must cause the Finns additional worry as to the effect Hitler's visit will have on the attitude of the United States toward their country, experts felt.

A further indication that Germany needs man power was given by reports reaching London today that Kallay, the Hungarian premier, shortly is to visit Hitler in Germany to discuss further Hungarian contributions to the Nazi war machine.

German Troop Trains Go Through France

NAZIS AND SUPPLIES—These pictures of German-operated troop trains laden with trucks and other supplies for use on the Russian front were made east of Paris, near Chalons-sur-Marne, from the diplomatic train which carried United States newspapermen from Bad Nauheim, Germany, to Hendaye, on the French-Spanish border. placed civil servant, a man on the wrong side of 50, who tried to go on one of them.

"I cannot sufficiently impress on you the very keen desire to get to grips with the enemy at any price. I know that this offensive spirit is the same in America as it is in Britain. It is our desire to exploit that sentiment and get at the enemy."

Lord Louis, who has had three destroyers blown out from under him since 1939, said he was loath to leave the aircraft carrier Illustrious last year when he was summoned to London for his present assignment. He said he had doubts whether the Army, Navy and Air Force could merge their point of view completely.

Attack All That Counts

"I even wonder whether we ought to have special uniforms to unite us," he said, "but I soon realized that there was no need for anything like that. The order simply is combined operations first, your own service second. Another thing: after every raid we hold a very full and frank portmortem and one thing we do guarantee—we never make the same mistake twice.

"The word 'defensive' is never included in our vocabulary, and never need be. We speak and work only in terms of 'offensive.' Complete coordination and the spirit of the attack, those, I suppose, are the two things which make the commandos. If one of the services, the Army, the Navy or the Air Force, was not absolutely happy that a projected scheme was a practical one from its own point of veiw, then the plan would not be proceeded with."

Lord Louis reminded the reporters that all units of the British army are now getting the rigorous commando training. Continuing, he said:

"A particularly encouraging point about these operations, although up till now they have been small-scale ones, has been the small casualties involved. The total losses, for instance, at the St. Nazaire show were under 300. A small price to pay for the results achieved—strikingly small when you compare them with, let us say, the Battle of Passchendaele in the last war.

"At headquarters with me I have men from the three services between the ages of 30 and 50, which is just about the perfect range. Under 30 it would be unlikely that they would have much experience. Much over 40 they would not be sufficiently youthful; our graybeard is actually 50."

Lord Louis himself will be 42 this month. He was born at Windsor on June 25, the son of Admiral of the Fleet Prince Louis of Battenberg and of Princess Victoria, eldest daughter of Queen Victoria's daughter, Princess Alice.

Tells of St. Nazaire

Lord Louis, in telling about the commando raid on St. Nazaire, said this "show" would have important strategical consequences. The French port, he said, had the only dry dock outside of Germany that could take the giant German battleship Tirpitz if she were assigned as a raider in the Atlantic. It was, he said, the only dry dock to which she could retire if she were winged by Allied aircraft.

"So it became important to put that dry dock out of commission as soon as possible," he said.

He told how the destroyer Campbeltown, loaded with delayed-action bombs, was sent crashing into the docks. He said he had heard, and believed, a story that the Germans doubted that the destroyer had explosives aboard.

Two young British officers were still on the destroyer when the Germans reached the vessel, he said. They asked the Britishers if there were explosives aboard, and they replied, "No." The Germans went aboard and 60 or 80 German technical experts followed them. All went to the bridge.

"They were watching our two officers for any signs of flight. Those two boys stood there, and didn't bat an eye until the ship blew up. That shows you they had guts."

Rommel's Narrow Escape

The commando raid in Libya last year, Lord Louis said, had for its real goal the killing of Field Marshal Rommel. It turned out that Rommel was in Rome, attending a birthday party, and thereby lived to fight another day. Lord Louis mentioned rather casually, however, that the commandos "killed all of his staff."

"He had to get a new staff," Lord Louis said, "but unfortunately he was still the same Rommel."

In concluding his press conference, the hard-hitting blueblood, who was under fire in the North Sea and at Crete, thanked the press and in an anxious voice said:

"I hope to God I haven't committed any indiscretion."

reported, bringing the total to 20 this week and the total officially announced Atlantic attacks to 247 since Pearl Harbor.

Commenting on these losses, naval authorities said yesterday that they were severe and that the next four or five months would be "a critical period."

In New York, naval officials said that less than 1 per cent of 2500 ships leaving an Eastern port between December 7 and May 31 had been destroyed. They said that antisubmarine activity by planes and ships had driven U-boats southward to the Gulf and the Caribbean.

They emphasized that American naval and air forces are still inadequate to cope with the problem completely and that it was up to America's humming shipyards and factories to produce the necessary vessels—and planes.

"Fair" Improvement Noted

"We've got to take it on the nose and on the chin until production catches up with the needs," a spokesman said.

Defensive steps are being taken to insure oil tanker deliveries along the coast. A "fair" improvement has already been made.

Another cheering statement from the Eastern frontier was that more than 90 per cent of the crews of the ships torpedoed in the Atlantic had been rescued.

Declaring that the "German submarine of today combines the characteristic of a destroyer and a submarine" because of its speed and guns, an officer said the problem was much more critical than the last war.

"They are using subs with a surface speed of 20 to 22 knots and they carry 12 to 16 torpedoes," he said.

Libraries Open Longer Hours This Summer

The Public Library will be kept open more hours this summer than during previous summers because of the exceptional conditions of population, it was announced yesterday by Miss Clara W. Herbert, librarian.

Effective this weekend, the central library, Eighth and K Streets Northwest, will remain open on Saturdays until 5 p. m., along with the major branches, located as follows:

Georgetown, Wisconsin Avenue and R Street; Mount Pleasant, Sixteenth and Lamont Streets; Northeastern, Seventh and Maryland Avenue; Petworth, Georgia Avenue and Upshur Street; Southeastern, Seventh and D Streets; Southwestern, Seventh and H Streets, and Takoma Park, Fifth and Cedar Streets. The central library and the Mount Pleasant branch will be open on Sundays from 2 p. m. to 6 p. m. All other branches will be closed on Sundays, through September.

Food Control Board Set Up

foods derived from agricultural products, as, for example, soap or glue.

Each Government agency concerned with the use of food is required to channel its information on future requirements through the committee.

On the basis of this continuing information, the committee will formulate policy on domestic production and imports. In the event of shortages, the committee will allocate the supplies among competing demands and presumably will determine which food items should be rationed by the OPA.

Sacrifices Stressed

In balancing supplies against requirements, the Wickard committee will be guided by two principles of policy stated by President Roosevelt: Civilians must be prepared to sacrifice so that men in the armed forces are guaranteed proper food, and the United States will feed its allies.

It was expected last night that a joint British-American food board will soon be established to coordinate food programs of the two nations.

With the creation of the Wickard policy directing committee, focusing attention on prospective food supplies and needs, Agriculture Department experts emphasized that it should not be assumed that food shortages or consumer rationing in most foods were in prospect.

The total supply of food this year is expected, they reiterated, to be the largest on record and larger than total requirements, including those of Great Britain and Russia under the lend-lease program.

Shortage may occur, and have appeared, in some individual items, particularly sugar, canned vegetables, canned fish, pork, animal fats, vegetable oils, coffee, tea, cocoa, spices and tropical fruits.

Meat, Eggs Plentiful

Plentiful supplies of wheat, fresh frutis and vegetables, fluid milk and cream, eggs, beef, lamb and mutton are in prospect.

This picture of the food supply was based upon the assumptions that (1) factors affecting production this year—such as weather, farm labor supplies, and the availability of transportation and food processing equipment—are not unfavorable, and (2) that the present tight shipping situation will continue to limit lend-lease food shipments.

A severe drought this summer or an acute shortage of farm labor might cause food production to fall below present expectations, or elimination of the submarine menace to Allied shipping might increase exports of food to Britain and Russia.

Either event, or any development tending to reduce supplies or increase demands, might necessitate rationing of some items in which there is presently no shortage.

Beside Chairman Wickard, the members of the Food Requirements Committee and the agencies they represent are: L. S. Stinebower, State Department; Brig. Gen. Carl A. Hardigg, War Department; Rear Admiral W. B. Young, Navy Department; W. B. Parker, Board of Economic Warfare; Dr. John Orchard, Office of Lend-Lease Administration; Roland S. Vaile, Division of Civilian Supply of the WPB; Douglas C. Townson, Division of Industry Operations of the WPB, and T. L. Daniels, Materials Division of the WPB.

for families of members of the armed forces, which cleared the Senate Thursday, meanwhile was scheduled for House action on Tuesday. The Senate-approved measure would take a $22 chunk out of the envelope of a soldier with a dependent wife and child, and match it with $28 from the Government, to pay a total of $50 to the wife, $12 for her first child and $10 extra for each additional dependent child.

The bill awaiting House action is less liberal, taking $20 from the soldier or sailor, matching it with $20 from the Government, to pay $40 to their dependent wives, and $10 extra for each dependent child. This aid was expected to clear the way for conscription of many married men now deferred because of dependents.

Jap Agents Given Jail Terms, Lecture

Justice Denounces Ryder, Williams; 'Crookedly Smart'

By Dillard Stokes

Post Staff Writer

Justice T. Alan Goldsborough yesterday gave a tongue lashing and long prison terms to David Warren Ryder and Frederick Williams, Japanese agents convicted in the District Court of conspiracy and violating the Foreign Agents Act.

The men plotted, with five Japanese and Ralph Townsend, another agent of Tokyo, to flood this country with propaganda which was designed and paid for by the Mikado's foreign office.

Ryder never disclosed that he was in the pay of Japan because his employers—the propaganda organization called Jikyoku Iinkai—feared his usefulness would be impaired. For this he was given eight months to two years in prison. For the conspiracy he was given another eight months to two years, the sentences to run consecutively.

Williams got the same prison term as Ryder—16 months to 4 years. This included 8 months to 2 years for conspiracy and an equal term for filing nine false registrations with the State Department.

The justice presided over the three-week trial of the two men and discussed only the law of the case, in his instructions to the jury. Yesterday, before announcing the punishment he was to impose, he spoke quietly about broader matters.

The Foreign Agents Act, said Justice Goldsborough, was enacted to preserve the American freedoms of speech and the press. These might be enjoyed even by the paid agents of the Axis, if only they disclosed their activities to the State Department.

The case before him, he continued, was one in which "men attempted to be crookedly smart with their own Government, at a time when democracy hung in the balance. It was so little to ask that they file the reports, so little to ask and such a terrible thing to be crooked and smart."

Toward Tsutomu Obana—the only Japanese conspirator who was caught—the justice said he would be merciful. Obana pleaded guilty, testified for the prosecution and already has been four months in jail.

"It is to be said for Obana," commented Justice Goldsborough, "that he did not try to be crookedly smart, he was not disloyal to his country, he attempted no betrayal."

Obana's sence was two to six months in jail. When his sentence is done he will be interned.

Justice Goldsborough reminded Ryder and Williams that, although they worked for the Axis, they had the benefit of a fair trial in the tradition of democracy. He praised Special Prosecutors Albert E. Arent and Arthur B. Caldwell for the long investigation in which they gathered such "a wealth of evidence" that the jury could not have returned any verdict but guilty.

The justice lauded the prosecutors, too, for presenting their case "in a dignified and altogether proper manner," without harping on the war or appealing to prejudice.

Townsend, Scribner's Commentator writer and author of "America Has No Enemies in Asia," was scheduled to be sentenced yesterday, but won a week's delay. He pleaded guilty to violating the Foreign Agents Act.

The most Townsend can get is $1000 fine and 8 to 24 months in prison.

Deaths of 16 men in three plane chashes was announced by Army authorities Friday.

Fourteen men, nine Army flyers and five civilian crew memers, were killed when a heavy bomber crashed and burst into flames near Hamilton Field, Calif. Thursday night, authorities at the air base revealed.

The following list of dead was released by the Army: Pilot Alfred Oliver Fisher, Copilot George Walter Bowen, Navigator Edwin Channing, Radioman Herbert Christian Valley and Mechanic George Douglas Hilton, all of the Consolidated Aircraft Corp., San Diego; Tech. Sergt. Alex Mazeikas, Westville, Ill.; Tech. Sergt. Clyde Tweedy, Tech. Sergt. Floyd Gerald, Rockingham, N. C.; Staff Sergt. John Pilarcik, Perryopolis, Pa.; Staff Sergt. Joseph Kulis, McKeesport, Pa.; Corpl. Walter B. Haynes, Pazolex, S. C.; Pvt. Travis Polk, Islandton, S. C., and Pvt. Alexander Constantopoulos, Dover, N. J.

Authorities at Kelly Field, Tex., announced the death of Flying Cadet Thomas J. Schmitt, 25, of Norwood, Ohio. He was killed when his plane crashed near Blanco, Tex., while on a routine training flight.

Second Lieut. Richard M. Stafford, 25, of Summit, N. J., was killed Friday when his plane crashed near Bradley Field, Windsor Locks, Conn.

District Awards Tidal Basin Overpass Contract

The District Commissioners yesterday awarded a contract for the construction of an overpass over the north bay of the Tidal Basin in connection with the widening and extension of Independence Avenue.

A proposal of Alexander & Repass, and A. M. Cochran, Des Moines, Iowa, was accepted, in the amount og $773,845 for the new construction.

The new overpass is designed as a link in the new arteries to Federal buildings in nearby Virginia.

Priorities have been granted for the structures and work is to be started soon on these phases of the total project if materials are made available. The bridge, to be built on piles, will have a limestone facing.

Girls Get Girdles

WAAC Test For Officers Set for Today

In all nine Army corps areas the War Department today begins testing the "mental alertness" of applicants for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps—as the first step in selection of the 450 who will attend the officers' training school at Fort Des Moines in July.

Washington girls who have received their notices are to report to Baltimore for this initial "weeding out."

In the meantime, it appears that Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby's uniform will be decorated with the silver eagle insignia of an Army colonel—although her pay is equivalent to that of an Army major and her actual title is director.

Mrs. Hobby will go into uniform next Wednesday, but an advance model with the proposed insignia was sent down from New York for inspection yesterday.

Major J. Noel Macey, public relations officer and temporary deputy director of the WAACS, explained that while the law set the pay of the director it did not specify the kind of insignia and that, therefore it was decided to put silver eagles on the director's shoulders.

The assistant directors of the corps will wear either a silver leaf, insignia of a lieutenant colonel, or a gold leaf, the insignia of a major. The first leaders will have the double bars of a captain, the second leader the silver bar of a lieutenant, and the third leader the gold bar of a second lieutenant.

These regular Army insignia will be worn in addition to a medallion bearing the head of Pallas Athene, which is a distinct WWAC creation.

It also appears definite that a boneless two-way stretch girdle will be issued to those WAACS who seem to be in need of it, but rubber content of the foundation garment has not been disclosed by the Quartermaster Corps.

Another secret known only to the quartermasters and a chosen few is full information on the type and quantity of undies to be issued to Uncle Sam's first "soldiers in skirts."

C.I.O. Invites A.F.L. To Join in Council

Proposes a Body To Chart Labor's Course for Duration

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

The C. I. O. yesterday proposed creation of a joint operating council with the A. F. of L. to chart labor's course in the war period and plan discussions looking toward unity between the two national labor organizations.

The proposal was made at a special meeting of the C. I. O. executive board in a resolution calling for it and the A. F. of L. executive board to "meet forthwith" to establish a "United National Labor Council" consisting of representatives of both organizations. It would be authorized "to formulate a program covering all issues which may in any way aid the cause of labor and the war program."

Suggest Conference

The C. I. O. ruling body also suggested a conference "to win the war" of representatives of every C. I. O. and A. F. of L. union to take up "basic and immediate issues" relating to the war, such as increased production and political support to those candidates in pending elections who have favored the war policy of President Roosevelt.

At the same time, the executive board took the first step in a campaign which is seen as developing to wean away members of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers from its president, John L. Lewis, now in open feud with C. I. O. head Philip Murray.

In a resolution adopted by the board, the C. I. O. acknowledged its thanks to the U. M. W., keystone of the C. I. O. organization, reaffirmed its unity with them and promised eternal "aid and succor" to them "if the occasion ever arises." The last statement was seen as a warning to the U. M. W. rank and file that they would be endangered by Lewis' evident intention to tear his union away from the C. I. O.

Ouster Is Implied

The C. I. O., however, declared that the U. M. W. was delinquent in its per capita tax payments, which Lewis has withheld for four months on grounds that he is applying it to a debt which he claims the C. I. O. owes the miners on past advances. In thus declining to acknowledge the validity of the debt, the C. I. O. is seen as having no alternative but to suspend the U. M. W. from C. I. O. membership at the forthcoming national convention in October.

In another resolution, the executive board denounced the ruling of Attorney General Biddle deporting Harry Bridges, West Coast A. F. of L. leader. The declaration stated that the evidence on which Biddle based the order was hearsay and "thoroughly discredited." It commended Bridges and his Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union for all-out effort in behalf of war shipping.

Meanwhile, the U. M. W. announced that Van A. Bittner, an outspoken Murray follower, had resigned as president of District 17, and that Percy Tetlow had been named temporary provisional president of the district. Bittner has been elected an assistant to the president of the United Steel Workers, Murray.

Unity Stand Explained

In its resolution calling for joint action with the A. F. of L. through a national council of the two organizations, the C. I. O. warned that "immediate organic unity" was a "false issue," liable to create disputes that would hamper, rather than encourage, the war effort.

In an obvious reference to Lewis, who has been insisting on immediate and direct conference with the A. F. of L. toward "accouplement," the resolution said:

"The C. I. O. does not intend to permit anyone to interfere with the Nation's war effort by injecting the false issue of immediate organic labor unity, thereby hoping that efforts to achieve this end would create disputes and friction that would undermine the growing collaboration and cooperation between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. behind President Roosevelt and the Nation's war program. The sole test for the C. I. O. in regard to any step or policy relating to unity is: Does it serve the interests of the workers and of the Nation?"

School Department and National Capital Parks and other agencies which have previously administered facilities now under Recreation Department control.

Leaves $1,000,000 Reserve

The appropriation as it stands leaves the District treasury with a reserve cushion of about a million dollars, which may be doubled by income tax collections which are reported running above advance estimates.

District officials have warned several times, however, that the city may very likely run into financial difficulties during the next few years. This was born out in testimoney offered to the Appropriations Subcommittee to the effect that the District would probably seek authorization to borrow another million dollars for civilian defense work.

In legislative changes in the bill, the committee eliminated the ceilings which have hitherto been placed on Public Welfare Board relief payments. O'Mahoney also asserted that he would offer an amendment on the floor permitting local school teachers to accept Federal jobs during vacation months.

At present many teachers are barred from accepting technical or clerical defense jobs, since it would mean that they would be drawing two salaries from the Government.

Funds for Police Station

Heading the increases in the appropriation were grants of $40,000 for a new police precinct station at Forty-second Street and Benning Road Northeast, and $110,000 for a new fire engine house near North Capitol and Crittenden Streets.

Health Department funds were swelled $22,820 for nine extra food inspectors who will keep tabs on Washington's boarding houses, and for three more sanitary inspectors. Another $29,980 was added to hire and equip 15 more nurses.

Funds for added personnel, refused by the House, were granted to the Public Utilities Commission and the Public Welfare Board. In the latter agency the post of principal assistant director, cut out by the House, was restored.

Funds totaling $38,538 were added to the Public Library appropriation to establish an Anacostia subbranch library in rented quarters.

A total of $242,800 was slashed from the Public Welfare appropriation for public assistance, home care for dependent children and other relief payments. O'Mahoney explained, however, that this would not curtail the board's services since it was covered by reappropriated unexpended balances or in decreases in estimates.

Dirksen Offers Organ Concert Tomorrow

R. Wayne Dirksen, assistant pastor of the Washington Cathedral, will present a concert there tomorrow following the 4 o'clock evensong service. There will be selections from Bach, Samazenili and Willan.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will preach at 4 p. m., and Canon W. Curtis Draper, jr., at 11 a. m. Weekday services are held daily at 7:30 a. m., noon and 4 p. m.

Administration Fails to Win Funds for CCC

leader declared:

"Either this body today is going to follow the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who recommended this (the CCC appropriation) as a necessary part of the conduct of the war, or a bipartisan makeup, composed of at least 90 to 95 per cent of the Republicans."

There were approximately 20 Democrats who voted with Republicans to abolish the CCC, including the greater part of the Texas delegation of House Speaker Rayburn.

The House declined, 89 to 54, to add five million dollars to an identical sum carried in the measure to enable the NYA to continue, in miniature form, its program of providing financial aid to needy college students.

An amendment to strike out $49,729,000 in war-training funds was offered by Representative Dirksen (Republican) of Illinois who proposed that this phase of NYA activity be consolidated with the training and educational work of the Office of Education.

Republicans Divided

On the NYA issue, Dirksen split with Engel and Representative Keefe (Republican) of Wisconsin, both members of the Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the bill. Keefe argued that NYA has war-training centers in areas not reached by the Office of Education's vocational training program. A large bloc of Republicans supported him.

The House made significant economies over expenditures for 1942, in providing funds to be spent in the fiscal year starting July 1 by the Labor Department, Federal Security Agency and related independent offices. An attempt is certain to be made in the Senate to revive the CCC, but just as certainly will have the opposition of a determined group of savers.

The bill's total was $202,687,838 below 1942 appropriations and $99,642,081 under President Roosevelt's budget estimates. The CCC stripped of all operating funds and allowed only $500,000 to cover the cost of its liquidation under a Tarver amendment which the House accepted after his defeat on restoration. Last year the CCC received nearly 247 millions, while the NYA for which the bill would provide a total of $53,049,000, was given $151,767,000.

The War Department yesterday announced that it has taken over "some 550" CCC camps, together with buildings and equipment having a total value of 30 million dollars. Most of the camp buildings will be used for troop housing, but some will be assigned to conscientious draft objectors, others to Japanese evacuated from defense areas and still others will be made available to the Department of Agriculture for housing the women's land army during the canning season.

Bette Does Junior Regina In New Film at the Earle

"In This Our Life" Another Study of Morbid Mentalities at Work Among the Innocents; Brief Stage Revue Is Out of Top Drawer

"IN THIS OUR LIFE." Warner Brothers' picturization of the novel by Ellen Glasgow, adapted to the screen by Howard Koch, costarring Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, George Brent and Dennis Morgan, with Charles Coburn, Frank Craven, Billie Burke, Lee Patrick, Hattie McDaniel, Mary Servoss, Ernest Anderson, William B. Davidson, Edward Fielding, John Hamilton and William Forest. Directed by John Huston. At the Earle Theater.

SINCE BETTE DAVIS appreciably added to her celebrity in the Tallulah Bankhead role of Regina Giddens in Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes," for RKO-Radio, her Warner Brothers home lot evidently concluded that they would give her another fling at the same sort of thing—only more so. To this end, they cast her in the part of Stanley Timberlake in the film version of Ellen Glasgow's novel of "In This Our Life," currently on view as chief screen feature for the week at the Earle Theater.

The two roles are cast in the same mold of utter selfishness, icy heartlessness and a Borgian indifference to violent death. The principal difference between them is that there was some justification for Regina's murderous venom in the middle years of an embittered life. For Stanley there is none. She is a spoiled, pampered, self-centered younger daughter in the harassed household of a family that has been reduced from wealth to comparative poverty by the financial piracy of a cold-blooded uncle, who perceives in Stanley all of the maidenly virtues and indulges in her all of the traits that make him contemptible. Her elder sister is scorned for her normal, kindly, patient outlook upon life and her sense of obligation to those about her.

So the play takes melodramatic advantage of this domestic situation by making Stanley a predatory brat of the first water. About to be married to a promising young attorney, she wheedles a large check from Uncle William Fitzroy as a wedding gift, runs off with her sister's husband and forthwith drives him to suicide; returns home to reclaim her first betrothed, now in love with her sister; attempts to pin her own responsibility for a fatal automobile accident upon an innocent family servant, and finally meets a tragic death herself trying to evade the law. Such is the central character and the story of "In This Our Life."

Upon this drab and distasteful study of ferocious young womanhood, the Warners have poured the full resources of the studio. The piece is prodigally produced, admirably cast and acted, ably photographed and skillfully directed by John Huston. And, in its grim and forbidding way, it is morbidly and mountingly interesting as an exhibit of the havoc that can be wrought in many lives by two cold-blooded geniuses of evil. It is engrossing, too, as a demonstration of superior acting skill. Which, after all is said and done, must be accepted as its chief excuse for being. If any salutary lesson is to be drawn from the contemplation of two such malignant figures as motivate the story, it is that death continues to be the wages of sin—which may or may not stand in need of further emphasis in the minds of theatergoers in quest of "entertainment."

Noble Talents Devoted to Sinister Uses

Her new assignment on the side of everything reprehensible is in the nature of a tour de force and minor triumph for Bette Davis. Not only does she bring a sinister reality to the character of Stanley, but she adds to its fascinating abhorrence by lending it a disarming youthfulness that at times becomes deceptively charming. In striking contrast to her vixenish portrayal is Olivia de Havilland's repressed and winning performance as Roy Timberlake, the gentle and long-suffering sister. There is a fine power and persuasiveness in this splendid young actress' work. In as sharp and effective contrast as the two daughters, are William Fitzroy and Asa Timberlake, the erstwhile business partners, as impersonated by Charles Coburn and Frank Craven. Mr. Coburn is almost as sadistic an old scoundrel here as he was as the malpracticing surgeon in "Kings Row" and Mr. Craven ideally cast as the meek little victim of his brother-in-law's chicanery. The romantic leads are efficiently played by George Brent and Dennis Morgan and capable support is provided by Billie Burke, Mary Servoss, Lee Patrick, Hattie McDaniel, Ernest Anderson and John Hamilton in roles of secondary but vital importance. As usual in pictures directed by his son, Walter Huston appears briefly in one essential sequence.

The brief stage bill at the Earle this week introduces three acts of outstanding excellence in the superlative tap dancing of Johnny Barnes, Paul Tisen's All-American Girls, in an interlude of delightful music, and Ray and Trent, among the best of the gymnasts. The All-American Girls are six accomplished violinists, a harpist, a pianist and a soprano vocalist of the first rank. Their offerings, in especially effective arrangements, range from "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" through "Kiss Me Again" to "Gypsy Make Your Violin Cry" and are executed with uniform artistry. The Roxyettes are gaily in and out, climaxing their efforts with the familiar roller-skating routine.

A comprehensive newsreel and a particularly effective short subject on behalf of the USO, Carey Wilson's "Mr. Gardenia Jones," starring Ronald Reagan, Charles Winninger, Laraine Day and Fay Bainter, are the only supplementaries of the sumptuously sordid screen feature.

Palace

"My Gal Sal" is fulfilling every reasonable expectation by remaining a second week on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater.

Executed in Technicolor and dedicated to a flamboyant depiction of the life and music of the late Paul Dresser, this tuneful and gaily romantic biographical celluloid has Rita Hayworth and Victor Mature as its costars. James Gleason and John Sutton are foremost among those who bring importance to a long list of supporting roles.

Not only are many of Dresser's popular songs of the turn of the century incorporated in the action of the drama, but one or two new ones are added to give a present-day tang to a tale that is primarily nostalgic.

The supplementary short subjects are being carried over into the second semester along with the feature, the only variation from last week being the substitution of the new newsreel for the old.

Metropolitan

With two capacity weeks at the Earle already to its credit, Cecil B. De Mille's Technicolor picturization of Thelma Strabel's "Reap the Wild Wind" yesterday took up its downtown option on public interest as screen feature for the new week at the Metropolitan Theater.

Dealing excitingly with piratical salvaging practices off the Florida Keys in the 1840s, this tempestuous subject embodies every effective ingredient known to sensational melodrama—vicious fights on land, sea and the floor of the ocean, violent death, legitimate and clandestine romance, ship sinkings and whatnot.

A brilliant cast is engaged in the interpretation of all this. Ray Milland, Paulette Goddard and John Wayne are the costars. In their support are such notables as Lynne Overman, Susan Hayward, Janet Beecher, Hedda Hopper and hundreds more. The Technicolor treatment of the yarn is the best that has found its way to the screen.

Emphatically something to see—if you haven't already seen it a couple of times.

Much whispering going on at Twentieth about costarring their new heart throb, Jean Gabin, and Michele Morgan. The French picture, "Port of Shadows," they made together was a great hit. Wouldn't be bad, now that they've both learned to speak English, to team them together. The one person who wouldn't be pleased, I'll wager, would be Marlene Dietrich.

Well, well! Just before Gilbert Roland went into the Army Monogram signed him for "Spell of the Tropics," so now they've arranged a furlough for him and he'll do the part. Constance Bennett, who was up in Monterey to be near him, can move back home and be comfortable again.

On the "White Cargo" set, watched Walter Pidgeon and Dick Carlson having their manly faces sprayed with glycerine to look like perspiration while doing a scene in the heat of the jungle. But when Hedy La Marr appeared as a chocolate colored siren in white sarong the temperature went up so fast the glycerine was pure affection!

When I asked writer Leon Gordon how he got "White Cargo" by the Hays office he said, "Simply by cutting out swear words. Today, with the world battling for its existence, we want battling individualists for our screen fare, too, and not a lot of pap."

Then on to "Random Harvest," where Ronnie Coleman and Greer Garson did a love scene—as charming a bit of romantic screen lore as you'd witness in many a day.

Ronnie always intrigues me anyway because, in each love scene, he makes it appear that's the first one he's ever done, and he's still a little sheepish about the whole thing.

Yes, Greer's really in love with Richard Ney, and vice versa, but I think the Navy will get him before wedding bells can ring out.

Broadway Glossary

New York, June 5

POLITICS: Mr. and Mrs. Jim Farley were among the many notables who attended the reopening of Fefe's Monte Carlo. They listened to their guests discussing the coming Gubernatorial campaign and the possibilities of defeating Tom Dewey. "I wish I could quote something once said by Kenneth Simpson, the Republican leader," sighed Farley. "But, unfortunately, Simpson's dead now, and so he can't be quoted." . . . "Why not?" Mrs. Farley protested. "After all, people still quote Shakespeare—and he's dead." . . . "Yes," replied Farley. "But remember—Will wasn't in politics."

VERA ZORINA

EXCHANGE: Herb Matthews, the New York Times' correspondent in Rome, was one of the returned correspondents who addressed the Over-Seas Press Club yesterday. In Lisbon he met an Italian diplomat who had left America on the Drottningholm. "I hated to leave our internment camps in America, to return to Italy," lamented the diplomat. "There we were able to eat without paying. In Italy, we pay without eating."

DIFFERENCE: Matthews also discussed the difference in temperament between the Germans and the Italians. "The Italians are more normal people," he stated. "For example—when Goering is overworked, he spends the week-end taking drugs. When Ciano is overworked, he spends the weekend with a mistress."

RELIEF: Harry C. Butcher, CBS's vice president in Washington, reported this week for active duty with the Navy . . . On the desk in his CBS office Butcher left a sign reading: "Left With Loving Kindness for My Successor—H. C. B." . . . Beneath that sign was a package of headache powders.

CHATTER: Paul V. McNutt's Man Power Mobilization Bureau will set up boards, similar to the Selective Service boards, in districts throughout the Nation . . . John Steinbeck's new title is "Special Assistant to the Secretary of War." He now is flying to all bombardment stations and schools, collecting material for an Air Corps story . . . Ben Hecht will write the screenplay for Franz Werfel's "Song of Bernadette." . . . Vera Zorina will cut her hair, for the role of Maria in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" . . . The resignation of Mrs. Raymond Gosselin, as national administrator of AWVS, was accepted night before last.

PROOF: Pat Conger, who returned this week after two and a half years of newspaper work in Italy, was asked by Lowell Thomas to illustrate, quickly, the effects of living under Axis rule . . . "When I first bought this suit I'm wearing, the jacket was single-breasted," said the starved correspondent. "Look at it now—it's double-breasted."

PUBLICITY: The Theater Guild wrote to George Bernard Shaw, and requested some information which would be of use to its publicity department . . . Shaw replied: "Press agents are silly young folk who become press agents because they are congenital unemployables."

PERFORMANCE: All the Barrymore obituaries referred to his memorable portrayal of "Hamlet." In that production, Fred G. Lewis had played "Horatio." Lewis also had played Horatio in the Hamlet company of E. H. Sothern . . . Seward Lindsay met Lewis while the latter was working with Barrymore, and asked him to describe it. "I'll say this," said Lewis. "It's a great performance of something."

SUSPICION: Before Col. Frank Knox became Secretary of the Navy, a noted Eastern politician, who had enriched himself while in office, was mentioned as a possibility for the job. Jimmy Roosevelt asked his father about it . . . "No, he won't get the Secretaryship of the Navy," the President assured him. "It would be too much trouble for me to have to count the battleships each night."

FAME: Jeffrey Lynn, the Warner Bros. star, now is a private in the Signal Corps, stationed in Astoria. This week, when he went to a drug store for a soda, a mob of fans recognized him, and pursued Lynn, who rushed back to his station . . . The sentry stopped the fans from following Lynn into the camp, and then he discovered that their quarry was the movie star. The sentry opened the door through which Lynn had rushed, and found himself in the barracks where 148 soldiers live . . . "Is this," he asked the sergeant, "Jeffrey Lynn's room?"

Columbia

Abbott and Costello, low comedy's gift to screen slapstick, took over the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater on Thursday for their second fling at F Street approval in "Rio Rita," bearing the title of, but no semblance to, the favorite old Ziegfeld stage musical comedy.

"Rio Rita" is still musical and decidedly comic. But in a different way. The zany stars, in this version, manage to get mixed up in an espionage plot in Mexico with highly hilarious results. They have nothing to do with the musical beauties of the film. These are provided by John Carroll and Kathryn Grayson, aided by singing and dancing ensembles now and again—as in "The Rangers' Song" and "Rio Rita." Miss Grayson does the "Shadow Song" from "Dinorah" strictly on her own. But beautifully.

Most of this business makes no sense, but it does make uproarious entertainment.

Judy Garland's Pool Lures Ducks

Judy Garland is having neighbor trouble, and all because of a flock of ducks.

It seems that every morning the birds, owned by a rancher neighbor, invade Judy's swimming pool and remain until the owner is forced to drive them home.

The other morning the gentleman paid Judy a visit.

"You will simply have to drain your pool, Miss Garland," he demanded. "My ducks won't stay home and I'm tired of running around looking for them every day."

"Maybe you should equip your pool with a good-looking decoy," Judy quipped, "and your troubles would be over."

D.C. Split Up Into 15 Rationing Areas

Sugar, Gas Board For Each Formed, Steuart Announces

Division of the District into 15 areas and creation of a sugar and gas rationing board to serve each area was announced yesterday by L. P. Steuart, rationing chief.

Six of the boards have been in operation since early in April and the other nine were set up and opened for business on Thursday, Steuart said. Each board is composed of a chairman and two additional members, and gives the District rationing setup approximately 150 employes, about 70 of whom are paid. The board members and a group of volunteer workers are not paid.

While announcing the new setup, designed for promptness and efficiency in serving the needs of District residents, Steuart reported that "hundreds" of Washington holders of gasoline "X" cards had turned them in for smaller allowance cards but was unable to state the exact number.

Calls It Misunderstanding

He said he was aware of no single instance in which an "X" card was fraudulently obtained, and attributed the whole situation to misunderstanding and to the haste with which gasoline registration was carried out. To his knowledge, he said, no plans are afoot for the prosecution of any individual in connection with the "X" cards.

Steuart blamed the lack of figures relative to "X" cards on a small clerical staff which he said is literally swamped with almost one million cards arising from both the sugar and gas registrations.

No date, he said, has been set for the second gasoline registration, made necessary by the new rationing program which will supplant the temporary setup now in effect.

Locations Listed

In connection with the new 15-area setup, Steuart said hereafter any person seeking supplemental gasoline allowances or action of any sort on his sugar or gas cards must go to the board serving the area in which he resides.

The personnel of the 15 boards, their locations, and the boundaries of the areas they serve are printed below:

Area 1-A—Frank Davis, chairman; Julius Balick and William C. Strasser, Fourteenth and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. The area north of Pennsylvania Avenue, including the north side thereof; south of a line starting at Seventh Street and Florida Avenue Northwest and running west on Florida Avenue to Fifteenth Street, north on Fifteenth Street to Euclid Street, and west on Euclid Street to Sixteenth Street; east of Sixteenth Street, including the east side thereof; and west of Seventh Street, including the west side thereof.

Area 1-B—Walter B. Jarvis, chairman; Allen G. Gartner and William Carlisle Barr, Force School, 1740 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. The area north of Pennsylvania Avenue, including the north side thereof; south of a line starting at Sixteenth and Euclid Streets and running west on Euclid Street to Calvert Street and west on Calvert Street to Rock Creek; east of Rock Creek; and west of Sixteenth, including the west side thereof.

Area 1-C—Robert Marx, chairman; H. C. Reiner and Andrew Maloney, 456 Indiana Avenue Northwest. The area north of Pennsylvania Avenue, including the north side thereof; south of Rhode Island Avenue and Florida Avenue, including the south side thereof; east of Seventh Street, including the east side thereof, and west of Delaware Avenue and the railroad tracks leading north from the Union Station.

Area 2-A—Reuben A. Bozley, chairman; Frank T. Shull and Charles M. Boteler, Jackson School, Thirtieth and R Streets Northwest. The area north of the Potomac River; south of a line starting at the intersection of Massachusetts Avenue and Rock Creek, running west on Massachusetts Avenue to Wisconsin Avenue, and on Wisconsin Avenue to the District line; east of the District line, and west of Rock Creek.

Area 2-B—William H. Clarke, chairman; Joseph Fairbanks and Curtis E. McGhee, Oyster School, Twenty-ninth and Calvert Street Northwest. House Revolt Menaces Gas Ration Plans

Harold Smith, Nelson, Henderson, Wayne Coy, liaison officer for the Office of Emergency Management; Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman, MacLeish, Joel Dean, director of fuel rationing, and Board rubber chief.

The burning question became "nobody's baby" and numerous indications that every agency and official concerned in the twin problems posed by the rubber shortage and lack of gas transportation facilities intended to leave the matter squarely on President Roosevelt's doorstep.

No one, it appeared, wants to assume responsibility for imposing gasoline rationing on the entire country because, it was stated, the Nation has not been convinced—as yet—that such a drastic step is necessary.

After the 100 Congressmen, meeting in a boisterous caucus room session, had adopted a resolution opposing countrywide rationing until Congress is satisfied of its necessity, Representative Jed Johnson (Democrat) of Oklahoma introduced a concurrent resolution in the House embodying the same objection.

Holds There's an Oil Surplus

His resolution held that there was a surplus of oil in Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma and other producing States and that Nation-wide rationing would actually "cripple the war effort."

It is the sense of Congress, the resolution declared, that no rationing should be ordered until "the official authorized by law to prescribe regulations . . . furnishes to the House of Representatives the full facts, figures and other such information as may be necessary in order to show that such rationing is necessary to conserve the supply of gasoline."

The rationing program was proposed by the War Production Board to conserve rubber rather than gasoline, of which there admittedly is no shortage, except for that created in the Eastern seaboard by transportation difficulties.

Johnson said he understood an official announcement for the start of nation-wide rationing had been delayed because of the House protests.

Assails Rubber Companies

Meantime, these developments transpired in the garbled gasoline and rubber picture:

1. Chairman Andrew L. Somers (Democrat) of New York, of the House Coinage Committee, reported "shocking revelations" had been given his group that the "big four rubber companies have gained control of the rubber program," are impeding the President's war program and "denying the people their rubber needs."

He named a subcommittee to bring in "full disclosures of the devious operations of the greedy big four who are more interested in their post-war position than in the crying rubber needs of the American people."

2. A Government economist told a Senate subcommittee that plans to destroy rubber plantations in the Far East to keep them from the Japanese "were not carried out very greatly." As a result, he said, these plantations, which normally provided 98 per cent of American rubber, will be producing for the Japanese "in a year or so."

The House caucus, called by Representative Scrugham (Democrat), of Nevada, was marked by vigorous denunciations of Price Chief Leon Henderson, which subsided somewhat when it was pointed out that rationing decisions were up to WPB Chairman Donald Nelson, rather than to Henderson.

"Fed Up With Henderson"

Representative Johnson declared he was "fed up with this bird Henderson" and said that "Gestapo" was a mild name for the force of 90,000 price checkers which the OPA has proposed to employ.

Earlier in the day, Eastman said that no new tires would be available to the public for "several years," and described gasoline rationing as the "most practicable way" to conserve rubber. His views were expressed in a letter to Representative White (Democrat) of Idaho.

Another development tying into the gasoline-rubber situation was a report from the Public Roads Administration that gasoline rationing had cut rural highway traffic by 55 to 65 per cent, compared with a year ago.

Church Seeks Counsel for War Workers

Employment of a diocesan case worker to counsel "lonely and frustrated" defense workers was urged yesterday by the social welfare department of the Washington Diocese, Episcopal Church, embracing churches here and in Maryland.

Adoption of a resolution deploring conditions facing Federal workers here followed an outspoken statement from the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, who warned that "the problem of frustrated and lonely young women here is a major casualty of the war for America."

"Church's Duty"

He said that young women drop into his office at Epiphany Episcopal Church in downtown Washington every day to consult with him on problems ranging from unmarried motherhood to ordinary emotional upsets. It is the church's duty to do something for these young people, he told the meeting at the diocesan headquarters, 1704 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest.

(Dr. Winfred Overholser, noted psychiatrist and superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, on May 9 warned girls with nervous disorders against coming to overcrowded Washington for Government jobs. He said that the fact that there are more mental patients here per capita than in any other place in the Nation is attributed to the influx of people here since the war and the high tension of living and lack of unmarried men.)

Named Chairman

Dr. Sheerin yesterday was named chairman of a committee to study the matter of employing a case worker. It is hoped to enlist the financial support of diocesan churches in the project, he told The Post.

The Rev. Peyton Williams, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Georgetown Parish, and chairman of the diocesan social welfare committee, told The Post that the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, in a conversation with him yesterday, indorsed the case worker plan in principle. Formal approval must come from the prelate, it was explained.

U. S.-Iceland Amity to Be Remembered

MISS MARKAN

A service commemorating the friendship between Iceland and the United States will be held tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol Street.

Thor Thors, Minister of Iceland, will speak, and Miss Maria Markan, native of Iceland, and affiliated with the Metropolitan Opera Society, will present a vocal concert. She has sung in Europe, Australia and America.

Her program follows:

"Evening Prayer" (Icelandic), B. Gudmundsson; "Agnus Dei," Bizet; "Land of Dreams" (Icelandic), S. Einarsson; "Ave Maria," Gounod; "Swan Song on the Heath" (Icelandic), S. S. Kaldalons; "To Music" (Swedish), C. L. Sjoberg, and "The Lord's Prayer," A. H. Malotte.

Another distinguished guest who will appear tomorrow at 7 p. m. at a program in the parish hall will be Dr. Sigmund Skard, former librarian of the Royal Academy at Trondheim, Norway. He escaped from Norway during the invasion and after a long journey of many adventures via Siberia and the Orient arrived in America. He is now the consultant of Scandinavian culture at the Library of Congress.

Eastern Presbyterian Congregation Marks Fiftieth Anniversary of Cornerstone Laying

William T. Betts Tells How Church Group Was Started

How the Eastern Presbyterian congregation came to be formed 67 years ago in his parents' home was told last night by William T. Betts at the church's jubilee supper at Sixth and Maryland Avenue Northeast.

Betts and his brother, Edward, were among the guests of honor at the function—marking the fiftieth anniversary of the cornerstone-laying of the present edifice.

Present were five people who recalled participating in the cornerstone-laying. They were John F. Allwine, Mrs. Lizzie G. Crisp, Miss Clara Pennington, and the Betts brothers.

William Betts recollected that he and his brother were youngsters in knee pants when a group of young men began meeting at their parents' home, 1016 H Street Northeast, for Sunday school classes. The group—composed of young men formerly connected with Fourth Presbyterian Church—had previously been meeting for a year at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Hughes, 1016 H Street Northeast, said Betts. With 23 members, the congregation was incorporated on May 19, 1875.

The Betts brothers are the only living charter members. Although frequently offered official church positions, they always have declined.

Principal speaker at the worship service after the supper, the Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall said that Eastern Church, "the lighthouse on the hill," contained the voice of God, "without which no nation can long endure." He is pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. William Nesbit Vincent, pastor, presided. Navy Chaplain Robert Workman, offered a prayer. The Rev. Dr. Alfred E. Barrows, pastor emeritus, also took part in the services, and will preach this Sunday at 11 a. m.

Sunday School Groups Plan Amusements

Sunday school picnics and other outings, traditionally linked with summer church activities, will be enjoyed by many groups in the coming weeks.

The Sunday school of Gunton-Temple Memorial Presbyterian Church will take a boat ride to Marshall Hall on June 13, leaving the Wilson Line pier at 2 p. m. and returning at 6:45 p. m.

The Luther Place Memorial Church's Sunday school will hold its annual picnic on the same day in Rock Creek Park.

The Box Bible Class of Emory Methodist Church will sponsor an outing at Broadwater Beach on June 13, cars leaving the church at 8:30 a. m.

The Chevy Chase Baptist Sunday school will hold its picnic on June 13 in Rollingwood, Md. Milton D. Burdick is chairman.

Young Methodists Meet June 26-28

Young Adults of the Baltimore Conference Methodist Church have completed plans for their annual assembly from June 26 to June 28. At that time a group of about 200 lay workers in churches throughout Maryland, West Virginia and the District of Columbia will meet on the campus of Western Maryland College, Westminster, for a week-end of fellowship, education and inspiration. They will think through some of the problems confronting them in the present in an effort to plan a Christian approach to the future. To this end the theme of the conference is a timely one—"Preparing a Christian World Order." The discussions will center around such vital subjects as the Bible, the church, the home, the Nation, personality and recreation, each in its relation to the new order.

Outstanding educators who will act as resource leaders in the groups and in platform speaking include Dr. Paul Douglass, president of American University; Dr. F. L. Gibbs of the National Methodist Board of Education; Dr. John N. Link, Westminster Theological Seminary; Dr. Sidney B. Hall, George Washington University; the Rev. J. C. Millian, executive secretary of the Baltimore Conference Board of Education, and the Rev. Ernest K. Emurian of Lynchburg, Va. Adequate time will be given to a recreational program designed to meet the needs of young adults active in building a more effective Christian order. The banquet address on Saturday evening will be brought by Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Church, Washington, whose subject will be "Legislating a New World."

Etchison to Speak

Page McK. Etchison, religious director of the Y. M. C. A., will speak at the Rhode Island Methodist Church, Rhode Island Avenue and First Street Northwest, tomorrow at 8 p. m. His theme will be, "Is Love the Greatest Thing in the World?"

Methodists Will Observe Student Day

Shortening of the college course during the war years has placed special significance on Methodist Student Day on June 14, according to Dr. Harry Wright McPherson, director of the student loan fund in Nashville. The observance marks the seventy-first drive for contributions to the fund to aid college students. Several local churches will mark the observance tomorrow.

"The college-age young people will follow the new 'war-time' year-round schedule. They will thus be deprived of the usual summer earning period," Dr. McPherson said. "This will produce a double load—on the student loan fund and on the students. This year's contributions on Methodist Student Day will serve a greater purpose and the drive will need greater assistance than ever before.

"The fund must meet this greater demand," he added, "or tomorrow's world will be the poorer because of lack of aid to the potential leaders of the post-war era."

Originally known as Children's or College Day, the student aid plan was first put into operation in 1872. The following year 22 students received $300 toward their college fees. Since that time more than 60,000 young men and women have borrowed over nine million dollars toward their tuition fees at 250 Methodist and accredited non-Methodist universities and colleges.

Bishop to Preach At Georgetown Church

Christ Church, Georgetown, will welcome the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, as guest preacher tomorrow at 11 a. m. He also will administer confirmation.

A procession of Sunday School members, joined by the Junior Choir, will mark the close of the school year.

The success of the first joint offering for purposes outside the church will be announced by the vestry.

Annual Brides' Service Set for Tomorrow

The annual brides' service of the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest, will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. Dr. Howard Stone Anderson will preach on "For Better, for Worse."

Held for the yearly reconsecration of the marriage vows, the service is popular with the married folk of the parish.

Wedding music will be rendered by Dorothy Wilson Holbach, contralto, and Paul Gable, organist.

Trinity Church Pilgrimage Set For Tomorrow

Scores of clergymen and laymen of the Washington Diocese, Episcopal Church, tomorrow at 4 p. m. will make a pilgrimage to Trinity Church, St. Mary's City, Md., for another service marking the 250th anniversary of the enactment of the "Act of 1692."

Enactment of that measure by the Province of Maryland resulted in the creation of the Maryland parishes. The act was signed on June 9, 1692, by Sir Lionel Copley, first royal governor of the province.

The services will be in charge of the rector of St. Mary's Parish, the Rev. Nelson MacConomy. The Rev. Charles J. Wrenshall, rector of St. Alban's, will deliver the address and the music will be rendered by the choir of Rock Creek Parish, under direction of Dr. Henry B. Steer, organist and choir director.

Opportunity is offered on this occasion to visit historic Trinity Church and the replica of the old Statehouse, which originally stood in what is now the churchyard. Flat stones in the grass and a larger stone mark its original site. It was in the old Statehouse that the Act of 1692 was signed.

In the churchyard are many memorials to pioneers of colonial Maryland. Among them is a tall monument erected on the site of the old mulberry tree, under which Leonard Calvert conferred with King Yaocomico. It is reared to the memory of Leonard Calvert and tells of the establishment of a government where the persecuted of every creed might repose in peace and security, worship their common God and enjoy the priceless blessings of civil and religious liberty. A few yards away is the vault of Sir Lionel Copley, the first royal governor, and Lady Copley, his wife.

Guild to Give Play In Franklin Park

"Pray Always," a park bench drama, will be presented on the Washington Catholic Evidence Guild program in Franklin Park tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. Characters will be by J. M. Donelon, Francis X. Ryan and Frank Epperson, from St. Paul's College. The Rev. A. J. McDonald, C. S. P., will be chairman.

The Rev. John Stafford, assistant moderator of the guild, will preside at the meeting, from 3 to 5 p. m. in Franklin Park. Speakers will be J. J. Harrington, whose subject will be the "Existence of God," M. J. Lux, "Christ, the Teacher and Revealer," and Francis X. Ryan, subject to be announced.

Metropolitan Baptists To Hear Missionary

The Rev. Robert Savage former assistant pastor of Metropolitan Baptist Church, will speak there tomorrow and the following Sunday.

He recently resigned as pastor of the First Baptist Church of Romeo, Mich., to become missionary in Venezuela, representing the Metropolitan Baptist Church. His wife will accompany him.

Mr. Savage will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Why We Are Going to South America," and at 7:45 p. m. on "The Greatest Verse in the Bible." He will speak tonight at 7:30 o'clock over WINX and also will address a youth rally at Metropolitan Church on Friday at 8 p. m.

Rev. A. T. Rasmussen to Head Federation Church Planners

PLANNERS—The Rev. Albert T. Rasmussen has arrived here to assume duties as head of the new department of surveys and church planning of the Federation of Churches. Here are Mr. Rasmussen; his wife, also his cartographer, and Dr. Worth M. Tippy, acting federation executive secretary, look over a map.

Organization of new churches and erection of new church buildings should pace the business and residential growth of communities, believes the Rev. Albert T. Rasmussen.

Mr. Rasmussen, who arrived here several days ago from Chicago to assume his duties as director of the new surveys and church planning department of the Federation of Churches, feels that a congregation will lose many prospective members if it waits too long to organize in new communities.

After surveying the situation in the Arlington field yesterday, Mr. Rasmussen observed that Washington is similar in many respects to southern California, where he recently conducted a survey for the Congregational churches. Both sections are the most rapidly expanding in the country at present, he said, although southern California is more industrialized.

The new federation department aims to coordinate the efforts of various Protestant denominations in the field of church expansion, to carry on a maximum of service with a minimum of overlapping effort. All the major religious bodies and several smaller groups are represented on the commission that oversees the department.

Mr. Rasmussen was graduated in 1927 from Chicago Theological Seminary, and has served several churches in and near that city. For four years he served as research associate of the department of research and survey of Chicago Seminary, of the Congregational Union of Chicago, and of the Chicago Federation of Churches. He is in his early thirties.

He plans to spend June here, then return to Chicago for two months to complete his thesis for a Ph. D. at the seminary. He will return in September to take up his duties regularly.

Mr. Rasmussen's wife is also his cartographer, and helped him in his California survey work and other projects. She will assist him in the federation job. They were married in 1936. They were classmates at Spokane (Washington) University.

Prayers Urged for a Just Peace

A statement urging churches and synagogues to pray for a "righteous ending of the war" next Saturday and Sunday, was issued yesterday by the executive committee of the National Conference of Christians and Jews under the signature of its president, Dr. Everett R. Clinchy.

Issued in connection with the forthcoming observance of Flag Day on June 14, the statement pays tribute to "all men and women throughout the world who have given their lives and those who are standing steadfast to uphold the freedom of those institutions and ideals which are an outgrowth of the religious way of life."

The statement suggests that Flag Day "may be the occasion for reflection upon the spiritual stake involved in the cause of the United Nations," and expresses the hope that after the war, "under the banner of a united mankind, all the nations of the world will be joined together in peace based on justice and brotherhood."

New Church Dedication Set Tomorrow

The service of dedication of Resurrection Lutheran Church, 6200 North Washington Boulevard, Arlington, Va., will take place tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. The address will be delivered by the Rev. Arthur M. Knudsen, D. D., of Chicago, divisional secretary of the Board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church in America. Former pastors, representatives of other churches, distinguished guests and friends from local and neighboring communities will be present.

Resurrection Congregation had its beginning in a store-chapel on Wilson Boulevard. It was organized in February, 1940, and admitted into the Synod of Virginia, February, 1941. The chairman of the congregational building committee is P. J. Billheimer. Other members of the committee are Robert K. Sharp, George P. Grove, Ralph Forney and Harry L. Rust.

The new home is of colonial architecture and is one of the many beautiful churches in the county erected to meet the spiritual needs of an ever-expanding population. Completely furnished the church will seat 190 worshipers. The erection of the building was made possible by the Board of American Missions, who supervise the establishment of some 700 churches in the United States and Canada. The erection of the Arlington church is in keeping with the policy of the board to move with the shift of vast sections of the population during the national emergency.

The new building was designed by Smith & Billings, architects, Alexandria, Va. The general contractor was Martin Bros., Washington, D. C. Services of worship are held every Sunday morning at 11, church school at 9:45 o'clock.

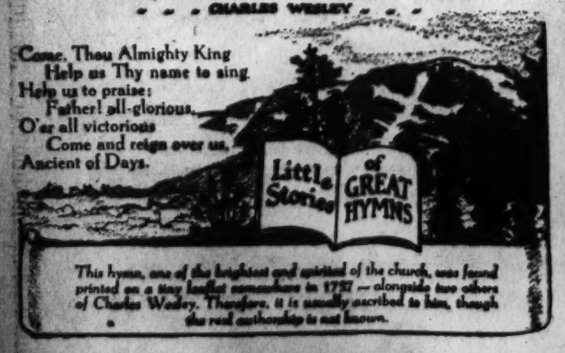
"COME, THOU ALMIGHTY KING"
— — CHARLES WESLEY — — —



Come, Thou Almighty King
Help us Thy name to sing.
Help us to praise:
Father! all-glorious,
O'er all victorious
Come and reign over us,
Ancient of Days.

This hymn, one of the brightest and spirited of the church, was found printed on a tiny leaflet somewhere in 1727 — alongside two others of Charles Wesley. Therefore, it is usually ascribed to him, though the real authorship is not known.

Dr. Sheerin To Observe Aniversary

The Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, rector of Epiphany Episcopal Church, tomorrow will mark the eighteenth anniversary of his ordination to the ministry. It took place in June, 1924, at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

The congregation will sponsor the second of its special monthly Communions at 6 p. m. to accommodate war workers and others unable to attend morning services because of their duties. Dr. Sheerin will preach at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.

Before coming here in January as successor to the late Very Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, Dr. Sheerin was vice president of the National Council of the Episcopal Church.

The subject of the morning sermon will be "Has Christianity changed its point of view in recent years?" Commenting on this subject, Dr. Sheerin said: "The issues of this great war have caused a great many people to wonder whether Christianity has changed its attitudes and what the place of religion is in the great conflict. I shall attempt to explain the changes which have taken place since I was ordained to the ministry and try to point out the implications of religion in this present time."

Dr. Emmett Fox To Preach Here Monday Night

"The Solution to World Problems Through Scientific Thinking," will be the subject of Dr. Emmet Fox, pastor of New York's Church of the Healing Christ, Monday at 8:15 p. m. in the National Press Club auditorium.

English, and a descendant of George Fox, the Quaker, Dr. Fox turned to the ministry from engineering 10 years ago.

He is the author of several books through which he popularized his "Law of Scientific Thinking" here and abroad.

Monday's meeting is sponsored by the International New Thought Alliance, of which Dr. Fox is a board member.

Better Supply Bill

The people of Washington look forward each year to notable improvement of the District appropriations bill when it goes to the Senate. Seldom are they disappointed. This year Senator O'Mahoney's Subcommittee has rendered outstanding service in refining various sections of the bill that were carelessly approved by the House. As it reaches the Senate floor, the measure still has many shortcomings. It postpones various long-sought reforms for future consideration. Yet it also corrects some of the worst blunders made by the House.

In eliminating the position of principal assistant director of public welfare, for example, the House exercised poor judgment on the basis of fragmentary information. The Senate Committee has restored funds for this and two minor welfare jobs. The effect of the House provision retaining rigid limits on the amounts that may be spent to relieve distress in families of various size would be to prevent the distribution of relief on the basis of need. These so-called ceilings were also discarded by the Senate. The current trimming of relief funds does not minimize the desirability of distributing the remaining sums in accord with human needs.

Public health fares better in three important categories under the Senate Committee bill. The House had allowed funds for 40 of the additional 72 public health nurses requested by the Commissioners. Senator O'Mahoney's Committee added another 15. Salaries for nine food inspectors and three sanitary inspectors were also restored. If these items are allowed to stand, they will greatly assist the Health Department in its fight against contagion in this critically overcrowded wartime Capital.

Other improvements in the Senate Committee bill include the allowance of funds for a new fire station, a new police precinct station, the rental of a subbranch library in Anacostia, and for additional personnel at the Public Utilities Commission. Proper adjustments were also made to bring the new recreation set-up under the budget for the first time. These are important gains. But the total budget for this war-congested city is still about three-quarters of a million dollars less than is being spent in the current year. Considering the phenomenal growth of Washington and its importance as the center of the war effort, this fact strongly suggests that Congress will have to spend valuable time passing supplementary appropriations for the District in fiscal 1943, as it has done during the current year.

Carrier Expansion

Several days ago Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee let it be known that he is in favor of an aircraft carrier building program that will enable us to throw a "bridge" of carriers across both oceans. This, of course, was only a manner of speaking. Yet it is clear from the carrier provision in the chairman's new shipbuilding bill that his exaggeration was, after all, only one of degree. His bill calls for no less than 500,000 tons of new carriers—roughly twice the tonnage built, building or authorized. This would give us at least 40 major carriers, not to mention an unrevealed number of smaller-type carriers which have been or may be converted from merchant and cargo vessels. And it would also give us overwhelming carrier superiority over the enemy—but not before the late 1940's.

As of today, so far as can be determined, we enjoy a slight carrier superiority over the enemy. We have at least 7 large carriers and several smaller ones in service, and more than 11 in the process of construction. The present carrier-building program, however, will be completed next year, and Chairman Vinson's bill is designed to provide new carriers after 1944. This naturally brings up the question of how useful carriers will be in the years ahead. Right now they are indispensable, and the more we can place in service in the months ahead the better fixed we shall be to carry the attack to the enemy.

Nevertheless, in looking ahead, it is well to recognize that carriers are a component of the fastest changing element in modern warfare—that is, air power. Already there is a school of thought, headed by Major Seversky, which holds that carriers are but a passing phenomenon which, before long, will be as outmoded as the battleships now appear to be. To be sure, such a possibility is hardly sufficient reason to condemn the proposed carrier expansion. But we do have to take into account the probability that the war will be over long before the proposed program can be completed, and that in the interim our conception of the use of air power may be radically changed. These are factors which it is difficult to evaluate. Yet, in the nature of things, they should play a not unimportant part in the forthcoming debate on the details of the proposed expansion program.

Victory Rubber

Every citizen will be relieved to learn that the Government at last is beginning to tap our large resources of scrap rubber. The delay in adopting a scrap-gathering plan has matched the negligence in building up our stocks of crude before the Japanese overran the rubber-producing areas of the Far East. But the agreement between the RFC-financed Rubber Reserve Co., the War Production Board and the Office of Price Administration, fixing a flat price of $25 a ton for scrap rubber, is an encouraging step toward reclaiming vast quantities of used rubber now going to waste.

"In the junk heaps of America," wrote the Truman Committee in its recent report, "is hidden a greater wealth of vital rubber than our enemies could assemble from all sources available to them today." Until the WPB stopped the practice, however, some sections of the country were burning scrap rubber for fuel. And the whole Nation has been very prodigal in its use. Our thinking in regard to rubber has undergone sharp changes in recent months. Still the task of collecting old tires, tubes, garden hose, hot-water bottles, galoshes, rubber toys and so forth remains to be accomplished.

Heretofore scrap rubber has been systematically collected only in the vicinity of conversion plants, and these are concentrated in a few cities. Now the scrap must be reclaimed from every village and farm. That is why the Rubber Reserve Co. has agreed to pay a substantial price for cast-off rubber materials anywhere in the country. The Government will absorb the loss in shipping scrap from distant points to the reduction plants. Dealers everywhere will thus have a special incentive to round up every worn-out article from which rubber can be salvaged.

Obviously, however, the program is not yet complete. A fixed price of $25 a ton will not bring out the most valuable types of scrap rubber. Old inner tubes, for example, could be sold for as much as $160 a ton several months ago. It is doubtful, moreover, whether an undertaking fraught with such national importance can safely be left entirely in the hands of local scrap dealers. The decision to make use of the regular dealers in this field was undoubtedly wise. They have the facilities to collect, sort and ship discarded rubber goods in an orderly way. Something more than this type of routine service is obviously needed, however, to bring about full public cooperation in the venture.

The fact is that the transfer of scrap rubber to the Government has become a patriotic duty, like the purchase of war bonds. Citizens everywhere must be apprised of this obligation they owe to their country, and if a thorough job is to be done systematic house-to-house collections will have to be made after householders have had ample notice to get their scrap rubber assembled. We hope that official Washington will not be satisfied with merely fixing a price calculated to stimulate scrap dealers to greater activity.

Fiscal Problem

The inadequacy of the Government's fiscal program, in view of the immense expenditures looming ahead, is underlined by the limited taxation and savings goals set by Secretary Morgenthau in his Wednesday radio address to the Nation.

Secretary Morgenthau said that he would be satisfied with a new revenue bill yielding $8,700,000,000, plus a voluntary war-bond savings plan bringing in one billion dollars monthly. The Ways and Means Committee is still far short of the Treasury's tax goal, while May war bond sales amounted to only 634 million dollars. However, even supposing that Mr. Morgenthau's hopes are realized, the new taxes and the saved income together would fall woefully short of covering the immense budgetary deficit of the coming fiscal year. The latest Treasury estimates indicate that total Federal expenditures will amount to over 73 billion dollars in 1943 and net receipts (exclusive of new taxes) to approximately 17 billion dollars, leaving a net budget deficit of more than 56 billion dollars. The subtraction of $8,700,000,000 to allow for new taxes would reduce this net deficit to $47,500,000,000.

Every dollar of that prospective deficit is going to swell consumer purchasing power unless it is offset by a dollar of actual savings contributed to the Treasury. Secretary Morgenthau is only hoping at best to sell 12 billions of war bonds to the public at large. Several more billions of bonds will also be disposed of to investment institutions that hold the people's savings. But, according to estimates of the American Bankers Association, all the investment channels outside the commercial banks will probably absorb less than 18 billion dollars of bonds. Consequently, if the Treasury is compelled to borrow over 47 billion dollars in the next fiscal year, approximately 30 billion dollars of bonds will have to be sold on credit to commercial banks.

The dumping of such huge amounts of bonds on the commercial banks would be reflected in a great expansion of deposits, adding correspondingly to the volume of general purchasing power in consumer hands. Mr. Henderson could not hope to keep prices from bursting through official ceilings, if these conditions should be realized. Some measure of inflation is doubtless inevitable, but the danger of its getting out of bounds will be greatly minimized if the Administration will set its sights higher.

It can—and should—put a more effective brake upon consumer spending in the lower income brackets by means of a general sales tax. It should also set a much higher figure for war bond sales, at the same time shifting to some form of compulsory savings. For by this time it is quite evident that the voluntary savings campaign is not going to produce nearly enough money to relieve the pressure on the banks and enable us to avoid the worst perils of deficit financing.

Commandos

The latest arrival in Washington is a man who more than any person typifies the three-service mind. He is Lord Louis Mountbatten, head of the famed commandos. Lord Louis, who is a cousin of Britain's King, is a vice admiral, a lieutenant general and an air vice marshal. In prewar days such a combination would have seemed highly ludicrous. But the commando, if he is to do his job properly, has to be a soldier, a sailor and an airman all rolled into one.

The need for the three-service mind has been thrown up by modern warfare. The services, of course, have always cooperated in time of war. But as Pearl Harbor and Singapore showed, the cooperation has never been close-knit. One reason is the jealousies and rivalries that are bred between separated services. The division is fast breaking down under the impact of changing modes of warfare, and some day it may break down altogether. In other words, all fighting men may head up under one War Department, and will be given the same versatile training which is new reserved for the commandos. At any rate, that type of training is spreading fast in our own armed forces.

Getting At Italy

Within the week Undersecretary of State Welles and Assistant Secretary Acheson have delivered addresses which, it may be taken for granted, we will circulate among the Italian people by every means available. For both addresses are nothing less than an unusually persuasive invitation to Italians to throw out their Fascist masters and to realize that the United Nations are determined to achieve not only victory but also a just and enduring peace.

Mr. Welles, to be sure, was speaking to all enslaved peoples. But no Italian could fail to grasp the significance of his allusion to the "evil men" and "iniquitous systems" accountable for the war. Mr. Acheson, on the other hand, was most specific about Mussolini and about the miseries he has imposed on the Italian people. The Assistant Secretary rightly stressed the fact that victory for America means freedom for Italy in accordance with the principles of the Atlantic Charter, and an end of Mussolini gangsterism. And he made clear that the final choice of a way of life lies with the Italian people.

If, as one is entitled to suppose, these addresses presage an all-out propaganda effort to get Italy out of the war, then we are off to an excellent start. These are not rabble-rousing bids to revolution under threat of savage reprisals. True, both addresses incite Italians to positive action. But the emphasis is precisely where it should be—on the restoration of Italian rights and on the reestablishment of the Italian people as arbiters of their own destiny.

To a once proud nation which has become little more than a German lackey, such reasoned emphasis, devoid of threat, must surely carry a conviction that cannot be found either in the words or actions of a posturing Duce. From now on we must see to it that the truths so ably expressed by Mr. Welles and Mr. Acheson are driven home to the Italian people again and again with equal sincerity—and equal restraint.

DESERTED GRINDSTONE

You will not sing again beneath the shade
Of the gnarly krab at the summer-kitchen door.
The scythe is rusted now; the axe is dulled—
There are no sheep for shearing any more.
Time blunts the tooth-like edge upon the spade.

The vines have choked your thoughts too deep to tell.
A spider moored to a frail, transparent sky
Has staked your silence out. Sometimes a wren
Explores your loneliness, a leaf glides by,
But the hands are stilled that thinned the blade too well.

Forward With Hope

I wonder how many of Washington's secretaries think along the lines of Frances Ann Roper who "looked at war" in your issue of June 1. To me, her views portray an attitude that might be termed "mental isolationism." How are we going to impart courage to one another, to bear each other's burdens, to build a really better world, unless we have faith and courage, determination, and willingness to sacrifice? Hers has been said to be the case for France: material-mindedness, self-indulgence, deficiency in faith. Let her put away the past, in lavender if she wishes, but tell her that she can find "light for the eyes, certainty for the heart, and for the hand, miracles," if she will put her shoulder to the wheel, looking forward with hope, not backward steeped in sentimentalism. We all "want it to be over," but if we sit at our desks "gazing off into space, oblivious of the work we have to do, and thinking about silly little things," it won't be only the war that will be over—it will be the end of a dream and the beginning of a nightmare.

Got Good Treatment

Having read your editorial in this morning's Post, I, as a newcomer to Washington, should like to say that my experience has been quite the contrary to that of those to whom you refer.

Arriving in Washington last February, as a total stranger, I found everyone with whom I came in contact most courteous and eager to help me find comfortable living quarters, and in every way extend to me the courtesies which should be expected of the Capital of our Nation.

The city from which I came, from time to time had just such complaints as you describe and it had never been confronted with the tremendous problem of assimilation which has for some time confronted Washington.

One should not be surprised if the good people here do become somewhat irked at the eccentricities and at times unreasonable demands of people from all over the country who have come here. Yet, my experience with your public agencies, public officials and citizens generally, has invariably been most gratifying, and has at no time made me feel a stranger within your gates.

GRATEFUL NEWCOMER.

Share Taxis

I could solve the taxi jam at Union Station easily. Whenever a passenger boards a cab, let the starter call out: "This cab is going to the Willard. Any other passengers going to the Willard?" etc. Let the ladies board first. There would be no trouble in packing the gentlemen in afterwards. But this has never been done at Union Station! Granted, but we have never had a million people in Washington, coming and going, and using every available taxi. Do not blame the cab companies. Blame the stupidity of those unwilling to do the unusual thing. Share taxis—or don't use them. TAXI.

Western Front Now

I'd like to answer the appeasers and the defeatists who try to tell us that the United States is not prepared to wage an offensive war in Europe. What man has done once man can do again. We landed troops on the European continent in 1917 and we can do it in 1942. We have the ships available and we have a strong military force. Our production of planes, tanks and war materials rival that of the Axis. Powerful allies are eager to work with us while the people of Europe wait only for the Yanks to arrive so that they make their own bid for freedom from the Nazi oppressors.

The time is at hand, the hour has struck. The opening of a second front in Europe now will save many years of war and suffering. We must get Hitler and all fascism before the Soviet oil fields and wheat fields fall into Fascist hands to be used against us. There is only one thing Hitler fears worse than a Western Front and that is a Western Front NOW. Let's give him the business in 1942. E. R.

World Democracy

I wonder how many of your readers would pledge allegiance to World Democracy? We are giving our money, our flesh and blood to the cause of world peace. Let each one of us pledge ourselves to the Light of Democracy—the Light which gives Freedom and Liberty to all people.

"A Pledge to World Democracy—I pledge allegiance to the Light of Democracy, in every nation and country where it exists, whatever the race, color or creed. In the Light of Democracy all men are brothers. In the name of Justice I shall prevent the enemy of Democracy to grow or flourish insofar as it is in my power to do so."

West Point Appointments

The wheels of Congress have always seemed to me to "grind slowly but exceeding fine." It is part of the Democratic process and many of us feel it is an assurance against hasty judgment and serious error.

However, I cannot feel that there is justification for the Senate to delay action on the bill which passed the House granting each member of Congress an additional appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y. The bill provides for the increase of more than 500 cadets to be in effect this year.

Classes begin July 1 and there are any number of boys who have already qualified for entrance and have no appointments. In addition there are others who if appointed are fully prepared to take the examination.

Here's hoping the Senate will take action immediately so that America's potential force of new cadets won't miss classes simply because they couldn't make the last train to West Point!

Military Music

Instead of so many press releases which are never read, let us have a Federal Government more interested in the proper music to be played over the radio. The present radio music being played over our ether waves is a crime and near-treason. It is the duty of statesmen to contemplate: Well, here is the public; now what are we going to do with it? And I say that part of the duty of statesmen now in keeping with that axiom is to see to it that their public is fed military music in large doses!

Music is a spiritual lubricant which can do more to keep a people in good cheer than a thousand well-chosen words! I do not believe our decadent radio music is representative of our great Nation. I do not believe that we are a nation of hillbillies, lullabyists, or college pep artists; but to listen to our radio music, one might get that impression. Our Nation is seething to go to work, to fight, to achieve victory. And our Nation demands the proper music.

Talk about Congress being behind the public! I accuse the radio stations of being so far behind the public that they hardly know of its existence or present problems. We will in this Nation take these matters in hand if these recalcitrant radio bosses do not act on their own accord. Where there is power, there is duty; and when power is misused, that power is soon nationalized!

Army Specialist Corps

Congress would do well to point out to those organizing the new Specialist Corps that it was not created to provide havens and increased salaries for Civil Service chiefs holding War Department administrative posts. These are now pulling wires to be shifted over to this uniformed, battle-free, service from their present civilian positions of long standing in order to substantially boost their present monthly pay and at the same time secure a military garb without any possibility of being called to actual military conflict. A little investigation will show that quite a few clerks who before the war were tucked away in minor administrative capacities are now "administering" at substantially higher rates of pay, but not satisfied with their sudden prosperity already they are looking for better things—and the Army Specialist Corps now being organized is their new turkey. The press of the country told us when this new corps was authorized that it was not to be a roost for the home guard, but was to supply technical personnel that could not be otherwise secured. Certainly it was not to be a device to provide fancy salaries for Civil Service employes unable to obtain such salaries quickly in their present grades. But the march of such employes to attain such positions is now very much on.

Before Teen-Agers

I favor the drafting of boys who are 18 and 19 years of age, AFTER the Draft Boards exhaust their lists of those between 20 and 45, as well as aliens, refugees and parolees.

It is high time to clean out our universities and colleges of those who are not taking courses under military supervision subject to call within a reasonable time and also those who have working wives.

The Post Impressionist

The First Time I Saw Paris

When I had to leave Fez, I wept bitterly. For an hour before the train left, Joyce and I walked up and down in an olive grove near the station and wept and laid plans for meeting again in Paris. I wept at intervals during the day-long journey up to Tangier. My fellow-passengers tried to comfort me with oranges and melon seeds and sympathetic murmurs of "Ah ouilli, ouilli", but I refused to be comforted. I was leaving Fez and the woman I loved and the life I loved, all because I had run out of money and had to go to Paris to make some money-making being out of the question in Fez.

Tangier was enough like Fez, albeit a very tawdry substitute, that I lingered there for a week, bracing myself for the moment when I should leave Moorish soil. Then I went to the ticket office to book passage across to Gibraltar, where I planned to take a P. and O. vessel to Marseilles.

The ticket agent became very, very haughty when I asked for a third-class passage. "We handle only first-class tickets," he informed me. "Only the natives go third-class, you know."

"That's exactly why I want to go third-class," I explained.

The agent carefully looked past me. "In that case, you'll have to go down to the docks and book your passage there," and he returned to his ledgers and the contemplation of the white man's burden.

When I reached the docks, I found that there was no booking to be done. One simply paid the money and got on board. I joined a happy and noisy procession of Arabs, Berbers, sheep, goats, chickens, calves and donkeys up the gangplank and established myself in a comfortable position in the steerage, which was simply the foredeck of the little steamer. I exchanged greetings with my fellow travelers and helped my neighbor tether his goat to the railing. He was a splendid looking Berber from the hills back of Tangier, and he intended, so he said, to sell his goat in Gibraltar for more than enough to pay for the trip. Thus he would have had an exciting journey (to a Moor, any journey is exciting) and still would be a few pennies ahead. I courteously refrained from pointing out that he would also be one goat behind. I, too, love a journey.

I had anticipated a very painful moment when we cast off, but that event passed unnoticed in the excitement of helping my neighbor recapture his goat, who had freed himself by the simple expedient of eating his tether.

Someone began to sing and we all joined in and thus we headed for Djeb-el-Terek with a song on our lips. It was a fine, rousing song we sang, with even the animals joining in and the first-class passengers stared down on us with haughty disdain. I may have been a little conspicuous, as the only "white man," as the first-class people would have put it, in the group, but I did not think of that at the time.

There was a story teller among us, so we seated ourselves in a circle and clapped an accompaniment with our hands as he told us the tale of "Once there was a fish, a big, big fish and he lived at the bottom of the sea." The telling of the tale took us almost across the straits and netted the teller more than enough to pay for his passage. Thus he too had an exciting journey and was still a few pennies ahead.

Then we drew near the Rock, and the harbor was full of men-o'-war, and the town looked neat and clean—too neat and clean, to my eye. I told my friends goodby, and then I did feel sad, for who knew when I should exchange salaams again? I enquired about the ship to Marseilles and learned that the "Rajputana" was not due till the following day, a fact I might easily have found out in Tangier if it had occurred to me to ask.

I walked through the town and grew more and more depressed. It was painfully neat and clean, and the people all wore European dress, which is an offense to the eye, and there was not a silham in sight. I went to the hotel to engage a room for the night and found it full of the people who had looked down on me so haughtily during the passage and who now looked at me even more haughtily. That was not the place for me, decidedly.

In dejection I strolled to the pier, and there I found the Tangier boat and all my friends, ready to take off in an hour or so. It was too simple, after all. I rejoined my friend of the goat, who was happy in the bargain he had made, and soon we were all together again in the steerage, clapping our hands to the recital of "Once there was a prince, a strong and handsome prince, who lived in a palace full of gold," with the Rock of Tarek at our backs and the minarets of Tangier gleaming like beacons ahead. JOHN T. APPLEBY.

First To Assist

I am an elderly woman and I have noticed the problem of seating passengers. I have noticed that 9 times out of 10 that it is not the white collar man but the laborer, the mechanic or general worker who promptly jumps up to give a lady, old or young, his seat, the one he paid for. Also that the aforementioned men are on the alert. They are the very first to spring to the rescue or to help if anything goes wrong or when assistance of any sort is needed. They no doubt have some high school education, they are able-bodied, and they are the salt of the earth when one goes about day by day.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Foundations Made Visible

IT CAN BE no secret, and no special knowledge is needed to see it, that we are engaged in strengthening our alliances with Great Britain, Russia, and China. This is most necessary. The military questions which are being examined in the staff talks at the four capitals cannot be decided efficiently unless the four primary allies are fully agreed not only to fight the war together until the end but to enforce the armistice together until peace can be restored. For if all the Nations are not sure that the present alliance will hold firmly into the peace which will follow the long armistice, they will not make all the commitments now which are needed in order to win the war.

LIPPMANN

We can see the proof by looking at our enemies. They also have an alliance. But the Italians are trying to withhold their fleet and as much of their army as they can. The Vichy French are trying to withhold their fleet. The Hungarians, Rumanians, and Bulgars are trying to conserve their armies. They do this because they distrust the alliance to which they belong and they distrust one another.

IN OUR ALLIANCE, if there is no firm and satisfactory agreement about the post-armistice period, it will be excessively difficult to make all the necessary agreements now for the conduct of the whole World War. These necessary agreements are now in the making through the staff talks, the so-called lend-lease arrangements, and, judging by Mr. Welles's speech, through still wider understandings.

Our alliance has come into being because in a war of survival, the realities of international affairs are infinitely stronger than theories, ideologies, sentiment, and prejudices. It is no accident that the four main centers of the war are Britain, Russia, China, and America. Geography and history have made this alliance inevitable and necessary. In so far as statesmen and their people have failed to understand this, they have incurred terrible risks. In so far as they now understand why this alliance is indispensable to their own vital interests, they will fight the war more successfully and win it sooner and recover from the war more surely.

THE ALLIANCE with China is indispensable to us because it is the one and only conceivable guaranty against an endless, indecisive struggle in the Pacific between Asia and the West, between the yellow and the white peoples. China is an invaluable military ally in our immediate struggle with the Japanese Empire. But the Chinese, as our political allies are indispensable if there is to be any kind of decent future between the West and the East.

So when we ally ourselves with the Chinese, we are not merely looking for help in our war with Japan. We are doing the one thing we must absolutely do if we are to prevent the catastrophe of a whole series of Asiatic wars.

IT OUGHT not to be necessary at this late date to make ourselves realize that the alliance with Britain is predestined in the nature of things, no matter what Britons or Americans think, feel, or say about one another. Stupidity, greed, envy, and childishness may cause confusion and friction. But this in itself is proof that the relations are so inextricably close that the English-speaking peoples are incapable of being politely indifferent to one another.

The fact of the matter is that the British Isles, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and the United States constitute one indivisible system of security against attack from Europe or from Asia. Twice within a generation we have been allies because, when it came to the test, we had no choice but to be allies. No one can imagine a tolerable future for America or for any of the other English-speaking countries in which they were not allies but enemies.

Therefore, in fortifying our alliance with Britain, we move on the solid ground of absolute necessity, in accord with our vital interests and consistently with our ideals. It is perilous to deny it and foolish to ignore it. Let us then allow ourselves to realize that the people who have risen by their own virtue and their own valor from Dunkirk to Cologne and Essen are great allies—strong, steadfast, and brave—with whom we must, with whom we can, walk long together.

THE ALLIANCE with Russia is harder for almost every one in both countries to understand, and obviously it belongs to a different order of intimacy from the alliance with Britain. Nevertheless, we shall fatally misunderstand the nature of things if we do not come to understand that Russia—be it czarist or soviet—is and always has been the natural ally of the United States. The whole history of Russian-American relations is a demonstration that though the two nations have never liked one another ideologically, they have always in great issues aligned themselves together. We have Alaska by purchase from Russia, and Russia in Siberia is our nearest neighbor among all the powers of Europe and Asia. In the Russo-Japanese War of 1905 we intervened diplomatically to end the war, lest Russia be driven out of Siberia. In 1918 we sent troops to Siberia to keep Japan from seizing Siberia. Czarist or bolshevik—it made no difference: when the test came we have always had the sense to be pro-Russian in our own vital interests.

We must continue to be. For Russia is the greatest land power of the Eurasian continent, and no international order can be imagined without Russia as one of its great supports. Russia touches us in the Pacific. Russia touches Japan and China and India and the Middle East and the Balkans and Central Europe and Scandinavia and Germany.

IF THERE is to be peace in the world, that peace has to be made in full partnership between the English-speaking sea and air powers and the massive land power of Russia. The alternative is the loss of the war, chaos after the war, and more interminable wars for generations to come.

That partnership, which events have forced into being, is not a matter of opinion or personal preference. It is the result of one of the decisive judgments of history, which has made visible to us the foundations of power and of interest upon which if we build at all, we must build.

The Gallup Poll

Princeton N. J., June 3.—The British people are more satisfied right now with their government's conduct of the war than they have been at any other time in the past year.

A study by the British Institute of Public Opinion has discovered that public confidence in the government's war policies has, in fact, jumped 28 points in about eight weeks.

Along with increased satisfaction with the war effort public confidence in Winston Churchill as prime minister has risen to within one point of his popularity of July, 1940, before the fall of France.

In March only 35 per cent of the British people questioned in a nation-wide survey of England, Scotland and Wales said they were satisfied with their government's conduct of the war. Today, 63 per cent—about three in every four—are satisfied.

Much of the increased satisfaction undoubtedly has its roots in a feeling that Britain is moving toward the offensive operations for which the British people have been calling. Almost nightly air raids and the quick commando thrusts have done much to bolster this feeling on the part of the British man-in-the-street. The results do not, however, reflect the gigantic Cologne and Essen raids, which undoubtedly would have the effect of increasing the number satisfied with the war effort.

Since June, 1941, the British Institute has put this question to exactly comparable cross-sections of the British population:

	Satisfied	Dissatisfied	Undecided
June, 1941	58%	36%	12%
Nov., 1941	44	38	18
Mar., 1942	35	50	15
April	50	38	12
Today	63	24	13

Fair Enough

Joe Padway

LEST ANYONE forget the interesting personality of Joe Padway, the general counsel of A. F. L. and general counsel during their thieving career, of the filthy racket disguised as a union conducted by George Browne and Willie Bioff, I should like to relate the latest feat of this prosperous altruist, who recently had the effrontery to appear before [illegible] of the American people and tell them what laws they might pass and what laws he would not stand for.

Mr. Padway, born in England, became a pioneer in the profitable exploitation of the union movement in Milwaukee and landed in Washington with a rich practice as general counsel for seven international unions of the A. F. L. and special counsel for others. As general counsel of the A. F. L. he was the attorney general of that rich and powerful subgovernment of the American people and sat in cabinet meetings of the A. F. L. along with his client, the notorious underworld thief and racketeer, George Browne. He also collaborated in bargaining negotiations with Willie Bioff, M. P., or master of prostitutes, whose background as an old brothel keeper was notorious throughout the union racket. He also represented, as general counsel, the Bartenders' Union, which, in Miami, was the private racket of Al Capone's brother-in-law, Danny Coughlin, and, in Chicago, was the racket of another group of the Capone mob.

GEORGE SCALISE of the building service racket, also like Bioff, an old M. P., paid Padway $1000 to "revise his constitution" and Padway indorsed that racketeer's application for a Presidential pardon not long before Scalise was publicly shown to be a front man for still another group of the Capone mob and sentenced to Sing Sing.

Among the seven international unions which provide Padway with the means for living the more abundant life is the Teamsters' International, with headquarters in Indianapolis, whose president is that fine and pious elder statesman of the A. F. L., Mr. Dan Tobin, a member of the A. F. L. cabinet or executive council. Notwithstanding his piety, and well knowing Browne's character, Mr. Tobin nevertheless forebore to throw the crook out of the cabinet because he placed political unity within the council above decency and the honest treatment of rank and file workers. Like William Green, Tobin was content to let politics take her course with the result that publicity and United States Attorney Mathias Correa of New York had to remove Brown from the necks of helpless workers.

Mr. Tobin is a fine American with the reservation that he does not trust the public courts and has denounced as a lower form of vermin than the unspeakable scab any member, however sore oppressed, who dares to exercise his American right to appeal to the courts for justice. Although Mr. Padway, as a lawyer, is an officer of the court, he finds it within his ethics to represent this organization, whose president expressed this preference for private union courts which may be conducted by racketeers acting in the role of judge, jury and defendant.

IN CINCINNATI, of late, a group of rebellious members of 11 local teamsters' unions, subsidiaries of Mr. Tobin's international, and having 10,000 members, brought suit and grave charges against Mr. Brocky Farrell, who had been sent in as trustee by Mr. Tobin following some trouble many years ago. A trustee in such cases occupies a position similar to that of Adolf Hitler's governor general in Poland or Czecho-Slovakia. He is set over the rank and file without their vote or consent and is accountable only to international headquarters. Indeed, in the teamsters' union there is a constitutional question whether even Mr. Tobin, having once named a trustee, may remove him or call him to account. The Cincinnati rebels charged that Mr. Farrell was a dictator, that he had not properly accounted for vast sums of union money and, most heinous of all sins, that he had authorized numbers of his subjects to cross the picket lines of other unions.

For a few terrible days it appeared that the intimate affairs of this group of Mr. Tobin's subject unions might be exposed to the public courts so Mr. Padway rushed to Cincinnati and saved the day. The suit and the charges were abjectly withdrawn and elections were ordered, but only with a stipulation by Mr. Padway that rebel factioneers refrain from impugning the character of Mr. Farrell or his representatives with reminiscences or allegations, however true.

For these brief but talented services the court allowed Mr. Padway $2000, payable out of the earnings of the local workers who were gagged by his insistence that a man so fine as Brocky Farrell, himself grown wealthy with the years, be spared such pain of soul as might be caused by public scrutiny of his conduct.

Mexico's Choice

By Virginia Prewett

Keystone In Hemispheric Solidarity

WHAT MEXICO does is important for a number of reasons. After Brazil and Argentina, it is the largest Latin-American nation. Brazil's European blood is predominantly Portuguese. Argentina is almost entirely a mixture of European races. Mexico is the largest of the countries where the Spanish civilization overlay a numerous Indian population. This gives it many characteristics in common with all the nations of Central America and the South American West Coast. Its economy also is similar to those of West Coast countries—a farming nation in which mineral exports have been developed by foreign interests.

Mexico City is the largest publishing center among these nations and all through Central America, Colombia, Venezuela, Bolivia and especially in Ecuador, Peru and Chili, Mexican-printed books carry an influence that cannot be underestimated. When these nations look toward us, they see Mexico prominent in the foreground.

Mexico is the place where our Latin-American policy has gone through a spectacular trial-and-error process. The error phases have given it a strategic position in world politics, for they made it the most likely spot for a non-New World power to try to drive the wedge that would nullify the Monroe Doctrine and kill the growth of a sound protection for the Western Hemisphere.

GERMANY, which has collected geopolitical fact on Latin-America for at least a generation and a half, began trying to lay hands on Mexico as far back as the time of Diaz, when German bankers offered large loans to his financial adviser, Limantour. News that the Germans were shipping arms to a faction there led Woodrow Wilson to send our Navy to Mexican waters in 1914 and brought Mexican-American relations to their worst point in decades. Discovery of a plan to woo Mexico into a German-backed war on us (the Zimmermann notes) hastened our war declaration in 1916. The German idea of making a tool of Mexico did not originate with Hitler.

He gave it new life, however. Rauschning quotes him as saying, "If I had Mexico, our Latin-American problem would be solved." Germany had expanded commercially in Mexico during the depression, when many American firms were forced to close. As Hitler rose to power, a new opportunity opened up—the oil disputa. German imports increased from 6 to 30 per cent of the total, Nazis agitated in the oilfields, and, after expropriations, Germany stepped in to "rescue" Mexico by bartering for oil the supplies and machinery that Mexico desperately needed and could not get anywhere else.

The Nazis turned the German trade network into the most ruthless espionage and propaganda machine in this hemisphere. Every means was used to cajol, mislead, persuade, flatter and intimidate to bribe the Mexican people. The Banco Germanico de la America del Sud had ample funds and one of its staff became the NSDAP (Nazi party) payoff man. The German Embassy had a large staff, money and many unofficial aides.

Meanwhile Japan moved in. Only plans for a future war with us could explain why they colonized barren North Mexico wastes, gained control of West Coast fishing and coastal shipping and got unprofitable salt mines in Lower California. They leased oil lands on the Gulf side that had no commercial value but put Japan in the oil business and gave them a chance to plant caches on Mexico's wild coasts. The Japanese sold merchandise at half our price and promised cheaper goods after disposing of us. Disliked by Mexicans, they tried to capitalize on race by claiming a remote common ancestry with the Mexican Indians.

WHEN WAR broke out in Europe, Mexico City became a headquarters for Axis intrigue. As Mexican resentment against bald German meddling rose, they went to ground and used pro-Franco Spanish as fronts in a fantasia of propaganda and plot.

It was plain to Americans in a position to know what was going on that we were not making the slightest attempt to sell the Mexican people the way the Axis was. Slanted American "news" releases did not hit Mexican newspaper desks at the same time with American advertising contracts because there were no such releases. As the situation became acute, through 1940, even pro-American Mexicans began to be alarmed. They pointed out to me repeatedly during that time that we were being pushed off the map so far as fighting Axis fire with fire was concerned.

It was undeniably true. American firms kept on operating for profit rather than to gain political influence. The American Embassy's small, hard-working staff had neither time nor money to give champagne luncheons and dinners for key Mexicans. They had no funds to work underground with. Our unofficial activities were nil.

Every action that the United States Government took while the oil dispute was on and the Axis was moving in was held strictly to our pledged word to respect the sovereignty of all the Latin-American nations. Our attitude was influenced by an official desire and a growing popular demand that the greatest national interest should determine policy.

Latin America had heard us repudiate dollar diplomacy and the Big Stick and they watched to see if we meant it.

When we agreed at Lima in late 1938 not to use force to collect "public or contractual debts or to support claims of an exclusively pecuniary origin," Latin-American nations began to consider common measures against the Axis. Mexico, though depending on Germany as a market for oil unsalable elsewhere, expelled Nazi agents in 1938. In 1940 they threw out the king-pin, Arthur Dietrich, nephew of Otto Dietrich, of Hitler's inner circle.

As war cut the trade-propaganda machine from its German sources, it swung to our goods. Our blacklist stopped this in 1941. The German threat that if Mexico did not protest the blacklist they would suffer for it commercially after the war met with a sharp Mexican rebuff.

The American republics had agreed at Havana in 1940 that any one of them could consult any other on defense and this made it possible for the United States to ask Mexico directly and officially for what we wanted from them. Military talks were announced in March, 1941, and an arrangement permitting American military planes in transit to use their airports was worked out. In mid-1941, Mexico embargoed sale of strategic supplies to the Axis. This cut Japan off from an important source of mercury and other war materials. Mexico earmarked strategic surpluses for us. By presidential decree, warships of any American republic can anchor in Mexican harbors.

SUBSEQUENT agreements show that Mexico, as was provided for under the Inter-American plan, also told us directly and plainly what we could do toward their national security. To assure internal stability, old claims were settled and the oil question finally arbitrated. The Mexican peso was stabilized and silver purchases were scheduled to strengthen their national finances through the war crisis.

The Export-Import Bank made low-interest loans to push the Pan-American Highway and other communications vital to Mexican and American defense. Other loans to develop Mexico internally will be made. A trade agreement is being discussed and oil, long the political and economic key to Mexico, is one of the products being considered for concessions.

When the American republics consulted at Rio on what to do about the attack on us, Mexico took outstanding leadership against the Axis. Latin America listened to what its representative had to say, because these nations know that Mexico, small in comparison with great powers and economically weak, has time and again refused to be manipulated, bribed, bought or forced in international relations.

They had seen Mexico buck us consistently during the Dark Ages of our foreign policy. They saw them fling a sharp report and walking papers at the British Minister when he sent a peremptory note on oil in 1938. They know that Mexico has refused to be Germany's puppet in two wars and that they reserve strictly for themselves the right to decide what is best for their national interests. Mexico has earned their respect and there is no doubt that its stand greatly influenced several smaller nations that have also been propagandized and threatened by the Axis.

When Germany began punitive ship sinkings, Mexico became first of the large Latin-American nations to go to war.

In a showdown that climaxes not only a decade but half a century of international maneuvering in Mexico, that country, in the first declared war in its history, will fight against the nations that used streamlined power politics—underhand, indirect, subversive and finally coercive methods—to try to force it into a preconceived international pattern. It will fight at the side of the nation that used an apparently clumsy, old-fashioned, slow, and wordy semiparliamentary system of consultation and negotiated agreements to ask directly for what it wanted and to find out in turn what Mexico needs.

The proof of the policy is in the fighting.

A Great Bicentenary

Oglethorpe: Forgotten Hero

A MONTH from now falls the 200th anniversary of a battle, fought on American soil, which was one of the small number of decisive battles of all time.

Most historians are agreed that the issue of the conflict at the Bloody Marsh, near St. Simon's Island, Georgia, on July 7, 1742, terminated the fear of Spanish dominion in what is now the United States, and decided that the civilization of the South should thenceforth be Anglo-Saxon.

But for this victory the United States would have stopped at Virginia; all South of that would have been Mexico.

As an Englishman I feel that some apology is due for drawing the attention of American readers to this anniversary. The battle, however, was fought in colonial times: its victor, James Oglethorpe, like William Penn, whose main work also was done in America, was born in England. And perhaps I may be excused a trivial personal intrusion in that Oglethorpe, having been associated with certain institutions with which I have been also associated in a minor capacity: Oxford University, Eton College, the parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, London, have to me been something closer than mere objects of hero-worship. I have many times visited the State he founded, and, at the suggestion of Miss Margaret Mitchell, whose knowledge of the history of Oglethorpe and his times is unrivaled, I also have traversed the remote terrain of the battle. Finally it was my privilege to donate recently to the people of Georgia a statue of Oglethorpe which is now to be seen at Atlanta, the capital city of the State, which previously lacked a memorial of this kind.

OGLETHORPE to all who study his character and career sooner or later becomes inevitably a hero whether they be American or British. But apparently very few people living today have studied Oglethorpe. He appears to have been forgotten both here and in England. Few except members of southern Georgian historical societies seem to know much about him. I doubt if one English undergraduate in a thousand has ever heard of him.

I have made some inquiry recently to ascertain: Whether any celebration — State, Nation-wide, or, as it should be, Atlantic-wide, of this 200th anniversary is projected, and could hear of none.

It is not to the credit of America, nor England, nor any of the English-speaking peoples that the figure of this very great man should be allowed to rest in mutual oblivion. At New York University, that well endowed pantheon, the "Hall of Fame," contains five portraits of some 70 great Americans of all time. These "immortals" I understand, have been selected by a nationally representative committee of 100 Americans distinguished in all fields of activity. The "immortals" include statesmen, poets, soldiers, orators, philanthropists, administrators, artists and reformers. Oglethorpe is not there. How did the committee overlook him? For such was the scope of his genius that Oglethorpe embodied in his person and a dozen great men: A great soldier, a great administrator, a great philanthropist, a great reformer, a great artist, and a great Christian gentleman. He has that many claims to fame. And I do not think it could be denied that in the Hall of Fame are many pale figures whose right to be there could far more justifiably be challenged than his: William Cullen Bryant, Alice Freeman Palmer, Peter Cooper, Asa Gray, Simon Newcomb, Joseph Stony, Edwin Booth and many others—all people of repute in their spheres but inferior in stature to Oglethorpe.

Oglethorpe had been originally commissioned at the recommendation of Marlborough. At Bloody Marsh he employed with brilliant effect some of the tactics which he had learned under Prince Eugene: after a fruitless siege of St. Augustine he had withdrawn and contrived that the Spaniards should take the offensive. They fitted out an armada of 50 ships to sweep the heretics forever from the North American settlements. The lay to the Southern States was St. Simon's Island. Oglethorpe drew the enemy across a terrain of his own choosing. He had even planned the time when the thistles should be at their prickliest to slow down the bare-footed Spanish infantry who outnumbered his own men by 7 to 1. By stratagem he led them to believe that an English fleet was on its way to his relief and arranged that some small vessels should appear on the horizon to lend color to the deception. Even a Japanese general of 1942 might have gotten ideas from him.

So complete was the victory against such overwhelming odds that some contemporaries thought it the result of Divine intervention. Whitefield said: "The deliverance of Georgia from the Spaniards is such as cannot be paralleled but by some instance out of the Old Testament."

AS ADMINISTRATOR Oglethorpe founded the thirteenth State and ruled with justice and humanity the diverse elements which composed it: English debtors, Austrian religious refugees, Scottish highlanders, Indians and Negroes. As reformer he prohibited slavery as early as 1733; forbade the consumption of spirits while allowing light wines and beers; advocated universal free trade, and the abolition of compulsory impressment of sailors while insisting on military training for all men capable of bearing arms.

As philanthropist he instituted and supervised a colony for poor debtors, taking no salary, profits, perquisites nor land but "employing his own fortune in the furtherance of his charitable designs," brought Charles and John Wesley to America, succored expelled Protestants from Europe, "inspired the Indians with confidence and brought them up as Christians." The model cities of Savannah and Augusta — with streets broader than those of modern Washington—planned by him in their entirety stand to this day as a monument to the excellence of his taste in the civic arts.

As an instance of Oglethorpe's humanity may be quoted a letter from one who accompanied him on his second voyage to America during which he was continuously sick: "(Oglethorpe) is a pattern of fatherly care and tender compassion, being always ready night and day to give up his own ease and convenience to serve the poorest body among the people . . . he usually eats salt provisions that he may give the fresh to the sick." And this was a country squire, an English M. P., a major general in the British army, Eton, Oxford and the Guards, an imperialist.

At the Revolution Oglethorpe strongly espoused the cause of the colonists. When nearly 90 he called on John Adams, first U. S. A. minister to England, who said of his visitor: "He expressed great esteem and regard for America and much regret at the misunderstanding between the two countries." Boswell, the biographer of Johnson (whose patron Oglethorpe had been), planned to write a life of Oglethorpe. Had he fulfilled his intention it is likely that Oglethorpe's name by general consent would rank with the greatest Americans.

An English scholar, Sir Richard Livingstone, president of Oglethorpe's college at Oxford, wrote me recently: "I quite agree with you about Oglethorpe. Neglect of him is not due to any defect of his but to the capricious nature of public opinion. He has never been advertised . . . He was a fine character and he did a great work." ERIC UNDERWOOD.

Old City 'Forever Lost,' Says Cologne Paper

By the Associated Press

Bern, Switzerland, June 5.—The first Cologne newspapers since the monster R. A. F. raid of last Saturday night reached neutral territory today, carrying the somber statement that the historic Rhineland city, as its people have known it, is "forever lost."

The Koelnische Zeitung, resuming publication on Wednesday of this week, described Cologne as "still smoking ruins," with some fires still alight and "whole quarters of the town empty."

(A German dispatch quoted by the Stockholm newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, said all the property of 10,000 persons had been destroyed; that the central district of the city was ruined and that the damage has reached deep into the suburbs.)

Said the Koelnische Zeitung:

Avoids Mention of Cathedral

"The entire aspect of the city is completely changed. Tens of thousands of inhabitants during that night learned with horror that the individual is powerless against fate."

The newspaper avoided saying whether the vast and magnificent Gothic cathedral, famous the world over, had been hit, but it did say that "most of the precious monuments which have held a chief place in German art were more or less destroyed by fire and are irreparable."

It went on:

"Those who survived the night of May 30 and who on the morrow looked at the city were fully aware that they had bade farewell forever to their Cologne, because the damage is enormous and because the integral part of the character and even the traditions of the city is gone forever.

"Everywhere the same spectacle—indescribable destruction. Only shattered windows and walls are seen.

"Around the church of St. Martin and the church of St. Mariaim Capitol the ruins still are smoking."

Children Being Sent to Holland

A Berlin dispatch to the Zurich newspaper, Neue Zurcher Zeitung, quoted the following statement to the people of Cologne from the local gauleiter:

"Apart from the heavy damage which the city has endured, there is hardly anyone among us who has not been affected personally by the consequences of this night. We still shall need much patience and a long time to overcome the worst effects of this attack."

(German broadcasts Friday quoted a Hague dispatch as saying several thousand children from the German Rhineland would arrive in the Netherlands shortly to spend the summer with Dutch families. Four hundred already are said to have reached Holland. This was described as an "exchange of children between Germany and Holland which has been taking place for many years.")

Browne-Bioff Faction Wins Union Election

Columbus, Ohio, June 5 (AP).—Officers who served in the Browne-Bioff administration of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators (A. F. L.) were reelected by an overwhelming majority tonight.

A faction headed by Vincent Jacobi of New York sought at the annual convention to replace them on the ground they failed to "prevent or protest against" activities of George Browne, former president, and William Bioff who were sentenced to a Federal prison for extorting money from motion picture executives.

Richard F. Walsh of Brooklyn, N. Y., who succeeded Browne as president, received 644 votes to 206 for William T. Bennett of Washington, D. C., and 33 for Jacobi.

FROM BARBER TO AIRFORCE MECHANIC

Creative Soldier—Cartoonist

An Air Force Mechanic Is Born

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Nobody knows what a soldier thinks or how he feels, and why, so much as a soldier himself does.

For that reason, it required Pvt. Paul Snyder of the public relations staff at Keesler Field, Miss., to capture in glittering caricature the making of a mechanic in that station's Air Force Technical Training School. The enormity of the task which faces him when he arrives at Keesler just out of civil life, a barber or clerk or tailor, to be made into a competent aircraft mechanic, is staggering.

In Pvt. Snyder's cartoons you see the neophyte mechanic struggling with the demons of a strange, new world; with principles and machines as new to him as life is to a baby. You are given brief, intimate glimpses into his encounters with these things, with engines, with hydraulics expressed in retractable landing gear, with endless theory set down in textbooks officially referred to as technical training manuals. Soldiers at Keesler Field are studying; they have time for little else with a war on and aircraft mechanics so badly needed.

These pictures were conceived and executed by Pvt. Snyder. Our thanks to him and to Capt. Harry D. Kurtz, Keesler Field public relations officer, who aided in obtaining them.

Take Good Care of Your Household Feathers, WPB Has Curtailed the Future Supply

Mrs. Frances Freeland is shown here testing the condition of her pillows filled with goose down. Since goose down is on the list of curtailed house furnishings it means pillows cannot be replaced readily. The wool-filled comforter is going to the dry cleaners to be stored until needed. Miss Freeland is also being patriotic in her cotton Mayflower shirtfrock of flowered voile, accented with tortoise-like buttons and grosgrain ribbon. Goose and Duck Plumage No Longer May Be Used in Civilian Merchandise; Chickens and Turkeys Take Over

This is one of a series dealing with war production orders as they affect the housewife.

By Martha Ellyn

IF YOU think that goose and duck feathers don't play a part in your life, think twice before you engage in a pillow fight and scatter those down-like bits. Much of the luxurious comforts of our lives have been furnished by the web-footed creatures—the goose and duck—whose feathers and down go into making sleeping pillows, down-filled comforters and the soft seats of chairs and divans.

Martha Ellyn

To insure that our service men will have comfortable sleeping bags, pillows and other feather and down-filled military articles, the War Production Board has given an order which specifies that goose and duck feathers of certain qualities cannot be used in the manufacture of civilian merchandise.

That means that we must take care of our feather-filled household furnishings as well as many other items made from critical materials. Without comfortable pillows and comforters we won't get the proper rest that gives clear heads and capable hands for doing our daily work.

Stocks Limited

Washington merchants report that their stock of pillows and comforters, goose and duck feather-filled, is very limited. However, there is an adequate supply of chicken and turkey feather-filled pillows. While turkey and chicken feathers do not have the "spring" of goose and duck feathers, they are comfortable and serviceable and will last at least for the duration. Their cost is not nearly so much as that of goose and duck feathers. However they will not last as long because they are less resilient.

But whatever feathers fill your pillows, they must be given care. Many excellent housekeepers neglect the care of pillows. They will slip spic and span, beautifully embroidered pillowcases over crushed, lifeless and soiled pillows. A pillow needs renovating and washing the same as other household items.

Pillows should be washed or renovated every five to seven years, but pillows should also be aired thoroughly at least once a month by placing them near an open window.

Simple Tests Given

How can the homemaker determine when a pillow needs renovating? By the simple following tests:

Shake and plump up a pillow. Hold it out on the palm of your hand. If it remains plump it is in good condition, but if it collapses and sags down at either end, it needs revitalizing.

Lay pillow flat and press center with hand. If it rebounds, it still has life, but if the depression remains, it needs renovation.

Shake the pillow vigorously from one end. If the feathers settle noticeably at the opposite end it shows that the feathers have lost resiliency. Also the feathers may be broken, or dust may cause the weight.

Pound the pillow vigorously. If dust flies from the pillow or if the ragged quills can be felt through the ticking, the pillow needs renovation.

Local laundries offer pillow renovation and washing service. The feathers and down are removed from the ticking, washed or steamed, sterilized with air or steam at high temperature and fluffed for springiness. The ticking is washed separately. A careful marking system assures you that the feathers from each pillow are treated separately.

Specify Type

If the laundries have feathers and down available, and you want new ones added, you should specify the type of feathers desired. There's no difference in the comfort provided by gray or white down or feathers, but the white ones are more costly.

Comforts, comforters, puffs, or whatever name you call such bed covers, filled with feathers, down or wool, present a cleaning problem. Manufacturers and retailers recommend that these warmth-givers be dry cleaned. Since wool is also a critical material, and moths have no hesitancy about "going for" wool, it is necessary that wool-filled comforters be cleaned thoroughly before storing for the summer months.

June May See New Record for Milk Production

June milk production on farms may reach the largest United States monthly total ever recorded. June is always the peak milk month and last year's total was 5,665,000,000 quarts.

Indications are that the total for 1942 probably will be the largest in United States history. In fact, no other country comes anywhere near producing as much milk as America's 26 million cows, says the Milk Industry Foundation.

War is chiefly responsible for the increased United States flow of milk, although it has been steadily growing for years.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman's Progressive Alcoholism Changes Daughter's Early Pride in Her to Shamed Detestation, as Gentle Father Ages Visibly Under Strain; How Help Them?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For the past five years, my mother has been a drunkard. I have been living under a cloud of shame during these years,—trying to conceal from co-workers and acquaintances the true nature of my mother's "illness." I have reached the point where I no longer care for my mother. In fact, I positively hate her at times for her weakness. At first I felt sorry for her; but now I know she is just self-indulgently escaping from reality.

So far as I know, mother has no reason to dissipate in such disgusting fashion. Father has a steady and plentiful income; I have an extraordinarily good position; we have a delightful little place in the country; a car and all material comforts. And despite mother's vice, father is still truly in love with her. He has always provided the best of liquor in our home and while he is not in favor of drinking except on social occasions, he believes that if one drinks openly and companionably, there will be no gluttonous secret indulgence in alcohol.

My brother recently left home to serve his country;—doubly glad to do so, in order to be spared the daily sordid spectacle which mother presents. But don't get the idea he went just on that account. He is a fine, upstanding, courageous man, glad to die fighting in an honorable cause. However, to get back to mother: I believe she will never pull herself together now; because her alcoholic spells are becoming more frequent. My dad, who is the sweetest soul alive, merely frowns when he comes home at night to find her in that condition. After supper, we all sit together in the living room, spending a quiet evening. But I can see dad visibly aging under the strain.

I live from day to day in an emotional atmosphere akin to fear. My mother threatens at times to end her life; although the doctor says she is perfectly sane and that we need not fear that her mind is slipping. I am ashamed to say she has lately developed a sly, suspicious attitude toward her family; and sometimes stoops to mean and petty things, which she would, at one time, have recoiled from doing. I well remember the day when I was proud of my mother, but my respect for her is fast disappearing.

If you can give us any suggestions for helping mother to overcome this vice, I shall be very grateful; and I know dad would appreciate it immensely. I read your column every day and have confidence in your judgment.

DIANE.

Thus, so long as he faithfully accords her a cherishing brand of responsibly minded guardianship,—as obviously he intends to do, until death does them part,—I believe considerations of moral prudence require you to strongly discipline your hysterical tendency to emotionally identify yo self unduly with their collective experience.

Under the circumstances, it is not for you to seek,—on distrait impulse,—to become policy-maker in shaping their destiny, individually or inseparably. Your drift toward neurasthenia,—which discloses your inability to keep your own footing in the situation, while fruitlessly trying to succor their happiness,—indicates that, actually, your obsessive, frustrated preoccupation with this problem beyond your ken and sphere of influence, is worsening rather than improving the general situation.

The one great contribution to your father's peace of mind potentially within your power to make, is that of safeguarding your own personality health and social stability, now sorely taxed by your mother's performance. Unquestionably he would rather you were happier at some distance, than that you were inconsolably miserable at close range. So, if maintenance of your poise,—and the cultivation of saving, philosophical detachment toward the tragic state of affairs,—is dependent upon living apart from them, begone at once, secure in the knowledge that in so doing, you will be preventing what you can of wanton destruction M. H.

Girl's First Duty Is to Herself

DEAR DIANE: If your mother is sufficiently unhappy about her alcoholism to wish to overcome the habit, there is hope for her;—provided she will accept (and act on) the fact that she needs and must have help in recovering temperate self control. A local diagnostician tells me that notable work in reclaiming alcoholics is being done by Dr. Robert V. Seliger, instructor in psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University medical school, and assistant visiting psychiatrist at Johns Hospital.

When a person has become addicted to alcoholic excess in mature years, his most desperate resolves to reform usually are without avail (as most alcoholics live to learn from bitter experience),—unless bulwarked by a steadying regime of medically supervised convalescence, undertaken in surroundings which automatically divorce him (during his strength-gathering period) from his erstwhile "every day" associates and habitual activities. As the diagnostician observes: "For most alcoholics, women particularly, who acquire the habit well along in life, such resolutions are utterly untrustworthy, outside a nurturing regime. However, a youngster just falling into the habit might resolve to break off and keep his pledge, without benefit of special assistance."

In proposing Dr. Seliger's help for your mother, this diagnostician sketched the type of care he (Dr. Seliger) has found most effective in promoting recovery from alcoholism. But considerations of ethical propriety,—from the medical and journalistic vie ',—prevent me from publicizing that program here. If you wish to explore the subject further, I suggest you communicate with me by telephone.

So much for the question of how your mother might be helped to "overcome her vice." In the event she isn't interested in striving heroically to make that contribution to the family welfare—the unhappy state of affairs then confronts you with a problem, namely: the probem of working out a personally protective adjustment to (a) her weakness, and (b) the prospect of her progressive demoralization As has been said, "What can't be cured must be endured"—and if she persists in her alcoholic dissipation, with the result that destructive emotions of fear, shame and detestation take increasing toll of your nerves in close filial relation to her, you (with your economically self sufficing position) should establish residence elsewhere, as a "must" means of safeguarding your mental health.

Your mounting rage at your mother's supposedly passive surrender to alcoholism is doubtless indirectly inspired by its markedly exhausting corollary effect upon your beloved father. But so long as he, in his saintly patience and indestructible devotion to her, sees fit to bear the tragedy with stoic resignation,—for reasons best known to himself,—it seems to me the part of wisdom for you to respect his attitude. You must realize that in a phychic or spiritual sense, they are "one flesh;" and that he is subscribing to the loftiest concept of marital allegiance or responsibility, in quietly bearing her cross with her. It appears, also, that he has the seasoned strength of character, or compensatory resources of inscrutable kind, to weather the crisis without losing his inner poise.

You are less closely affiliated with her. One may truly say that your psychic and social obligations to her are less than his,—since you are but the incidental by-product of their relationship.

What to Wear For Weekend's Pleasure Time

Hollywood, Calif.—Leisure time has become one of the most precious gifts of today's woman. She seldom has a chance to relax during the week, so weekends are her most valued possession. They provide her a few hours to catch up on her rest, her fun and play in the sun.

Half the joy of the busy woman's weekend is in donning the clothes she hasn't time to wear during the week. Brenda Marshall is eager for the coming weekend so she can go bicycling in her new sports purchase. It consists of a pair of sawed-off pink denim slacks, a pink cotton shirt striped in black and a short-sleeved, black denim bolero.

Joan Leslie, after a week's exacting work in "The Hard Way," prefers the beach for her relaxation. Her all-white jersey bathing suit is the most flattering of a tan and Joan's red hair. It is styled with very brief shorts, and bra top.

Apt Beauty Pupil

Bette Davis didn't mind being made up as a homely spinster in a recent picture because it gave her a shocking warning, she said, "as to how I would look if I let myself go"

Constant Care Is Required To Keep Looks and Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT it takes to take the glamor out of a movie star is a thick waist, padded hips, shapeless legs and corkscrew curls.

When they made Bette Davis up for an old maid part, she got no favors. She got the works and she looked like a gal without a chance of romance. When she saw herself, she said: "That is exactly the way I would look if I let myself go. I feel sure of it—and it is not heartening."

'Tis sad but true and the same would apply to any woman who let herself go. Quite a few do unintentionally, for the change does not take place overnight. The thickening of the figure and dulling of the hair are so gradual they come to seem natural. But both your figure and your hair are just about what you make them.

In the picture, of course, Bette goes to work on herself and gets beautiful. Anyone with the same determination can do as much for herself.

Brushing Restores Sheen

It isn't enough to have hair set regularly. Some women who are as regular as Saturday with their trips to the hairdresser have their hair so set it looks as though it had rigor mortis. And they don't comb out the curl for three days, hoping to keep it in. By that time they look a sight.

Have your beauty operator brush your curls out until they look natural—you will look prettier. And after a few days start brushing it again yourself. That is the way you can keep your hair looking lovely between appointments. Brushing restores the sheen and helps the shape of your hair-do. Use a brush as you would a comb.

Certainly, you can fix your figure. To make your waist supple and young, combine a stretch, twist and bend. Clasp your hands high overhead and stretch up through the middle. Keep your hips perfectly still and circle at the waist. Make the muscles at the waist work. Rotate first in one direction, then the other.

You can't do better by your hipline than to adopt the old side-scissors exercise as a steady: Lie on one side on the floor with that arm pillowed under head, the other hand out on the floor in front as a brace, both legs straight down, one on top of the other. Swing back and forth—hard. Get a rhythmic, scissorslike action. Keep swinging for 25 counts, rest, and repeat on other side.

From that go into the side bicycle. Get in the same starting position and draw one leg high up toward the chest while the other remains straight down. Then thrust the flexed leg straight down and draw the other one up. All you do is pedal—keep pedaling for 10 counts on one side, then the same number on the other.

Dominican Legation to Move to Permanent Site

Reception Given to Honor Mr., Mrs. Newman On Eve of Purchase of New Legation

By Elizabeth Henney

"I hope this is a farewell party to this legation," said Senora de Troncoso, wife of the Dominican Minister, at the reception they gave yesterday afternoon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver P. Newman, at the present legation at 2101 Connecticut Avenue.

She added that she wasn't sure, however, for the site of the new legation, which the Dominican Government is about to purchase, has not been definitely decided. It will probably be on Sixteenth Street if the present chatelaine of the legation has anything to say about it, for she is very much in favor of a certain large residence there that is surrounded by spacious grounds.

Meanwhile, whether or not it was a farewell fete, it was a very merry affair, with the guests of honor surrounded during the afternoon by a number of their old friends from Washington.

Mr. Newman, who is on leave from his present job in Trujillo City in Santo Domingo, is the official representative of the Dominican bondholders, under the auspices of both the Dominican and United States governments.

He and Mrs. Newman, who came to town about three weeks ago, will be off for a jaunt across the country in the very near future; Mrs. Newman to visit her son, Capt. Gilbert Bixby in Long Beach, Calif., and Mr. Newman to visit his brother, John Newman in St. Paul, Minn.

Ever since their arrival in town, they have been beseiged with fetes by their many friends, for Mr. Newman, who was of the class of 1901 at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, was for many years a newspaper man; during Woodrow Wilson's term in the White House was appointed President of the Board of Commissioners for the District, and he and Mrs. Newman have made Washington their home and headquarters since 1910. During this trip here they are making the Mayflower their headquarters, and after their separate jaunts around the country will rejoin each other here in a month or two before returning to Santo Domingo.

Senora de Troncoso, who received her guests informally, was gowned in a black, street length frock with a diamond brooch at the neckline and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Newman wore a gay flowered print silk jersey frock with a white background, and a wide brimmed green balibuntl hat.

Generally assisting during the afternoon were Senora de Troncoso's cousin, Senorita Cynthia Leon, and Senora Esperanz Alfaro-Ricard, who arrived just a week or so ago from Trujillo City, and who will visit the Troncosos here for about two months.

Centering the tea table was a long mirror on which rollicked a silver boat loaded with pink and white dahlias and other spring blossoms. Piece de resistance of the afternoon was a delightful Dominican delicacy with a completely unpronouncable name. A sort of a meat patty with tiny black currants to flavor it, it was encased in a paper thin pie dough shell and deep fried in peanut oil. All of the ingredients according to Senora de Troncoso, are products of Santo Domingo, and the results, while undoubtedly fattening, are irresistably tasty. The special beverage of the afternoon was frozen daquiri, also a special recipe of the hostess.

Among those who dropped in during the afternoon were Mrs. William E. Borah, Admiral William Brent Young, paymaster general of the Navy, and Mrs. Young; Mr. and Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke of the State Department, Miss Eula McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Ford, Senora de Vega, the Military Attache of the Legation, Maj. Salvador Cobian, and Senora de Cobian and many more.

Dr. Henry F. Grady Feted on Return From India Mission

India was definitely the subject of conversation last evening at the informal, "After 9" party given in honor of former Assistant Secretary of State, Dr. Henry F. Grady, who has just returned from India where he headed an economic mission for this Government. Mr. and Mrs. Barnet Nover, hosts for the occasion, had stressed informality since many of the guests (due to the gas rationing situation) came via bus streetcar or on foot.

Bowls of garden roses filled the spacious rooms and formed a centerpiece for the table in the dining room where a late buffet was served. Over 40 guests dropped in during the evening to greet the guest of honor on his return from his mission.

The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Claude Wickard were among the early arrivals as were Senator Alben Barkley and his daughter, Mrs. Max Truitt, Senator and Mrs. Joseph O'Mahoney, Representative and Mrs. John Vorys, and Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt.

Lieut. Reginald O'Grady, son of the guest of honor was being congratulated upon winning his bars by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richberg, and a number of other friend including the Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Waring.

Still others who dropped in included Undersecretary of the Treasury Daniel W. Bell and his daughter Kathleen, Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley, Mrs. Oscar Chapman, the Cuban Military and Air Attache, Col. Relipe Munilla; Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien, Mrs. Justin Miller, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Harry Beyster, who was a member of the Grady Mission, and several more.

Audrey Jones To Be Bride of Ensign Boehck

The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones are making plans for a trip to Houston, Tex., later in the month, when their granddaughter, Miss Audrey Jones, will become the bride of Ensign John Albert Boehck.

Miss Jones, who has many friends here, has visited her grandparents in Washington several times in the last year and attended Mount Vernon Seminary before spending two years at the University of Texas. It will be a full military wedding at 8:30 in the evening in Christ Church of Houston on June 20 for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tilford Jones, who announced their daughter's engagement last week.

Ensign Boehck, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Edward Boehck of Wilwaukee, Wis., has been an instructor at the Naval Air Base at Corpus Christi, Tex., for about a year. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, his next assignment will be at San Pedro, Calif., where he and his bride will make their home.

The Secretary and Mrs. Jones will leave Washington in about a week for Chicago, where the Secretary will have an honorary LL. D. degree conferred on him by Northwestern University. This is his ninth honorary degree. While in Chicago he and Mrs. Jones will be house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cummings.

After a few days there they will board a train for Texas to arrive there in time for the wedding. Though this is their first visit home in a year and a half, the Secretary and Mrs. Jones will remain in Houston for only a brief visit before entraining for the Capital.

Vandenbergs Are Feted at Dinner

Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg were the guests in whose honor Mrs. Sidney C. Lee entertained last night at dinner on the Shoreham Terrace.

Other guests included Rear Admiral and Mrs. Emory Scott Land, Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, Mrs. Carrere Barbour, Col. Maurice K. McGrath, Lloyd Vandalinda and Lothrop Stoddard.

Alexandra Kempt And Army Man Exchange Vows

Only members of the immediate families were in attendance yesterday when Miss Alexandra Kempt and Lieut. Stephen J. DeSimone, U. S. A., were married in the rectory of St. John's Catholic Church in Forest Glen, Md. The 1 o'clock vows were read by the Rev. Joseph T. Kennedy.

Attending the bride, who is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kempt of Lexington, Ky., was her sister, Mrs. Charles Warfield Williams. The bridegroom's brother, Ralph E. DeSimone, jr., who upon graduation from Yale University this year will be commissioned as an ensign in the Navy, was best man. Mr. DeSimone's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. DeSimone of New London, Conn., were present for the wedding.

The couple plan to spend part of the summer with the bride's sister, Mrs. Williams, and Mr. Williams at their country place near Ednor, Montgomery County, Md. The bridegroom took his degree in industrial engineering at New York University and is now stationed in the office of the Chief of Ordnance in Washington.

Lieut. Ringness And Wife Depart

Lieut. (j. g.) Henry R. Ringness, U. S. N., and Mrs. Ringness, whose marriage took place recently in Alexandria, Va., are en route to the West Coast where they will make their home for the time being.

The bride is the former Miss Margaret Virginia Sutton, daughter of Capt. Dallas G. Sutton, U. S. N., of the Norfolk Naval Hospital, and the late Mrs. Sutton. Lieutenant Ringness is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Ringness of Minnesota. The ceremony was performed June 3 in the Presbyterian Church at 3 o'clock by Chaplain R. D. Workman. Miss Betty Sutton was her sister's maid of honor and Everett Clements was best man.

Monroe Hunter Host at Dinner

Monroe Hunter was host to a group of friends at dinner last night at the Del Rio.

Among his guests were Mrs. David Robertson, Miss Betty Stewart-Richardson, Meade Patrick, Miss Kitty Hill, Ensign Charles Berry, Miss Corrinne Ingraham, Mr. and Mrs. Igor Cassini and Mrs. J. Conway Hunt.

MRS. RODERICK JAMES DUNN

Edith Austin And R. J. Dunn Are Married

The Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church was the setting yesterday for the wedding of Miss Edith Gertrude Austin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Austin, of Chevy Chase, Md., and Roderick James Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dunn of Marion, Mich.

The Rev. J. Hillman Hollister performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory satin, cut on simple lines with long train and her full length tulle veil was held by a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and sweet peas.

Miss Alma Fogelberg, the maid of honor, was attired in blue marquisette with a lace train and carried peach gladioli, yellow daisies and delphinium. The bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth A. White and Miss Wilma Stewart, wearing identical frocks of pastel shades of marquisette and lace and carrying bouquets of mixed summer flowers.

Phillip Fairchild was the best man and ushering were Lawrence A. Wood, W. Gordon Irvin, jr., Nathan Fairchild and William F. Boardman.

The bride studied at the Abbott Art School and Columbia Technical Institute. Mr. Dunn was an honor graduate of the United States Naval Academy in 1938. After a short wedding trip they will live in Baltimore for a period before making their permanent home in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Beale Gives Tea for The Blisses

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, who recently returned from California, were the guests in whose honor Mrs. Truxtun Beale entertained at tea yesterday afternoon at Decatur House.

The party was one of many that have been given for Mr. and Mrs. Bliss since they arrived. They are living in one of the cottages at Dumbarton Oaks, which was formerly their estate.

Biddles Spending Weekend in South

The Attorney General and Mrs. Francis Biddle left yesterday for Tennessee where the former will speak today before the meeting of the Tennessee Bar Association in Chattanooga.

Thy will return on Monday and will be joined that day by their son, Randolph, returning home from college.

MRS. ROBERT LYNN BENSON

Miss Edwards Is Married in Church Rites

Wearing a white embossed chiffon gown with circular train bound with tiny organdy pinpleating and a full length veil of illusion, Miss Laurene Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William Edwards, last evening became the bride of Robert Lynn Benson, son of Mrs. Kathleen H. Benson and the late Mr. Benson. A Mary Queen of Scotts cap and a bouquet of white orchids and sweet peas completed the costume of the bride who was given in marriage by her father.

The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock in the Calvary Methodist Church with the Rev. Orris Gravenor Robinson officiating.

Mrs. Robert Bruce Gordon, the matron of honor, wore a frock of orchid lace with bouffant skirt and a shoulder length veil falling from bows of tulle and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. The maid of honor, Miss Patricia Rose, wore a similar costume of aquamarine lace. Bridesmaids were Miss Catherine Casey, Miss Dorothy Dearing, Miss Portia Johnson, Miss Luellyn Knox and Mrs. John W. Stein. They wore dresses of pale yellow lace and carried spring bouquets.

Kenneth Lee Benson was his brother's best man and ushers included Frank Hannum Benson and William Yarbrough Benson, brother's of the bridegroom, John Albert Edwards, brother of the bride; Robert Bruce Gordon, John Robert Hanley and John W. Stein.

A reception took place immediately following at the Martha Washington Seminary. After a trip through the New England States, the couple will make their home in Arlington. The bride is a graduate of George Washington University where she was a member of Sigma Kappa Sorority.

Marion Swift To Be Wed Today

At a ceremony this afternoon in Hinsdale, Mass., Miss Marion Alden Swift, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Ross Swift, formerly of Washington and now of Hinsdale, will become the bride of Victor Obenhaus of Dallas, Tex. The wedding will take place in the First Congregational Church at 4 o'clock, with the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Swift of Philadelphia, grandfather of the bride, officiating.

When she is given in marriage by her father, the bride will wear a gown of white satin, cut on princess lines. Mrs. Edward S. Goodridge will be matron of honor, and Henry A. Windover of Pittsfield, Mass., will be best man. Leonard Swift and Farley Foster will be ushers.

Miss Swift is a graduate of Russell Sage College of Troy, N. Y., and the prospective bridegroom attended the University of Rochester. The couple will make their home in Pittsfield, Mass., after a short wedding trip.

The bride-elect's father was formerly assistant pastor of the First Congregational Church here.

Congressional Children Take Over

Clubs

Sons and Daughters of U. S. Representatives and Senators In Radio Program Today

By Genevieve Reynolds

SOUTHERN drawls will be mingled with Yankee twangs and baby voices when 23 Congressional children push their moms and pops out of headlines and take over the spotlight today. The occasion is the sixth annual radio broadcast of the sons and daughters of United States Representatives and Senators. The time is 2 to 2:45 p. m. over the Blue network stations.

Music, including duets and solos, is the backbone of the program. A couple of dramatic readings, introductions and responses also are on schedule. Mrs. Clarence Cannon, wife of Representative Cannon of Missouri, first vice president of the Congressional Club, will give the greetings. The Congressional Club is sponsoring the program, but the directing is in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Ward. Mrs. Zed Johnson, wife of Representative Johnson of Oklahoma, is program chairman and gives the response to Mrs. Cannon's greetings. The United States Marine Band plays most of the music for the children's songs.

Little Helen Clark, daughter of Senator D. Worth Clark and Mrs. Clark, sings "Idaho"—a ditty about her native State.

Jewell McFarland, daughter of Senator Ernest W. McFarland of Arizona, gives a dramatic reading, "A Toast to Arizona."

Other Congressional sons and daughters appearing on the program include: Barbara Davis, Janelle Johnson, Mall Doxey, 3d, Susan Simpson, Le Moyne Rizley, Roger Cooley, Loretta Bunker, Wilburta Cartwright, Donalyn Cartwright, James Byron, Goodlow Byron and Billy Byron. Still others are: Cornelia Langer, Mary Louise Hook, Paul Starnes, Jane Case, Walter Johnson, Nancy Clark, Calvin Dworshak, Emma Lou Hook, Barbara Simpson.

Did You Know . . .

THAT—The Voiceless D. C. League of Women Voters is on the verge of launching a new, far sweeping educational program? In fact, members of the league have been gathering material for two years. Come September—the league will swing into full action. At a board meeting held this week, authorization was given to publish pamphlets revealing a complete study of the D. C. Public School System. Mrs. Walter Lavis is editor-in-chief of the pamphlet and Mrs. Rolland Severy is chairman of the material gathering committee. You can bet your last pair of nylons that the league is preparing a bombardment of suggested reforms in the schools here. Watch the column for complete story.

Doings of the Day

Deadlock Threatened On Pay-Increase Bills

The House Civil Service Committee is headed toward a deadlock on the two bills to raise the incomes of Federal workers. Hearings have been adjourned until Tuesday and meantime a compromise between the bonus and overtime bills will be attempted. The Administration is sticking to its overtime bill but it would broaden it to guarantee that each Federal worker would be benefited. An Administration spokesman said last night that no objection would be made if the committee required a minimum Government work week of 44 hours. That would guarantee each per annum worker a minimum of four hours of overtime pay each week.

Chairman Robert Ramspeck proposed the 44-hour work week from the start, but Administration people were cool to the idea for a time as they feared it would be years before Congress would reenact the 39-hour week law. The Administration has now consented to permit percentage increases or bonuses to be paid to the low-paid postal workers who wouldn't benefit under the bill as they aren't per annum employes. In this group are special delivery messengers, rural carriers and custodial employes.

A counterproposal has been made by some of the groups that are objecting to the overtime plan. This include three provisions: (1) payment of a bonus to all postal employes; (2) elimination of the $3800 ceiling to permit all employes to benefit regardless of salary, and (3) that overtime be computed on a straight time-and-a-half basis, rather than on the usual governmental manner which figures out at one and one-twelfth. The Administration can't agree to preferential treatment for the postal employes or it will lose its argument that the bill will wipe out injustices and inequalities between employes.

V. F. W. A. Approval

Eleanor Nelson, secretary-treasurer of the United Federal Workers, "whole-heartedly" indorsed the overtime plan. She also urged the committee to get behind the bill, also backed by the President, that would raise the salaries of custodial employes. "Our organization," Miss Nelson said, "considers these bills in every sense of the word war measures." They will help win the war, she said. George Curran of Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians, also approved the bill, but he suggested that the $3800 ceiling be eliminated, that overtime be computed on a time-and-a-half basis, based on 40 hours, and that the employes be paid for all overtime work regardless of "official" hours. Both organizations are affiliated with the C. I. O., which is supporting the bill.

Mrs. Joseph A. Roney testified that District school teachers hadn't had their salaries raised since 1924. She urged the committee to approve the $300 bonus bill. John J. Barrett, of the United National Association of Post-office Clerks, also supported the bonus bill. He suggested that substitutes be taken care of by adding $25 a month to their earned income. John B. Haggerty, chairman of the International Allied Printing Trades Association, spoke for the mechanics and tradesmen at the Bureau of Printing and Engraving and the Government Printing Office. During the past 16 years, he pointed out, practically none of the skilled workers have had their salaries increased. Haggerty asked that both the overtime and bonus bill be enacted.

Senator Tydings is drafting a blast at Federal agencies charging that have asked for and received the deferment from military service of young men in their low 20's. The blast will have plenty of repercussions . . . Civil Service Commission has announced closing dates for a long list of skilled jobs. There's still time to apply, however, at 923 F Street . . . Conferees on the Independent Offices appropriation bill are understood to have stricken out all funds for the information section of the old USHA. Employes have been tipped off to look for other jobs.

Md. Regions To Join in Full Blackout

Four Counties Will Take Part in First All-Night Test Scheduled June 17

Four Maryland counties—Montgomery, Prince Georges, Charles and St. Marys—and possibly two others will join Virginia and the District of Columbia in an all-night blackout on June 17, according to Col. Henry S Barrett, director of Air Raid Precaution Service in the Old Line State.

The two doubtful counties are Calvert and Harford, Colonel Barrett said.

Traffic will be permitted to move with dimmed or parking lights, except for the period in which an air-raid drill will be staged. Officials of the three areas will confer before time for the drill is set, although the lead of Virginia will be followed—as that State called the blackout.

Graduations to Go On

Ten school commencements scheduled for the night in the District will be permited to continue with full lighting effects. Col. Lemuel Bolles, Defense Director, yesterday ruled that they need not be canceled or changed to daylight hours. He expressed belief that diploma time is too sacred a time to be changed "unless it is absolutely necessary," and said he thought public morale would be served by permitting them to continue.

John J. Howard, Virginia chief of air-raid precautions, pointed out yesterday that Wednesday is "church night" for many Virginians, but expressed opinion services would be completed before dark. If they are not, however, the churches will be expected to black out, he said.

Col. Barrett conferred with Montgomery and Prince Georges County officials yesterday on preliminary details. An earlier blackout for southern Maryland was expected to be canceled in favor of the big joint endeavor on June 17.

When air-raid signals sound for the drill practice, they will start at the shoreline and move progressively inland.

Rail Chiefs to Confer

Representatives of railways operating in Virginia will meet in Richmond at 10 a. m. Monday to agree on blackout observance steps. Train movements into and out of Washington will not be delayed, even during the drill period, it was believed last night—although all bus and automobile traffic will have to cease during the "air-raid test."

At national OCD offices yesterday it was announced regulations covering blackout driving would be released soon, as the War Department has given rulings on the amount of light that would be permitted during an actual raid.

Very few Washington automobiles are equipped for blackout driving, and none of the official emergency cars are. Priorities on material and lack of War Department rulings have delayed this phase of the preparation. Also, tests on an inexpensive light mask are still under way. First models approved cost around $10 a pair and local civilian defense officials have maintained this is prohibitive.

Cab Hearings Suspended for Restudy of Plan

With the approval of all concerned the hearings before the Public Utilities Commission to show cause why the Diamond Cab Co. should not join the emergency taxi-cab pick-up service were recessed yesterday, to permit drafting of a cooperative plan that would not conflict with the taxicab company's concessions.

Public Utilities Chairman Gregory Hankin adjourned the hearings with the suggestion that all interested parties get together and sketch a workable plan that would give better service during rush hours, and at the same time not injure Diamond's contractual obligations.

The cab company has exclusive concessions at Union Station, the National Airport, Shoreham, Wardman Park and Carlton Hotels, as well as the Westchester and Broadmoor Apartments.

D. C. Man Gets Suspended Term In Theft of $105

Carl V. Moore, 23, of 437 Kennedy Street Northwest, who pleaded guilty to charges of stealing $105 from a cafe where he was employed, received a suspended sentence of one to three years in District Court yesterday and was put on probation.

His attorney, James K. Hughes, told Justice T. Alan Goldsborough that Moore, a first offender, wanted to pay a union initiation fee of $350 in order to get a job in the Navy Yard. The youth made a similar claim to police following his arrest Approximately $67 of the $105 was recovered.

Thirty-nine nurses received diplomas at the fifty-first commencement exercises of the Garfield Memorial Hospital School of Nurses held last night on the hospital grounds.

Juvenile Court Judge Fay L. Bentley spoke at the exercises, stressing the importance of this particular graduation today and mentioning the nursing profession relative to helping in the correction of social problems.

Clarence A. Aspinwall, president of the hospital board of directors, conferred the diplomas, and the Rev. C. T. Warner, St. Alban's Episcopal Church, gave the invocation.

Those receiving diplomas were: Nellie Gibson Adrian, Fahnie Louise Ballard, Catherine Lucille Barnett, Nell Katherine Beauchamp, June Carlyle Bell, Helen Marie Bodnar, Virginia Creel Carpenter, Barbara Winslow Cooley, Anne Amelia Crabill, Dorothy Jean Cross, Marjorie Louise Currier, Josephine Baker Detwiler, Elma Gloria Dougherty, Johanna Falletti, Edna Evangeline Flinn, Evelyn Lucille Goodman, Jean Louise Grim, Vera Amanda Hall, Ruth Emma Hammond, Frances Octavia Houpe, Verda Ruth Johnson, Mary Lee Kilduff, Helen Price Millar, Corinne Aileen Sweet Mitchell, Grace Elizabeth Moore, Rachel Louise Musselter, Lucy Geneva Pazana, Frances Omega Price, Catherine Cecelia Reddington, Elizabeth Jane Saufley, Lily Eulalia Shuster, Ellen Mary Smith, Mary Sue Spruill, Jane Elizabeth Stover, Ruth Frances Talbot, Bessie Louise Thompson, Ellen Earle Toleman, Helen Pauline Vawter, Bernice Elizabeth Young.

Victory Sidelights

Employer-Employe Groups To Protect Factories Urged

Permanent employer-employe committees to insure air raid and sabotage protection of industrial plants were urged yesterday by James M. Landis, director of the Office of Civilian Defense.

"In the interest of national safety and maximum production, it is important for some cooperative framework to be set up," he declared. "We believe that this can be achieved by the formation of a joint employer-employe committee."

The President recently put on the OCD responsibility for protection of all industrial plants not specifically owned by the Government nor currently engaged in important Navy and Army contracts.

Suggestion for formation of the protective committees is the first official OCD step since the responsibility was placed.

An antisabotage section to handle the work will be set up in OCD shortly. Director Landis had not yesterday selected a chief for the unit.

Women's Battalion Members to Get Badges

Members of the Women's Battalion who registered before May 15 for participation in dances and entertainments for service men will receive badges from their captains from 2 to 6 p.m. tomorrow at Thomson School, Twelfth and L Streets Northwest.

Children's Dance To Benefit Red Cross

Fifty children from 4 to 12 years old will give a benefit dancing program for the Red Cross in the Henry D. Cooke School auditorium, Seventeenth and Euclid Streets Northwest, at 4:30 p. m. today.

The children, under the direction of Marjorie Mitchell, will do ballet, tap and character dances, including the Mexican chiapanecas, the Hungarian czardas, the Spanish tap tango, the Brazilian conga, the Viennese waltz, the Hawaiian hula, the gavotte mignon, the sailors' hornpipe, and several to currently popular melodies.

Miss Mitchell, a graduate of George Washington University, appeared in "Anything Goes" and the Ballet Theater on Broadway and in the National Ballet here.

'Varieties for Victory' Will Be Broadcast

At 12:30 this afternoon, the "Varieties for Victory" show, playing at the War Savings Station No. 1, will be broadcast from the show window of Palais Royale now used by that section of the Treasury Department.

The program will go on the air from Station WINX. It was announced yesterday, and, at 4:30 in the afternoon, Jane Pickens, now performing at the Del Rio, will sing for the audience of prospective bond and stamp purchasers.

Pearl Harbor Avengers Take Oath Tomorow

Six months, to the minute, after Pearl Harbor was attacked a group of Washington men will be sworn in to the naval service tomorrow afternoon at a mass ceremony in the Sail Loft of the Navy Yard.

Along with 10,000 other young men who will be sworn in via radio at the same time throughout the Nation, the Washington youths will be known as "avengers of Pearl Harbor."

The mass swearing-in ceremony will originate at the Sail Loft and will be broadcast from there on the C. B. S. "Spirit of '42" program at 2:25 p. m. Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief naval personnel; Vice Admiral Russell R. Waesche, commandant of the Coast Guard, and Brig. Gen. Robert L. Denig of the office of the commandant of the Marine Corps, will administer the oath to their respective branches of the service.

Salesman Guilty In Whisky Case

James F. Boyer, a salesman, was convicted yesterday of misrepresenting to two women the amount of increase in the value of whisky stored for aging in a warehouse.

The plaintiffs, Florence Deputy of 1747 F Street Northwest and Irene Jarvis of 2321 Park Place Southeast, said Boyer had obtained $2800 from them for certificates of title to the liquor promising that the value of a $60 title to each barrel of whisky would increase in two years to $120.

Soldiers May Police D. C. In Shortage

Enlistment Rush Imperils Force With 300 to Be in Services by July 1

Soldier policemen instead of blue-coated Metropolitan patrolmen to protect Washington "for the duration" unless steps are taken to curb enlistments and the drafting of local cops appeared a possibility last night.

Such was the consensus among the police high command after a survey revealed that at least 300 privates and officers will be in the armed services by July 1.

Though Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, has made no effort to prevent policemen from enlisting, he nevertheless discussed the situation yesterday with Commissioner John Russell Young.

As a result of the discussion it was decided to hold up all applications for military leave from police department members until a "satisfactory plan" is worked out.

60 Seek Coast Guard Posts

Major Kelly yesterday also met with an officer from the Coast Guard at which time he learned approximately 60 police privates and officers have sought to enlist in that branch of the service.

This figure, coupled with the 66 officers and privates already on military leave and the fact that at least 200 other policemen contemplate enlistment, alarmed police officials.

The police superintendent said that many of his men have been given 1-A ratings by draft boards and that they probably will be called by the Army. Rookies undergoing training in the police school, he said, are being drafted.

Would Avoid Private Rating

Other policemen expecting 1-A classification are attempting to secure petty officer ratings rather than be drafted buck privates. Still others are obtaining commissions.

Another reason for the service rush is a recent proposal to reduce the amount of retirement pay for policemen laid off because of disabilities and year's service, and the fact that the proposed retirement bill makes no provision for the care of their dependents.

The proposal has brought forth cries of indignation from the rank and file, and hundreds of policemen have threatened to quit if the new bill is made law.

Eight policemen already have been accepted by the Coast Guard and have left the department. They were given chief petty officer's ratings.

Traffic Division Hard Hit

The Traffic Division so far has been hit the hardest by the exodus. Fifteen men in the Accident Prevention Unit have made application and between 40 and 50 in other branches of the Traffic Division, including the motocycle force, likewise have applied.

One police official said he thought District policemen should be deferred because of the importance of complete police protection in Washington.

"These policemen," he declard, "are doing as much for their country by protecting the seat of the United Nation's government as they would in the armed services. If all our experienced men are to be taken and replaced by rookies, extremely serious consequences may result."

The "satisfactory plan" which is expected to be worked out by Commissioner Young and Major Kelly probably will not be completed until next week. It is believed that the problem will be discussed with the Secretary of War.

Pearl Buck Calls on Negroes To Keep Faith in Democracy

HONORARY DEGREE of doctor of laws is awarded to Pearl S. Buck (right) by Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University

Pearl Buck, one of four women on whom honorary degrees were bestowed by Howard University at commencement exercises yesterday, told the candidates for graduation that it mattered little to her "which is uppermost, colored or white—but it matters to the very bottom of life whether or not the trend of our hope is toward freedom and equality, or away from it."

The distinguished authoress and Nobel prize winner bade the Negro forget that he constitutes a minority group in America and to believe that he has become the touchstone of democracy of our own country and of the world. Because China, India and Russia, centers of the greatest population, do not tolerate race prejudice, she declared that this form of discrimination here is a national danger, "a rock on which our whole Nation may founder."

Honorary Degrees Conferred

"You see how impossible democracy has become," the writer told the students, "when it is not democracy except that it grows out of human equality. You understand, therefore, that there are millions of people in the world that are losing hope. For if America, the great and good, treats its dark citizens less kindly than its white, what hope have they?"

The degrees conferred on Miss Buck and the three other women commemorated the fact that the first four students at Howard University were women. Miss Buck's honorary doctorate of laws was conferred as an act of reverent regard and prayer "that the God of our fathers may let your voice be heard before it is too late."

Recipients of the other honorary degrees were:

Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, the honorary degree of doctor of laws, as the founder of the Bethune-Cookman College at Daytona, Fla., a national organizer and leader, and as an administrator of Government agencies.

Miss Mabel Carney, the honorary degree of doctor of education, for 40 years spent in development of rural education as a crusader of ardent zeal, in appreciation especially of her work among Negro masses.

Dr. Wilkinson Honored

Miss Lulu Vere Childers, the honorary degree of doctor of music, for 39 years of service at the head of the Howard University school of music, as a pioneer with vision and faith, and devotion to ideals.

A fifth was the honorary degree of doctor of laws conferred on Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, for 40 years of service in education, more than half of that time in his present position, in administration both constructive and progressive.

The bachelor degree was conferred on 77 in the various arts and sciences; 55 received the doctor's degree in medicine and dentistry; 35 received the master's degree in the graduate school; 17 were named internes in Freedmens Hospital, and 12 were commissioned as second lieutenants of infantry, Officers Reserve Corps.

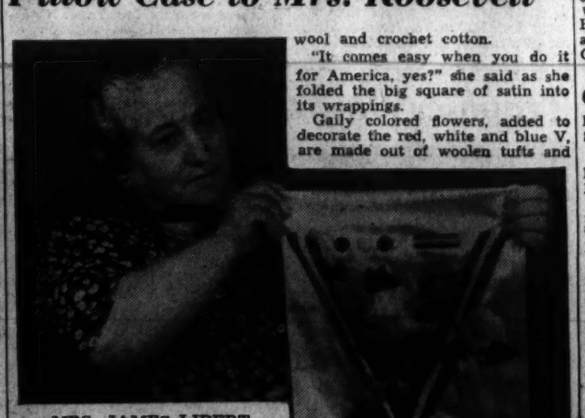
Greek Woman Gives 'Victory V' Pillow Case to Mrs. Roosevelt



MRS. JAMES LIBERT
Displays Her Needlework

A little Greek woman, who felt she should show her admiration for Mrs. Roosevelt in some tangible way, yesterday sent the First Lady a pillowcase, which she designed and made herself in the motif of the the day—V for victory.

She is Mrs. James Libert, 1044 Quebec Place Northwest, who is intensely proud that one son, James, jr., already is in the Army and that two others expect to be called into the service soon.

Mrs. Libert spent hours working on the victory symbol, beautifully done on a white satin pillow case. She shyly hopes that her favorite public figure will accept the gift.

Because she has been making clothes for her 14 children since she came to this country in 1914, Mrs. Libert found it comparatively easy to copy the intricate design she chose, and to reproduce it in wool and crochet cotton.

"It comes easy when you do it for America, yes?" she said as she folded the big square of satin into its wrappings.

Gaily colored flowers, added to decorate the red, white and blue V, are made out of woolen tufts and stand out in sharp relief against their gleaming background. The V sign and the Morse code symbol of three dots and a dash above it are done in rows of red, white and blue crochet thread.

Her original plan was to put a picture of the President in the center, but she could not find one that she could copy so she chose the flowers instead.

Fervently patriotic about the land of her adoption, Mrs. Libert has made snow suits for the Army in the local Red Cross branch here and proudly wears the emblem of the organization on her dress.

In addition, she has worked hard for the Greek war relief agency, and finds time to make decorative pillow cases for her daughters and daughters-in-law in between.

WHY Civil Service Needs New System For Overtime Pay

Important to every Federal worker is the President's new plan for overtime pay. Hearings on this bill have revealed a hodge-podge of discrepancies now existing in the wage scales of some two million Government employes. Tomorrow, in "The Federal Diary," Jerry Kluttz turns a penetrating spotlight on the Civil Service wage system, shows why it's due for some changes, how inequalities can be corrected, who stands to benefit. Won't Those Damyankees Ever Stop Winning?

New York's Gomez Beats Indians, 6-3

Yanks Take 24th of Last 28 Games as Smith Weakens; Gomez Is Injured

By the Associated Press

New York, June 5.—The New York Yankees added another full game to their American League lead today, whipping the second place Cleveland Indians, 6-3, in the opener of a five-game series and stretching their margin to nine and a half games.

In compiling their twenty-fourth success in their last 28 games, the world champions landed on Lefty Al Smith for three runs in the first inning and routed him in the third when they sewed up the game on two more.

Lefty Gomez limited the Tribe to two hits in the first four innings and registered his second victory against two defeats, but a leg injury he received in the second frame when he was struck by a drive off Lou Boudreau's bat finally forced him to turn the game over to Marv Breuer.

Smith started his own downfall in the opening frame by walking Joe Gordon after the Yanks had loaded the bases with two down on singles by Frank Crosetti and Joe Dimaggio and a pass to Charlie Keller. Buddy Rosar then doubled down the third base line for two more runs.

Gomez also helped the Indians score twice in the top half of the second, which he started by passing Ray Mack and Jim Hegan. Both advanced on a sacrifice and scored when Gomez threw wild at the plate after being struck by Boudreau's bounder.

Singles by Gordon, who boosted his consecutive game hitting streak to 21 contests, Keller and Phil Rizzuto produced the two third-inning Yankee runs and brought Steve Gromek to the relief of Smith.

Breuer yielded five hits in as many innings, but a double play by Jeff Heath and a single by Les Fleming added another Tribal tally in the fifth inning.

Anti-Racing Body Attacks Camden Track

By the Associated Press

Camden, N. J., June 5.—Legality of New Jersey's racing act and the permit for construction of the new Garden State track near Camden were challenged today in a writ filed with State Supreme Court Justice Ralph W. E. Donges.

S. Rusling Leap, common pleas judge of Salem County and attorney for the Association for the Prevention of a Race Track in Camden County, filed the writ. He acted for Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Wight and Mr. and Mrs. Marcus M. Messmer, who live on properties adjoining the track on Haddonfield Road, Delaware Township.

The application is returnable in seven days. If the writ would be granted, it would prevent the track from going ahead with its scheduled July 18 opening for a 49-day meet. Next action would be at the fall term of the Supreme Court.

The Garden State Racing Association and its officers, battling to finish the track by tomorrow—the War Production Board's deadline for construction work on such enterprises—were named as respondents.

In the application, Judge Leap contended that the New Jersey constitution prohibits gambling and the establishment of pari-mutuel betting at the track would outlaw it.

A spokesman for the track said all construction work necessary to get the program under way was finished "except a few odds and ends which can be cleaned up tomorrow."

Nats, Newsom Beat Tigers in Tenth, 3-2

Phils' Murtaugh Ruled Safe at Home; Pirates Protest

Umpire Lee Ballanfant called Phils' Infielder Danny Murtagh safe at the plate on this play in the third inning of the game with the Pirates at Pittsburgh yesterday. Two Walks Force Home Winning Run

Spence Comes Across On Pass to Repass by Relief Hurler White; Buck Wastes 2-1 Lead

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Buck Newsom's five-game losing streak came to an end in the tenth inning last night when his pitching rival of the moment, Hal White, of the Tigers, forced home the Nats' winning run of a 3-2 ball game.

The score was tied at 2-2, the bases loaded and two were out when White presented the Nats with the ball game by walking Bob Repass on a fourth ball that bit into the dirt in front of the plate.

Ten thousand fans watched Newsom forego all clowning and collect a brilliant victory for himself with a six-hit job on his former colleagues. He didn't win the game in nine innings, because he pitched away a 2-1 lead with two out in the ninth when his control deserted him.

Tigers Go Sour

Detroit's pitching and infield went sour in the tenth inning. Spence put the winning run on base at the outset when he got a cheap hit on a tricky grounder to Higgins. Vernon struck out after two attempts to sacrifice and White got a brutal break when Hitchcock fumbled Chartak's double-play grounder, putting men on first and second.

Young White eased the pressure on the Tigers at this point, however, by fanning Bobby Estalella. But he lost his touch and walked Jake Early to fill the bases. Back-patted by Manager Del Baker, he put himself in a hole against Repass with two wide pitches and then got the benefit of a dubious called strike. His next pitch to Repass was the third ball, and the ballgame was over when he chucked another pitch into the dust in front of the plate.

Newsom, Repass and Jimmy Pofahl were the headache boys for the Tigers. Repass figured in all three of Washington runs, scoring two and forcing home the third. A fourth-inning two-bagger by Pofahl fetched the Nats their important second run.

Benton Pitches Well

Al Benton was Newsom's pitching opponent until the need of a pinch hitter took him out of the ball game in the ninth and he was giving Newsom a tight battle of it. As Benton's departure the Nats owned only six hits.

Newsom, throwing a clever curve ball and a side-arm fast one for the most part, held the Tigers scoreless with a two-hit performance for five innings while the Nats were getting a 2-0 lead.

Repass opened the third inning with a slashing two-bagger to left and Benton was in trouble when he stumbled while fielding Pofahl's bunt, and threw too late to third base, with both runners safe. Newsom struck out, but Case got a run home by hitting into a force play.

Repass and Pofahl stirred up another run for the Nats after two were out in the fourth. Repass drew a walk and Pofahl got him

Red Sox Halt Chisox Rally And Win, 4-2

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 5.—The Boston Red Sox survived a brief ninth-inning uprising by the Chicago White Sox today to protect a 4-2 lead and get back into winning ways after losing two straight to the Cleveland Indians.

Relief Pitcher Mace Brown put out the fire after Starting Pitcher Yank Terry got two away in the ninth, then walked Sam West and permitted Mike Tresh to single sharply to left. Brown came in and forced Pinch-hitter George Dickey to roll to Bobby Doerr for the final out.

Lou Finney gave Boston the winning margin, driving in single counters with long flies in the first and seventh inning, and scoring Dom DiMaggio in the third with a long single to right after the former had doubled into the left field corner. Ted Williams accounted for Boston's fourth run in the third with a triple to right which scored Finney.

Chicago scored first when, with one away, Luke Appling singled to left, worked his way to third and scored as Taft Wright beat out an infield roller. The other Chisox score came in the fifth with Boston boots aiding in the tally. John Humphries hit to Doerr and took second when the latter threw into the Boston dugout. He scored when Moses drilled one at Tony Lupien and the latter lost the sharp drive, the ball rolling into right field foul territory.

Seals Sign Pitcher But Uncle Sam Gets Him

San Francisco, June 5 (AP).—The San Francisco Seals of the Coast league are shy a pitcher who never even reported to them.

Tom Drake, shipped from the Brooklyn Dodgers, advised Charles Graham, Seals' prexy, he would be drafted within the next 10 days.

The deal for Drake, which gave the Dodgers the privilege to pick one man off the Seals' roster by September, is off until the major league club sends a replacement.

Judnich Triples and Scores on Laabs' Fly To End Mound Duel at Night Before 10,777

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 5.—Walt Judnich's triple and Chet Laabs' long fly gave the St. Louis Browns a 1-0 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics in a thrilling 16-inning night game at Shibe Park before 10,777 fans.

The game was a pitching battle between Dick Fowler, of the A's and John Niggeling and George Caster for the Browns.

Fowler went the distance, giving up only nine hits. Niggeling retired after 12 innings and Caster twirled the remaining four. The two yielded 10 hits in the longest night game in the major leagues this season.

The A's had four opportunities to win. In the fifth, seventh, tenth and thirteenth they put two men on base, but couldn't produce a hit in the pinch.

Then in the sixteenth Judnich led off with his triple off the rightfield wall and scored on Laabs' fly to center. Caster retired the A's in order in their half.

Pirates Finally Win After 10 Losses in Row

By International News Service

Pittsburgh, June 5.—The Pirates finally found the winning formula today after two weeks of defeats—10 straight—but they had to have a lot of help from the visiting Phillies to eke out a 6 to 5 victory.

The Quakers committed five errors, three by Shortstop Bobby Bragan, and four of the six Pirate runs were unearned. Lefty Frank Hoerst was charged with the defeat and Ken Heintzelman, who replaced Bob Klinger in the first inning, broke a personal five-game losing streak by picking up the victory.

The Bucs came from behind with a four-run seventh inning, using three blooper hits, plus an error and two walks, for their winning tallies.

Rookie Infielders Of Nats Play Today In Double-Header

Two rookies will make their debut in the Washington infield today in a double-header against the Tigers. Shortstop John L. Sullivan and Second Baseman Ellis Cleary, recently called in from the Nats' Chattanooga farm, will replace Jimmy Pofahl and Bob Repass.

Confronted with a pitching shortage, Manager Bucky Harris will send two of his lesser lights, Bill Zuber and Hardin Cathey, to the mound in the twin bill. Zuber has won two games this season and Cathey does not own a victory.

The Tigers will pitch two of their top-ranking starters, the veteran Tommy Bridges and left-handed Hal Newhouser.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

A whiff of old England is on the racing calendar today. Up at New York, they'll run the Belmont Stakes, America's only counterpart of the English Derby, at the traditional Derby distance of a mile and a half. The United States, which swiped its horse racing from the British plan, and stream-lined it with six furlong and mile sprints, makes token acknowledgement to the British once yearly—with the Belmont Stakes.

POVICH

In the Belmont, "improvement of the breed" becomes more than an empty phrase because a race like the Belmont is, indeed, aimed at improving the breed. Geldings, which can't perpetuate their blood lines, are barred, even as in England. The distance of a mile and a half is designed as a searching test of stamina and speed, the aim of all breeders.

They've been running the Belmont at a mile and a half since 1874, and down through the years better horses have won the Belmont than the Derby. A Belmont Stakes victory is more cherished by breeders, in fact, than a Derby triumph because Belmont winners have almost invariably stamped themselves as great horses. The list of Belmont winners is formidable—Whirlaway, Johnstown, Bimelech, War Admiral, Peace Chance, Twenty Grand. And Blue Larkspur, Crusader, Zev, Man O' War, Grey Lag, Sir Barton and Hourless, to recite a few.

Alsab's Entry Costs $2500

It's a quarter mile longer than the Kentucky Derby, five-sixteenths farther than the Preakness, and there is no possibility that a sprinter can open up a long lead and "steal" the Belmont. You name your entry for the Belmont either as a weanling or as a yearling in the second closing of entries, or thereafter you pay a $2500 supplementary starting fee.

Alsab, which will go to the post as the favorite to win today's Belmont, wasn't entered either as a foal or a yearling. His stable thinks it well worth the extra $2500 to get him in the race. The Derby and the Preakness did a thorough job of weeding out the Belmont field. Only five horses are slated to go to the post today.

Today's Belmont seems to boil down to a two-horse race—Alsab and Shut Out. The others, King's Abbey, Lochinvar and Half Crown seem to have no business contesting with Alsab and Shut Out over the mile and half route. Half Crown has won only one race, and that a maiden affair, although he is bred well. If anything in the field separates Alsab and Shut Out, it must be recorded as an upset.

Alsab and Shut Out seem to leave no opening for a long shot to take the race. There is little possibility that they will run each other into the ground in the early running, which is the usual script for an outsider to come from behind and take it all. Alsab wins his races from behind, and Trainer Sarge Swenke with a mile and a half for his colt to get to Shut Out, hardly figures to change his plan, even if Alsab had the early foot.

During the past week, Shut Out has turned in some startling times in Belmont work-outs, going the mile and a quarter in 2:02, better than the winning time for the Kentucky Derby. A few days later he turned the distance in 2:03 with a hand ride during the last quarter. Seemingly he is primed to give Alsab a terrific battle for the rich purse.

Shut Out's Flashy Workouts

But maybe Shut out's flashy workouts should be discounted somewhat. In fact, they probably will be. The Belmont track, where Shut Out has been hanging up his times, has never been as fast as this season. The other day when Fairaris equaled Hot Toddy's record of 1:48 2-5 for a mile and an eighth, which had stood for 13 years clockers were aghast. Fairaris turned the six furlongs 2-5 of a second faster than the six-furlong record for the track made in 1910. And at the mile mark, Fairaris equaled Jack High's record mile of 1:35 flat. The horse that can't work a mile at Belmont in under 1:40 these days, should be shipped to Charles Town.

Thus Alsab's backers are probably not too much concerned by Shut Out's fancy works. Our friend and turf mentor, Humphrey Finney, all-wise editor of the Maryland Horse, expects Alsab to run his usual winning race by laying off the pace in the early running. Shut Out, he believes, will likewise lay off the early lead, but not as far as Alsab. And in the last half mile, he believes, you will have your horse race—with Shut Out taking over the lead and Alsab lighting out to catch him. And Alsab will, he thinks.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Here's something: The Navy, and to some extent the Army, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, is spending a tub of money these days in the most ambitious sports program ever devised Yet we have the OPA and its edict of April 8, to half wit:

CONSIDINE

"School buses for which recaps, retreads or new tires have been granted are not permitted to be used for the transportation of pupils to or from . . . games and contests."

The Navy's aviation cadet sports program is big beyond words. Under Commander Tom Hamilton, former Naval Academy coach, it will take 30,000 young men each year and unteach them everything they ever knew about sportsmanship, and, by the same token, make them into the fightingest bunch of guys ever to wear a United States service uniform, thanks to the sports training they have had and are to get.

On the one hand we have this; on the other hand we have a Government agency which looks upon sports as wholly unessential. The refusal of the OPA to recognize the value of athletics will, if the war lasts long enough, eventually make for so much more work by the Navy and others interested in directing the competitive fervor of the American athlete toward war efforts.

The OPA's ruling doesn't effect the bigger colleges whose grounds lie athwart the railroad trunk lines. But for countless little colleges and countless high schools, it means the end of competitive athletics as they were once known. Virginia Poly, for instance, has given up all sports. The University of Illinois and Ole Miss have pleaded that they must seriously curtail sports rivalries. Pacific Coast colleges have given up trips. A sports goods salesman, working through a small area in the South, found 86 high schools which had given up sports of all kinds. Just how much flabbiness and philatelism this is going to breed in the immediate years to come, remains to be seen. But the Navy, for one, is frankly worried and hopes that ways and means can be found to keep the muscles of school boys in condition.

The Navy's aviation cadet schools are located, as you perhaps know, at the University of North Carolina, the University of Georgia, Iowa and St. Mary's. Their sports programs are in the hands of the most competent men obtainable—Bernie Bierman, Jim Crowley, Harvey Harman, Sam Barry, Ray Wolf, Tex Oliver and others. Each cadet—there will be 1800 at each school in each three-month class—will go through a tremendous toughening process, featuring body-contact sports. Every contest will be directed toward whetting the competitive furries. None of the "oops, sorry," sports will be tolerated. The men who come out of those schools will be as adept at sneak punches as the Japs, thank heavens.

They are to be a breed apart. For instance they are fed 5000 calories per day, whereas the normal man gets along very nicely on 1800. They drink quarts of milk; their steaks are smothered in lamb chops. They get foods that improve their eyesight—for night flying—and everything they do is done with an eye toward their eventual warring. Ways have been found of turning the simplest of their sports, for instance dribbling a basketball down a court, into a vigorous contest with another man. The Navy is breaking down the civilized niceties of their upbringing and developing in them the killer instinct they'll need to survive the battles to come. The lustiness of their appetite for their mauling sports will decide which of them become pursuit pilots, which become torpedo plane pilots, which become patrol bomber men, and which are discarded as wanting in the ways of coordinated destruction.

Football and boxing will be the main games, the former because it teaches vigorous teamwork and the latter because it accustoms men to take and give a punch. The 1942 gridiron schedules of the four schools are enough to make an old grad's head swim. The Iowa Team of Lieutenant Colonel Bierman, U. S. M. C., for instance, will play Kansas, Northwestern, Minnesota, Michigan and Notre Dame on successive Saturdays, then have a "breather" against the St. Mary's preflight school, then go on through Indiana, the Georgia Navy School, Nebraska, Ohio State, Missouri and the North Carolina Navy School.

Junior High Nines Hold Annual 'Play Day'

Intramural winners of local junior high school baseball competition met in their annual "play day" yesterday in games at three playgrounds, Taft, Deal and Anacostia.

At Taft the team from Macfarland downed Langley, 5 to 3, and the hosts swamped Stuart, 25 to 9. Paul Junior High nine featured play at Deal by scoring eight runs in the first extra inning to defeat Gordon, 20 to 12. Deal tripped Powell, 20 to 14.

Wilson Downs Central, 19-7, Evens High School Title Series

Weird Game Lost After Many Walks

Play Finale Monday At Griffith Stadium; Central Uses Four Pitchers in Contest

By Bill Burnett

It's all even between Central and Wilson after yesterday's second game in the 1942 interhigh baseball championship playoff, and fans have now seen schoolboy ball at its best and screwiest.

Yesterday's game came under the latter head. It went to Wilson, which had lost a 4-3 "dream game" in the playoff opener Wednesday, by a 19-7 count after everything in the book had occurred at the winners' park.

The teams therefore have a pressing date Monday at Griffith Stadium, when the wearer of Western High's crown will be decided, once and for all.

Whether Wilson won or Central lost the second clash is a nice question. There was little doubt that the Vikings thoroughly "balled up" their chance to end the series quickly, but the Tigers contributed something of their own.

Six bases on balls off Harry Wolfe in the first inning spotted Wilson its lead, and eight more sprinkled throughout proceedings by three other Viking hurlers kept the Tigers well out front. Meanwhile, Jack Ogle and Carl Saine shared in an eight-hit mound performance for the winners. They walked only three men.

That Ogle got the starting assignment for Wilson was a surprise to his rivals, but they got over it quickly. The youngster who had hurled 12 innings Wednesday tossed only twice before Central was leading, 1-0. Mike Denikos, leadoff man, slugged Ogle's second pitch against the centerfield wall. While Outfielder Dick Schwab was looking for the ball, Denikos raced home.

A Single Added

Following up Denikos' effort, Bob Fielding singled sharply to center and Pete Chipouris reached first on a hot grounder off Vinson's glove, advancing Fielding to third. Bob Hill's weak tap was relayed home by Ogle too late to catch Fielding, and runners were left on first and third. Here, however, the Vikings' favorite squeeze play fizzled, Chipouris was caught off third and Falls ended the inning by driving into a double play, Monk Barbee to Bill Jawish.

Then it was Wilson and Wolfe's turn. The latter walked the first man to face him, forced Schwab to ground out, and then walked three more, accounting for one Tiger run. Barbee then accounted for four others by pounding a cripple pitch into the lonely depths of center field. Despite two more passes, Wolfe finally got the side out without further damage.

Barbee's home run, it later developed, was Wilson's only safety in the first three and two-thirds innings. Meanwhile it had amassed an 11-5 lead. Two tallies were hung up in the second inning on three Viking errors and in the fourth the Tigers were handed 4 more before they got another hit.

Fills 'Em Up

Wolfe walked the bases full again, got one man out, and was just preparing to shove another run home by walking Sullivan when he was finally relieved. Jake Stein, a first-year man, forced Sullivan to hit into a force play, but then handed passes to Barbee and Hardison. When he hit Farnham on the arm he was also removed. Aaron Weisenberg, winner of the series opener, took over despite a sore arm.

After contributing another base on balls to the uproar, Weisenberg was at last responsible for the second Tiger hit. Jawish cracked a double over the rightfield wall, scoring two more, then came home on Schwab's single. The latter tried to stretch it and was out, Brogan to Hoffman.

In all the hosts scored eight runs in the fourth inning, taking a 15-5 lead. It was all over then. Weisenberg left the mound after the sixth to be saved for Monday and Catcher Billy Carrier tried his hand. Ogle, too, was pulled after five innings with an eye to Monday's game, and right-hander Carl Saine effectively choked off further trouble by pitching three-hit ball for the last four frames.

Hillock Stars

Leading batter in Wilson's 11-hit assault was again Donny Hillock, first baseman, who collected a double, two singles and a pair of walks in six trips to the plate. Jawish was passed three times and banged a double and single in the same number of times.

It had little effect on the outcome, but Fielding also hit a four-bagger. His came in the seventh inning with the paths vacant. In that same stanza Hill, Viking clean-up hitter, managed for his first base hit in 10 times at bat during the series, but was left stranded.

Tennis Stars Vie Here Today For Charity

The 1942 District of Columbia tennis season gets away to a notable start today when a quartet of internationally known stars presents three exhibition matches at the Edgemoor Club in Bethesda for benefit of the British-American Ambulance Corps.

Then on tomorrow the tournament schedule is ushered in with the annual City of Washington men's tournament which is expected to draw a field surpassing last year's large entry of 55. This will be at Edgemoor, too.

Mrs. Dorothy Round Little, Great Britain's No. 1 women's player; Mary Hardwick, its No. 2 player; Bobby Riggs, the American men's champion, and Wayne Sabin, national seventh-ranking star will be the principals in today's stellar attraction, likely the best in all local tennis history.

Lord and Lady Halifax are expected to head a list of diplomatic and Government officials and other tennis fans whose attendance will help swell the ambulance corps fund. Admission will be $1.65 for reserved seats and $4.40 for boxes.

First match, at 3 p. m., will bring together Mrs. Little and Miss Hardwick. Next Riggs and Sabin will fight it out with the final match being mixed doubles. Partners will be drawn.

Mrs. Little, who boasts more tournament victories over Alice Marble than any other contemporary player, and Miss Hardwick, a familiar figure in American competition, should offer the best women's match ever seen locally. In the past Washington has seen outstanding netwomen, including Miss Hardwick herself, but on those occasions the visiting star has been pitted against local talent and the outcome has almost invariably been one sided.

Riggs, the cocky, unpredictable little American champion who plays the way the mood strikes him, and Sabin are both offensive-minded players whose styles of attack are always crowd pleasing. In their present tour about the country, Sabin has been giving Bounding Bobby all the opposition he can handle, even beating him several times.

In the event of rain today, the exhibitions will be held Sunday, with the opening rounds of the City of Washington tournament set back until Monday, unless some matches can be played early Sunday.

Barney Welsh, for many years the undisputed ruler of men's tennis here, will head the field. Davie Johnsen, youthful George Washington University medical student and Welsh's only local conqueror in 10 years, is expected to return home from a short vacation in time for the play. There will be many newcomers, including some dark horses who might surprise King Barney. Among these are Jerry Courtney, former champion of the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, N. Y.; Ensign Don Martin and Homes Perkins, Harvard alumni, and Edward Chandler.

Don Leavens, Welsh's chief rival last year, and other strong D. C. contenders will be in the field, but many old standbys will be missing because of war service or confining jobs.

Buckeyes Beat Badgers, 5 to 2; Take Third Place

Madison, Wis., June 5 (AP).—Ohio State's baseball team defeated Wisconsin, 5 to 2, today to move into sole possession of third place in the Western Conference. The two teams play again tomorrow in the final game of the Big Ten season.

A Wisconsin victory tomorrow would bring the Badgers up to a third-place tie with the Buckeyes.

Giants Edge Cards, 3 to 1, Under Lights

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 5.—Aided by the four-hit pitching of Dave Koslo, the New York Giants tonight edged out the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 1.

While Koslo was handcuffing the Cardinal batters, Harry Danning and Mickey Witek each poled doubles to give the Giants a one-run lead in the second. Johnny Mize smashed his sixth home run of the season in the sixth and Koslo made it extra good by counting in the ninth as the result of a single, passed ball, error and a fielder's choice.

Meantime, after Marty Marion walked in the Cardinal half of the third, Jimmy Brown blasted a long triple for the lone St. Louis counter. Koslo was invincible in the minor pinches which arose.

Alsab, Shut Out Meet In Belmont Stakes

By the Associated Press

New York, June 5.—For the benefit of the Army and the Navy—as well as for a winner's paycheck of more than $40,000—Alsab and Shut Out hook up at Belmont tomorrow in their widely-touted "rubber match."

They're the big guys in a field of eight entered for the seventy-fourth running of the ancient Belmont Stakes, the last "jewel" nailed annually in the triple crown for the turf's 3-year-olds. Supporting it this year are the National Stallion Stakes for juveniles and the Army-Navy Handicap for older gallopers on a war relief program which figures to net the war effort some $100,000.

Shut Out, son of Equipoise and "splittin' image" of his daddy, came out of Mrs. Payne Whitney's barn to win the Kentucky Derby this spring, with Alsab roaring in second. A week later, Al Sabath's Chicago champ pranced home in the Preakness and Shut Out wound up back in the pack. Wayne (the cowboy) Wright piloted Shut Out in each of these outings. This time, Eddie Arcaro will be doing the steering.

So, tomorrow's mile-and-a-half get-together will just about decide the championship of the 3-year-olds, especially since Sun Again, Devil Diver and Requested are laid up with leg injuries and the others are strictly nothing to start naming streets after.

Alsab Heavy Favorite

If Alsab clicks this time—and he's a 3-5 betting choice right this minute—he'll pick up a bankroll of $42,420; for Shut Out or any of the others, it will be $44,670, because the "Sab" was a supplementary nominee at $2500. With $197,585 already in the bank for his year and a half of racing, victory for the $700 bargain baby would boost him well up among the top 20 money winners of all time.

Belmont's bosses expect some 40,000 cash contributors to sit in on the festivities and are looking for a mutuel handle within shouting distance of two million dollars, possibly even coming close to last Saturday's $2,176,071, which shattered all national one-day betting records.

The track's entire income from the proceedings, minus only purses to horsemen, has been pledged to Army and Navy relief and the United Service Organization. The purses add up to $44,000, and what's left should be $100,000 or more. Nearby Jamaica Race Track has promised to match Belmont's contribution.

Except for Alsab and Shut Out, the Belmont field is made up of half a dozen gee-gees who appear to be just out to get the air. A surprise entry was Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Top Milk, and his lone claim to fame is that he's a full brother to Pasteurized, who upset Dauber and Cravat in the 1938 running. The others are Warren Wright's Col. Teddy, substitute for stablemate Sun Again; J. M. Roebling's Lochinvar, a well-galloped second to Alsab in the Withers; Walter Chrysler's disappointing Ramillies, H. L. Lunger's imported Half Crown and William Woodward's Trierarch, who is a doubtful starter.

Thirteen youngsters were named for the $5000 five-furlong Stallion Stakes, with Warren Wright's Ocean Wave and Mrs. Whitney's Hickory Head well regarded. The special $5000 Army and Navy Handicap also drew 13 entries, among them Mrs. Whitney's The Rhymer, winner of the Widener Handicap last winter; Vic Emanuel's Omission, Mrs. T. Christopher's Doublrab and R. J. Kleberg's Dispose.

Florida Coach Blasts Pre-Flight Recruiting

Gainesville, Fla., June 5 (AP).—Cheerful, easy-going Tom Lieb, usually finds optimism on orange trees, took time out from coaching at the University of Florida today to put a blast on naval preflight school recruiting.

"I don't mind furnishing them with a coaching staff," said Lieb, who has lost four of his five aides, "but I hate to see them meddling with boys who are in school—trying to get an education and hoping for an opportunity to finish their work—just so they can have an outstanding football or basketball team."

Navy aviation preflight schools are located at Athens, Ga.; Chapel Hill, N. C.; Iowa City, Iowa, and St. Marys, Calif. At Athens, Athletic Director Lieut. Comdr. B. L. Boynton depreciated emphasis on football, saying games with big-name schools were unimportant compared with development of able fliers.

Lieb, however, said he believed the Navy's tactics were "a little removed from the intention of the program," and added "their stimulation of football schedules and competition is not in line with their program of aviation. It's going to be hard to get kids to sign up for such a program when they read in the papers where one school has ten All-Americans lined up for their team this year.

"I believe there is quite a bit of disguise in the plan of the program."

Cubs Defeat Dodgers, 4-3, And Split Bill

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 5.—Three pitchers and two catchers couldn't put down a tenth inning uprising by the Chicago Cubs, who rallied for a 4-3 decision over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the second game of a double-header today after the National League leaders had won the curtain raiser, 6-3.

Phil Cavaretta took personal charge of the proceedings which gave the Cubs an even break and snapped Brooklyn's four-game winning streak, driving in the tying run in the eighth inning with a long fly that followed Stan Hack's two-bagger and a sacrifice, and doubling home the winning counter in the tenth.

Ed Head, who suffered his second defeat compared with five wins, held the Cubs to five hits through nine innings of the nightcap but Hiram Bithorn, who replaced Les Fleming as the Cub pitcher in the eighth, cracked a double in the tenth with one man out.

Hack was passed purposely and Hugh Casey relieved Head, yielding a scratch single to Pinch Hitter Dom Dallessandro which filled the bases.

That brought Larry French to the mound for the Dodgers, and when Bob Sturgeon ran for Bithorn, Mickey Owen took over the catching chores from Billy Sullivan. Owen called for a pitch-out and picked Sturgeon off third, but Cavarretta dropped a looping double into short left field and Hack galloped home with the running run.

Wyatt Gains Fifth Win

Cavarretta also sparked a two-run first inning assault on Head with a double after the Dodgers had opened with one run. Brooklyn moved ahead in the fifth, scoring two runs on as many hits.

Bithorn got credit for the victory, his first of the season after three defeats.

Whitlow Wyatt registered his fifth victory against one loss in the first game, but he also needed help from Casey in the eighth.

The Cubs got eight of their nine hits off Wyatt, but Whit helped put the game away with a two-run double in the sixth inning, when the Dodgers knocked Vern Olsen out of the box and tagged him with his third straight defeat.

Evidently Mel Ott Doesn't Keep Well Posted on Records

By the Associated Press

New York, June 5.—When Manager Mel Ott of the New York Giants drove in his 1583rd run at Chicago yesterday he supplanted Rogers Hornsby as runner-up to Babe Ruth in total runs batted in but didn't set a new National League record—because he already held it.

A check of the record books today showed that Ott established the National League mark near the end of last season. Hornsby drove in 1582 runs in 23 years in the major leagues, but 29 of them came during the five years he was with the St. Louis Browns of the American circuit.

Ott started the 1942 season with a record of 1555, two above Hornsby's National League mark.

Babe Ruth holds the American League record of 2197 runs batted in and the major league standard of 2209, having chalked up his last 12 during a short term with the Boston Braves in 1935.

Plea to Throw Foul Balls Back Causes Confusion

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 5.—"If you want to help the boys in service camps," droned Wrigley Field Announcer Pat Pieper before today's Cubs-Dodgers game, "throw any foul balls hit into the stands back on the field."

But it was Ladies Day.

The first foul went into the upper deck. A lass gave it a toss—right into the lower deck boxes where it struck a fan on the back of the neck.

Pat hurried to the microphone. "Please," he cried, "hand any fouls hit into the stands to the nearest usher."

Claude Rippy Wins Mid-Atlantic Title

Ray Swearingen Defeated, 3 and 2, in Finals Of Championship; F. Butler Senior Winner

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Claude Rippy, the 30-year-old clothing salesman who came here from North Carolina a decade ago with one of the finest golf games for an amateur in District annals, won the thirty-eighth renewal of the Middle Atlantic Championship yesterday at Manor Country Club.

Rippy's victim in the title round was the surprise finalist and Columbia Club Champion, Ray Swearingen, whose chipping and putting skill deserted him on the back nine as he tired fast and he lost on the sixteenth green, 3 and 2.

Frank G. Butler, the 57-year-old host club member with the peculiar circular motion with his club as he addresses the ball, won the second annual Senior Championship play for the William Wade Hinshaw trophy when he upset the Burning Tree favorite, Walter R. Tuckerman, 2 and 1.

Butler had par in for a 77 when the match ended on the seventeenth green and he was protecting what once was a 3-up lead. Tuckerman, the finest amateur in town some 25 years ago, spotted his opponent 3 years but was still the favorite until he ran into one of Butler's best games.

Different Roads to Finals

Rippy and Swearingen reached the finals by varying methods. The new champion broke Spencer Overton's heart with three dead stymies on the first nine as he turned 4 up and went on to win, 5 and 3. Swearingen, down all the way, won the seventeenth and eighteenth holes with pars to beat Kenwood's champion, Joe Wilson, as the latter three-putted the last green, being short with his first and short with his second.

Rippy, the two-time Chevy Chase Invitation champion and National Public Links finalist in 1936, was playing in this tournament for the first time and for 12 holes he had a real battle on his hands from his senior opponent. Swearingen holed two long putts in the early going, an 18-footer for a birdie on the second hole to go 1 up and a 42-footer for a par and a win on the sixth to get even. Rippy had won the third with a par and fourth with a birdie, after a fine approach shot which stymied Swearingen from 10 feet.

Swearingen, who came to Washington in 1932 from Indiana where he won several minor tournaments, went 1 up for the first and only time on the seventh hole when Rippy hooked into the trees but they turned all even and each posted 36s as The Ripper won the ninth with a par 5 after both were in the trees off the tee.

Tricky Putts Drop

On the tenth, eleventh and twelfth holes, Swearingen earned halves after it looked as though he could have lost each hole. He was punching those tricky short putts into the cup, ones he could easily have missed, but on the thirteenth his streak ran out. The beaten finalist three-putted the long par four and lost the hole as Rippy hit the green in regulation figures for the sixth straight hole.

Rippy breathed a sigh of relief on the fourteenth hole. He finally won the par four with a five after it looked as though he might lose it. Swearingen had things his way for a minute but the hit a miserable approach shot and then three-putted to lose with a 6 and it was all over after they halved the fifteenth and Rippy won the sixteenth with a par as Swearingen was trapped from the tee.

The new champion was three over par when the match ended. He was better than that when he beat Dick Melvin in the first round and was under par most of the way when he won over Eddie Johnston in the second. Against Overton he was only a shot away from perfect figures and in the qualifying was only a shot off the medal pace with a

Reds Capture 2 Games From Braves, 3-2, 6-1

By International News Service

Ray Starr chalked up his seventh victory of the season in the nightcap, holding the Braves to eight scattered blows. The Reds collected all their runs in the opening inning.

Most Alert Takes Charles Town Feature by Six Lengths

Victor Grabs Early Lead, Pays $7.40

By Walter Haight

Post Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 5.—Most Alert, owned by Mrs. J. B. Bond of Baltimore, Md., made a runaway of the feature race here today, winning by six lengths in handy fashion. Jockey Butsie Hernandez had the mount on the 3-year-old son of Canter and had little more to do than guide him home. The Flamingo Farm's Market Place was second in a photo finish for that position with A. V. Galotta's Port Melody third.

Most Alert was well played at a $7.40 mutuel and stepped the mile and a sixteenth in 1:55 2-5 over a heavy, drying-out track.

Hernandez took Most Alert into contention early and rated the 3-year-old when Gay Sir went to the front under hustling tactics in the opening quarter. Most Alert took command leaving the clubhouse turn and drew out gradually. In the stretch Hernandez looked back and then took the gelding in hand approaching the finish. Market Place and Port Melody came around on the outside to improve their positions and the former outlasted his rival in the final drive.

Mrs. M. E. (Lizz) Whitney sent a promising 2-year-old postward in the first race and the son of High Cloud got up in the final stride to win by a nose from Feeling High, owned by John Bosley, jr. Every Port was third in this test of 4½ furlongs. High Degree paid $8.60.

A fortunate few in the crowd collected a $206.60 mutuel in the daily double. Jockey Willie Dufford paved the way for the big payoff in the second race. He was aboard W. S. Sprague's Placement and brought the son of Challenger II to the front on the backstretch. Placement opened a gap in the closing stages and won by four lengths from Adelmar, with Roving Eye third. This winner paid $24.20.

Apprentice R. Fitzgerald rode his first winner on any track on Mrs. J. H. Ellicott's War Smoke in the second half of the "double," the third race. War Smoke ran up on the outside to take the lead early and was not seriously threatened thereafter. After Orchids was second and Crusand was third in the field of eight.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH DEGREE, $8.60, $5.00, $5.00; FEELING HIGH, $4.40, $3.40; EVERY PORT, $8.40.

HIGH DEGREE was rushed on the inside early, came to outside of FEELING HIGH in stretch and withstood long drive to be up in concluding stride. FEELING HIGH forced to front early, was strongly handled and tired badly approaching end. EVERY PORT lost much ground and showed a good effort. SUG had no excuses.

SECOND RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:02. Off at 3:02½. Winner, E. S. Sprague's br. g. (5) by Challenger II—Shell Hole. Trained by J. Bosley, Jr. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:23⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PLACEMENT, $24.20, $10.00, $6.20; ADHELMAR, $9.20, $3.80; ROVING EYE, $3.40.

PLACEMENT was well placed from start, came to outside to wear down ROVING EYE on backstretch and drew out to win easily. ADELMAR was in thick of forward contention from start and showed good effort. ROVING EYE was hustled to take lead early and weakened gradually. FIRST FLING was not a serious factor.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:27. Off at 3:27½. Winner, Mrs. J. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR SMOKE, $27.20, $9.20, $5.40; AFTER ORCHIDS, $7.40, $3.80; CRUSAND, $3.60.

WAR SMOKE took command on outside in run to first turn, drew out and was kept to drive to end. AFTER ORCHIDS was pinched back going into first turn, came between horses to reach contention and was best of others. CRUSAND was off slowly and closed ground. WAUGH SCOUT weakened in closing stages.

Daily Double, PLACEMENT and WAR SMOKE, Paid $206.60

FOURTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:56½. Off at 3:57. Winner, Mrs. C. B. Inscoe's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOCTOR'S NURSE, $19.20, $6.60, $3.80; TENSLEEP, $4.20, $3.00; STRUMMING, $4.20.

DOCTOR'S NURSE was within striking distance from start, came to inside to improve position, responded when placed to punishment and was up in final stride. TENSLEEP was steadied early, took command on backstretch and drew out, but was unable to resist winner. STRUMMING closed ground from a sluggish beginning. PETE'S GOLD closed with good energy.

FIFTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:22½. Off at 4:23. Winner, H. Ladley's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH PLAID, $10.00, $5.60, $4.20; LAST BET, $15.20, $7.00; ROLLS ROUGH, $4.20.

HIGH PLAID, allowed to settle into stride, worked way to contention leaving backstretch and responded to pressure to win going away. LAST BET was in thick of forward contention from start, disposed of ROLLS ROUGH to take command but could not resist winner. ROLLS ROUGH was hard ridden to hold lead and faltered. GLITTER GIRL tired after having early speed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $700; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:51. Off at 4:52. Winner, A. L. Friedman's ch. g. 160 Additional Griffith Fete Tickets Sold

Some 160 additional tickets to the Clark C. Griffith testimonial luncheon were disposed of yesterday at a meeting of the Washington, D. C., Citizens Committee in the offices of Honorable Edward M. Curran, general chairman, at the District Court Building.

J. Leighton (Count) Cornell, chairman of the ticket committee, last night announced that over 400 tickets had been sold and reserved thus far, and predicted that as many as 600 persons will be on hand to salute Griffith Wednesday afternoon at the Mayflower Hotel at 12:30 o'clock.

"I've never seen more friendly interest than is being evidenced in the Griffith luncheon," Cornell said. "We originally set our goal at the persons, but increasing demand has forced us to revise this estimate."

Both Wash B. Williams and Tom O'Donnell reserved their second tables to the Griffith Testimonial yesterday while others joining the honor roll included Melvin Sharpe, R. H. B. Lyon, Lewis Hofenmaier, John Payette, Motion Picture Owners, Denny Hughes, Michael J. Uline, Fred Buchholz, and the Board of Trade (two tables).

Tickets also were purchased by Gen. Albert Cox, Ross H. Hunter, Dr. Bernard A. Baer, Joe Turner, Harry O. Hine, James A. Sullivan and Herbert A. Guggenheim.

A final meeting of Curran's committee is set for the District Court Building Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Tickets are on sale at Navy Relief Headquarters, 1721 I Street Northwest; both Sports Centers and at O'Donnell's Sea Food Grill, both establishments, and are priced at $2.50 each. Reservations may be made through Executive 0040.

Cameo Upset By H. & J., 4-3, In League Play

Its second straight triumph after losing five games to start the season went to H. & J. Construction nine yesterday when it upset Cameo Furniture, 4 to 3, in a Post-Industrial League game on the Ellipse.

The winners bunched their hits for a pair of runs in both the third and sixth innings, the winning single being credited to Third Baseman Baughn in the sixth. Cameo scored runs in the seventh and eighth, but its rally failed in the latter frame when Schwab struck out and Adair grounded out with men on first and second.

H. & J. was outhit by its rival, 8 to 7. Warren Erhardt, former Eastern High hurler, went the route for the victors, facing Ottie Printz. The latter struck out 12 to Erhardt's eight.

Ewell Will Try For World Mark In 200-Yard Sprint

By the Associated Press

Rochester, N. Y., June 5.—Norwood (Barney) Ewell, great Negro runner and Penn State captain, will try for a world's record at 200 yards here tomorrow in an exhibition feature of the nineteenth annual track and field championship meet of Section V, New York State Public High School Athletic Association.

Ewell, who arrived here last night with Charles D. (Chick) Werner, Penn State mentor, will attempt to lower Charley Paddock's time of 19 seconds flat for the seldom-raced distance. The course will be measured and A. A. U. timers will clock Ewell to protect a possible new record.

Florida Coach Blasts 'Recruiting'

Lieb continued, "and it has been bad enough recruiting the few athletes when certain schools had only about six. But now, when they learn there are 200 officers to be stationed at each of these training schools and that they are all recruiting would-be fliers for their athletic program, the colleges are going to be hard hit."

Lieb said Florida had installed a physical fitness program for all students, with the coaching staff turning to with hammer and saw to build an Army-tough obstacle course.

"When they get through with our program," he predicted, "the Army routine may be soft for them."

At Washington, Lieut. Comdr. Tom Hamilton, directing the Navy's preflight training program, had this to say.

"The Navy's physical training course for aviation cadets at preflight schools is of 3 months' duration. It is designed solely to train fighting fliers, not coddle athletes.

"The Navy will have each and every cadet participate in sports competition only as necessary to prepare him for the physical rigors of modern warfare. Navy pilots reaching combat zones must continue to be the best in the world."

'Lefty' James Named Cornell Baseball Coach

Ithaca, N. Y., June 5 (INS).—Appointment of George K. (Lefty) James as Cornell University varsity baseball coach was announced today by Robert J. Kane, acting director of athletics. Kane also announced appointment of Robert S. Grant as 150-pound football coach.

Mike Turnesa Leading 'Hale' Golf With 71

Bloomfield, N. J., June 5.—Mike Turnesa, of the Elmsford, N. Y., golfing Turnesas, today shot a 67 over the par 71 Forest Hills Field Club course to lead on the first 18 holes of the 54-hole qualifying sectional open for Hale America Open. The big Open will be held at Chicago June 18-21.

Mike, an older brother of Corpl. Jim Turnesa who was runner-up to Sam Snead in the P. G. A. championship last week, went out in 33 and home in 34 to be in front for the 36 holes slated tomorrow. A field of 49 started, seeking 14 Open places in the Hale America.

Next to Mike Turnesa after today's round came Sam Byrd with a 68, followed by Joe Kirkwood, Willie Goggin and Billy Dear with 69's, Dear being the leading amateur.

Other leading scorers included Jimmy Thomson, and Johnny Kinder 70's, Joe Turnesa, Lou Barbaro and Al Brosch, 71's, and Harold Sanderson, Jack Mitchell and Johnny Bass, 72's.

Jimmy Hines was the only one among the name golfers entered who seemed to have shot himself out of it. He took a 76.

Corpl. Turnesa, who doesn't have to qualify for the Hale America, played an exhibition and shot a 75.

No Local Golfers Entered In Hale America Play

The District was without representation as the second sectional qualifying rounds of the Hale America tournament got underway yesterday at Bloomfield, N. J.

As expected the four District eligibles, Pros George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood; Lewis Worsham, Burning Tree; Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase, and Amateur Billy Houghton, Prince Georges, did not make the trip, as they had no intentions from the very beginning.

Amateur George Borsari, Kenwood, the first alternate, would have taken a crack at the 54-hole New Jersey tests to qualify a part of the field for the Chicago finals, but he had no company.

Louis Need Not Defend Suit Until After War

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 5.—Circuit Judge John Prystalski ruled today that Corpl. Joe Louis Barrow, world champion heavyweight boxer now stationed at Camp Upton, N. Y., need not defend an attorney's suit for $10,500 fees until after the war.

The ruling was based upon a recently enacted Federal law providing relief from legal controversies for men in the armed forces. Attorney Bindley Cyrus brought the suit to collect payment for handling a divorce action brought against Barrow by his wife, Mrs. Marva Trotter Barrow a year ago. The suit was dropped after the couple was reconciled.

Nats' Newsom Defeats Tigers, 3-2

home all the way from first base with a long two-bagger to center field. Pofahl was the third out of the inning when he tried to stretch his hit into a triple.

A bunt by McCosky opening the sixth inning started a run for the Tigers. Newsom fanned York (he did that three times during the night), but Harris singled to right and Higgins scored McCosky with a double over Case's head. Newsom escaped further damage in the inning because Harris was out at home trying to follow McCosky across the plate on Higgins' blow. A fast relay by Repass into Early's mitt cut off a second Detroit run.

Newsom apparently was breezing to a 2-1 victory in the ninth when Higgins, first up, grounded out, but the big pitcher couldn't find the plate and walked Bloodworth and Tebbetts in succession. He appeared to have matters in hand when he got rid of Pinch Hitter Charley Gehringer on a pop up, but Don Ross, another pinch hitteer, banged Newsom's first pitch for a looping single to center that got the tying run home. Newsom kept the score tied by luring Cramer into a pop-up.

And then in the tenth, patience paid off for the Nats.

Newsom struck out three times during the ball game but he had a proud moment in the eighth when he laid down a bunt and beat it out for one of the Nats' seven hits . . . Three more of the Nats' nine strikeouts were provided by Bobby Estalella . . . York was Newsom's pet victim . . . In the tenth, Newsom fanned him for the third time during the game . . . Bob Repass was the only man on either club to collect more than one hit during the night . . . Newsom walked the third man to face him in each of the first three innings, but regained his control thereafter and didn't pass another man until the ninth.

Louis, Nicholson Fight Exhibition

Fort Hamilton, N. Y., June 5 (AP).—Corpl. Joe Louis battered his veteran sparring partner, George Nicholson, for three rounds tonight in an exhibition before 3000 soldiers and 4000 paying customers.

In the eight-round main event, Vinnie Rossano, 150, Brooklyn, outpointed Irwin (Kap) Kaplan, 153, Los Angeles. Kaplan was floored twice in the first round.

Camp Lee Plays Bulls

Camp Lee, Va., June 5 (AP).—The Camp Lee baseball team will meet the Durham Bulls of the Piedmont League at Durham on Sunday, June 14, Lieut. Jack Springer, camp athletic officer, announced today.

Naiman Nine Scores, 6 to 3, Over Printers

A seven-hit pitching chore by Max Hunt, Maryland University hurler, paced Naiman Photo nine to its fifth Departmental League triumph of the season yesterday, a 6-3 margin over Union Printers on the Ellipse.

The Photographers collected nine safeties off Mosedale and were never seriously threatened, even by Scott's two-run homer in the ninth.

Nip Sub Sunk at Sydney

Associated Press RADIOPHOTO

JAP ATTACK THAT FAILED—One of the four Jap submarines sunk at Sidney in an unsuccessful attack on the Australian harbor Sunday as it was partly raised out of the water Thursday. The undersea raider was a small type. However, it was larger than the two-man subs used by the Nips at Pearl Harbor. (Photo radioed yesterday from Melbourne)

Plenty of Beds Available to Service Men

Confidence that sufficient beds are now provided in the Washington area for service men spending the night here was expressed yesterday by W. A. Corley, chairman of the Service Men's Lodging Committee, who announced that 500 free beds will be permanently available from now on at the recreation and leave area located at the south end of Memorial Bridge.

At the same time Conrad Van Hyning, chairman of the civilian mobilization division of the District Defense Council, reported that the Welfare and Recreational Association had made swimming arrangements to accommodate 1850 white and 1500 Negro service men daily at six pools in the city. The service men, he said, will be admitted free.

Buses Till 2 A. M.

Service men may reach the recreation area on Arlington-Fairfax buses which leave Tenth Street Northwest, just south of E Street, every half hour until 2 a. m. The buses, Corley said, are marked "Special" and the fare is 10 cents.

After 2 a. m., the taxi fare to the recreation area from Zone 1, Corley reported, is 60 cents for two men, 70 cents for three, 80 cents for four and 90 cents for five.

The increased number of beds at the recreation area makes a total of approximately 1000 available there and in the downtown area.

Four Swimming Pools

Van Hyning's announcement on free swimming carried the names of these four pools, their locations and the number of white service men they will admit free daily:

East Potomac Park pool, East Potomac Park, 350; Anacostia pool, Anacostia, 350; Takoma pool, Fourth and Van Buren Streets Northwest, 350, and McKinley pool, Lincoln Road and R Street Northeast, 750.

The Banneker pool, Howard Place and Georgia Avenue Northwest, will admit 750 Negro service men daily, and a like number will be handled at the Francis pool, Twenty-sixth and N Ctreets Northwest.

Recreation Services Inc., of the defense council yesterday issued this weekend bulletin for today and tomorrow, covering events which have been arranged for service men here:

Today, 8 a. m. to midnight, USO Club, 606 E Street Northwest, will be open with games, refreshments and floor show in evening; 8 p. m. to midnight, dance, N. C. C. S. C., 918 Tenth Street Northwest; 6:30 p. m., Jewish Community Center, Sixteenth and Q Streets Northwest, ballroom dance class; 8:30 p. m., same place, service men's dance; 9:00 p. m. to midnight, Y. W. C. A., music hour; 6 p. m., National Catholic Community Service Club, dinner for 200 men, sponsored by Sholl's Cafeterias, first come, first served.

Holy Names Graduates Record Class Tomorrow

Thirty-seven seniors of the Academy of the Holy Names, Silver Springs, Md., the largest graduating class in the history of the school, will receive diplomas at the third annual commencement exercises tomorrow at 4 p. m. in St. Gabriel's Catholic Church.

The Most Rev. J. M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore and Washington, will present the diplomas and invest the graduates with medals, assisted by the Rev. Thomas A. Calnan, pastor of St. Michael's Church in Silver Spring.

Hymns will be sung by the academy choral group composed of juniors, sophomore and freshmen. Noreen Cummings and Patricia Rommal, both 8-year-old and second year students of St. Gabriel's and St. Michael's schools, respectively, will lead the graduating class to the sanctuary. Members of the lower classes will participate in the procession.

Oden Grilled Anew as Trial Nears Close

As the trial for his life drew closer to its end, Guy E. Oden, accused of shooting to death his 15-year-old sweetheart last July 19, took the witness stand in District Court yesterday and faced four hours of vigorous cross-examination by Assistant United States Attorney Bernard Margolius.

Most of the questioning was concerned with attempts by the prosecution to contrast Odens statements yesterday with those he made from the stand during the first trial last year and in early stages of the reirial.

Confronted with verbatim recitals of stenographic records of earlier testimony and asked whether he remembered making such statements, the former theater usher countered in most cases with the contention that he "must have been dazed." To other similar questions he said it was possible he had testified differently on two different occasions.

Oden said he did not remember what happened when the gun went off following a scuffle which, he said, occurred in the kitchen of 114 C Street Southwest between himself and Mrs. Elizabeth DeVous, a neighbor. He admitted, however, that the gun, which he said had been lying nearby, was in his hand just before "everything went blank." He ran from the house, according to his testimony, with the gun still in his hand.

5 Evicted Girl Roomers Win $3500 in Suit

Five girls, who brought a suit last year against their former landlords for unlawful eviction from a rooming house, were awarded $700 each in District Court yesterday.

The young Government workers—Eileen Chanitz, Betty Skibbins, Evelyn Feldman, Frances Morewitz and Alice Tolchinsky—had asked "actual and punitive damages" against Maurice and Estelle Gersing, operators of the rooming house, 1761 Hobart Street Northwest.

They claimed they were asked to leave about midnight November 17 and that they suffered embarrassment and humiliation in seeking other accommodations at that hour.

M. Philip Katz, representing the plaintiffs, said the girls had already gone to bed when they were forced to leave, because, as the Gersings claimed, they were making noise and playing a radio.

The defendants contended the five girls had caused property damage amounting to $100 and that they had failed to supply references from places they had lived before.

Nature Devotees' Weekend Trips Are Announced

The weekend program for nature devotees, announced yesterday by the Office of National Capital Parks, includes a 5-mile hike starting today from Sixteenth and Holly Streets Northwest at 3 p. m., ending near Kensington, Md.; a bird walk starting at the end of the Chevy Chase Lake bus line at 7:30 a. m. tomorrow; and a geological tour at 3 p. m. tomorrow starting at the Harvard Street entrance to the Zoo.

Today and tomorrow barge trips will leave Thirty-sixth and M Streets Northwest at 11 a. m. and, eastbound, at 3 p. m. from the canal area near Stop 39 on the Cabin John carline.

$25,000 Bail Set In Assault Case

Andrew J. Jackson, 19-year-old Negro of 1125 Third Street Northwest, was held for grand jury action under $25,000 bond yesterday on a charge of assault with intent to rape.

Hiss alleged victim, a 28-year-old Navy Department employe, testified Jackson approached her early Tuesday morning, took out a knife and grappled with her. She finally fought him off, she said, but he fled with her pocketbook.

Confederate Memorial Rite Tomorrow

Gen. Benjamin W. Hefferron, 93, will be the lone representative of the District area's four surviving soldiers of the South at Confederate Memorial Day exercises tomorrow in the Amphitheater at Arlington Cemetery.

General Hefferron, junior member of the quartet, will give a brief address to Camp 171 of the United Confederate Veterans and Sons and Daughters of the Confederacy.

His three comrades, detained at their respective homes by either the infirmities of age or by gas rationing, will be able to hear the celebration over the Columbia Broadcasting System at 5 p. m.

Among those who cannot attend are 99-year-old Eli W. Dance, who was drafted into the Union Army during the War between the States but slipped through the lines to join the Confederate Army. Now living with his daughter at Towson, Md., Dance is still actively interested in Camp 171. He marched in the Memorial Day parade there last Saturday.

The other two are Cornelius B. Hite, 98, of 2915 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, and George Nauzey, of Channing Place Northeast.

Senator Burnet R. Maybank (Democrat) of South Carolina, will deliver a speech as one of the highlights of the program, which opens at the Confederate Monument with singing and laying of wreaths on Confederate graves at 4 p. m. and transfers to the amphitheater at 4:30. The ceremony will end with taps and a wreath-laying on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The United States Marine Band will play.

U. D. C. Will Observe Davis' 134th Birthday

Members of the District Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will commemorate the 134th anniversary of Jefferson Davis' birth with exercises at 2 p. m. today in Statuary Hall, United States Capitol, where Representative Joseph R. Bryson (Democrat), of South Carolina, will deliver the major address.

Others taking part will be Mrs. Harold W. Robbins, division president, who will preside; Mrs. Bernadette Hillyard, president of Jefferson Davis Chapter, who will place a wreath on the Confederate leader's statue; Mrs. Elizabeth Fred, District historian, and Miss Home McAllister, who will give readings. Gen. Benjamin Hefferron, Commander of Camp 171, United Confederate Veterans, and one of the District's two surviving Confederate soldiers, is expected to attend. The exercises are open to the public.

D. C. Groups to Be Inducted Into Army Today at Fort Myer

Price Ceiling Put On 'War Bicycles'

The "war model" bicycle, only type that the War Production Board will allow manufactured and which can only be purchased with Government permission, yesterday was placed under a retail price ceiling, effective immediately.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson ordered $32.50 as the highest retail price that a dealer may charge in the Eastern zone; $33.50 in the Middle zone, and $34.50 in the Western zone. He said the price differentials were made to compensate for freight variations.

How Are Installment Accounts Regulated Now

This explanation, which applies only to deferred payment accounts, is made so patrons of Washington stores may understand how their accounts are affected by the Credit Regulations of the Federal Reserve Board.

Question 1: What is meant by an installment account?

Answer: Any account paid in partial monthly or weekly payments. Such accounts may be called Budget Accounts, Deferred Accounts, Letter of Credit, Coupon Accounts or by many other names. The same rules apply to all such accounts and to all merchants.

Question 2: What kind of merchandise is sold on an installment account?

Answer: Installment accounts include the sale of furniture and household needs of every description, also wearing apparel for men, women and children, jewelry, silverware, practically all merchandise.

Question 3: Over how many months may payments be distributed?

Answer: Most stores will restrict wearing apparel and other soft goods to three or four months. Household appliances and furniture may be paid over a maximum term of twelve months.

Question 4: What amount of down payment is required?

Answer: 20% down is required on furniture, ice refrigerators, bed springs, mattresses and pianos. One-third down on all other goods. Monthly payments must be at least $5.00.

Question 5: Is there any special time when installment accounts must be paid?

Answer: No specified date of payment is prescribed by the regulations. Pay your account when you agreed to pay it when the purchase was made.

Retail Sales Dip 3% Here During Week

Washington department store sales in the week ended May 30 were 3 per cent below the corresponding period last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. The volume was 21 per cent below the preceding week this year, but this was chiefly due to the occurrence of the Memorial Day holiday.

However, for the four weeks ended May 30 local store sales were 13 per cent heavier than in the like 1941 period.

Store sales in the whole reserve district were 7 per cent less in the latest week than last year while the four-week volume was 9 per cent increased over last year.

The week's decreases in sales in Washington was somewhat less than the national decline, according to figures of the Federal Reserve board. Nationally department store sales in the week ended May 30 were 11 per cent less than last year.

Every Federal Reserve district showed a sales drop for the week as follows: Boston off 6 per cent, New York 8 per cent, Philadelphia 9 per cent, Cleveland 16 per cent, Atlanta 11 per cent, Chicago 17 per cent, St. Louis 13 per cent, Kansas City 11 per cent, Dallas 12 per cent and San Francisco 5 per cent.

Meanwhile Dun & Bradstreet reported the recent lag in retail activity was even more pronounced this week with the slowdown attributed to bad weather conditions and indications shoppers had been "hardened" to reports of shortages.

"Retail buying," the weekly review said, "was frequently described as apathetic in contrast to the record pace of turn-over earlier in the spring.

"Stores' own buying remained cautious, despite Government assurance against immediate or drastic action in respect to inventory controls. The ban on production which became effective in a number of civilian industries during the week resulted in a moderate letdown in the level of industrial production."

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Oriental Assets at New High

Shareholders of Oriental Building Association, meeting yesterday for the annual election of officers and directors, were told by Secretary Ralph A. Xander that the past year was one of the best ever recorded by the 81-year-old home loan group. Mr. Xander said resources climbed to a new high of $7,230,000 with a considerable increase in the number of new share accounts opened.

Chapin B. Bauman was chosen again as president with John George Kolb as treasurer and Mr. Xander, secretary.

Directors, all of whom were re-elected, were Carl C. Haneke, Thomas B. Young, C. Albert Parker, Frederick W. Schneider, John J. Kolb, Louis C. Dismer, Dr. Frederick H. Morhart, William H. Grass, and the officers.

Oriental Building, the oldest association in Washington, is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, the United States Savings and Loan League and the District of Columbia Building and Loan League.

Local Office Opened

Devoe & Raynolds Co., Inc., paint and brush manufacturers, announced yesterday that the company has opened an office in Washington to service various phases of the company's contribution to the war effort. The Washington office at 718 Jackson Place, will be under the management of Richard Smith.

Round-up on America Since Pearl Harbor

U. S. in Six Months Has Overtaken Axis War Production

By James Marlow and William Pinkerton

THE JAPANESE attack on Pearl Harbor last December 7, six months ago Sunday, was the signal that set the orchestra of 134 million Americans to playing a single symphony.

The theme was: Fight, work, produce and sacrifice.

There have been some shrill and sour notes in the meantime, but the music is getting louder, surprising even Americans themselves with what they could do—and do without—when they all had to do it together.

All that had ever happened in the industrial history of the Nation was only tuning up for this performance, for they knew their instruments—riveting machines, welding torches, carpenters' hammers—and the overtones were plain:

The spin of factory wheels, the roar of laden trains, the swoosh of ships sliding down the ways, 27 of them in one memorable day in May.

Americans within those six months had sent their armies, their navies and their airmen into other continents and foreign seas while at home they turned out the tools of war at a rate that did not seem possible only last January 6, when President Roosevelt told a cheering Congress the program would be:

Sixty thousand planes, 45,000 tanks, 20,000 antiaircraft guns and eight million tons of shipping in 1942; and 125,000 planes, 60,000 tanks, 35,000 antiaircraft guns and 10 million tons of shipping (later revised to 15 million) in 1943.

BEFORE those six months were over their officials told Americans they and their Allies had overtaken the Axis rate of production and from now on the task would be to forge ahead of them.

As an example of the progress made, Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War, said this week that the Army now had all the weapons it could send abroad under present shipping conditions and enough to arm every soldier in the United States.

But officials warned that forging ahead of the Axis from now on involved a tremendous effort dwarfing everything that had happened so far.

The Axis had built up great stores of armaments and that head-start must be overtaken before the Allies actually reach equal terms with them in the instruments of war.

This year the Nation will have produced more for war than it did for civilian use in 1932, but thousands of plants, still unused for war work, must be turned to that purpose.

The railroads must cut down their civilian loads to give right of way to freight cars; ships must be turned out fast enough to transport war materials to the fighting fronts and to overcome loss by U-boat sinkings.

And metals, in which shortages already have appeared to serious degree, must be conserved and allocated to war use, for the Government has declared that anyone wasting critical materials would be considered "treasonable."

FOR Americans the six months brought these things as the channels through which they poured their torrential energy:

Rationing, price ceilings on most of what they bought and the rents they paid, heavy taxes a certainty, a dwindling stock of the things that had made American living standards the world's best, a man-power commission in position to tell workmen what jobs they could fill and, for the first time in history, voluntary relinquishing by organized labor of the right to strike.

Their sacrifices will be greater in the months ahead.

There were disasters, too: The little businesses that had to close for lack of materials and for lack of ability to convert to war work.

Dominating American living were the names of two Federal agencies, the War Production Board and the Office of Price Administration.

The WPB, headed by Donald M. Nelson and created January 16 as successor to the Office of Production Management, turned on full steam for war production, ordering industry after industry to cease civilian manufacturing and turn to planes, tanks and guns, and the parts they needed.

(The job of conversion was not an overnight task, for the way had been prepared by OPM, and America was stepping up war output before Pearl Harbor.)

LEON HENDERSON, OPA boss, became a household word when, in his effort to keep the war effort from being ruined by inflation, he clamped price ceilings on more than 30,000 things Americans paid for from baby nipples to the cost of funerals, and put a limit on rents in 342 areas in every State except Idaho and North Dakota.

Henderson, in imposing the ceilings, followed the wishes of President Roosevelt, who late in April offered this seven-point program to keep from rising by 80 or 90 per cent the cost of living which he said already had risen 15 per cent since the war started in Europe in 1939:

To keep profits at a low and reasonable rate through heavier corporate and individual taxes, stabilize wages and farm prices, put more billions into war bonds, ration all essential commodities which are scarce, discourage installment buying and encourage paying off mortgages and debts.

Except for the price ceilings, only these two steps so far have been taken toward attainment of the President's program:

Installment buying has been curbed and the war bond drive, which began in May, 1940, has been stepped up, with the Treasury hoping the sales would be at least one billion dollars in July and monthly thereafter.

ONE of the great shocks to Americans who may have thought this was a land of inexhaustible supplies was the sudden Government order last December 11 "freezing"—and later rationing—new automobile tires because the rubber supply from the East Indies was cut off.

It was the first of similar shocks that shook Americans loose from any lingering complacency, for other rationing followed: Sugar, automobiles, typewriters, bicycles and even gasoline in the 17 Eastern Seaboard States.

Rubber has become a major problem, with no new tires likely for civilians for years, and the whole synthetic rubber program still not clear, although plans have been made to produce a million tons of it late in 1944.

These were the changes, too:

There were hard days at the war's start when men were forced into idleness as their plants converted to war production, but now the employment figures are up again and the unemployment column growing smaller. There will be more work as other plants convert.

At the time of the Japanese attack seven million workers were in war jobs, and now the figure is above nine million, with another ten million expected to go into the war factories by the end of the year.

The total labor force is about 55 million, but three million of them still are unemployed. Their ranks will diminish, and even women by the thousands, perhaps millions, will have to step into jobs, along with men too old to fight or do heavy work.

An estimated 65,000 of the Nation's 184,000 manufacturing establishments are doing war work now; the shipyards need men; thousands of men are learning new skills and will form a vast trained labor pool at the war's end.

THE farms need men, too, an estimated 2 million of them at the peak of the harvest, which is expected to be one of the most plentiful in years.

Commenting on the job still confronting the Nation, the National Industrial Conference Board, Inc., says:

"The conversion problem that lies ahead in the remaining months of this year is as great, if not greater, than the changes introduced in industry from Pearl Harbor to date."

U. S. Seen Able To Carry Debt Of 200 Billion

By the Associated Press

Roanoke, Va., June 5.—"A debt of 200 billion dollars—yes, even more—can be supported by this powerful democracy," Dr. E. A. Kincaid, consulting economist of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, declared here today.

But, warned Dr. Kincaid, former professor at the University of Virginia at the opening session of the forty-ninth annual convention of the Virginia Bankers' Association at Hotel Roanoke, carrying of a debt of this figure will be possible only by maintaining a national income of around 120 billion dollars a year.

All Classes Must Share

"There will be no danger to the debt," he also pointed out, "if every class has a stake in that debt." None would gain by repudiation of the debt if all had a part in it.

The great inflations of Germany and France, following the first World War, and which, he said, "broke the spirit of the great middle classes" of those two countries, came about because the great bulk of the bonds in those countries had been purchased by the upper middle classes."

To have paid interest on those bonds—held by the upper middle classes—would have taken a large portion of the earnings of the laboring classes and farmers, and since these were the most numerous voters in the countries, this would not be done. Neither, because of the influence of the middle classes, could the debts be repudiated.

Ruined Middle Classes

The only answer was inflation, and by inflation the two countries paid off their obligations, but ruined the middle classes and led to the chaos that subsequently engulfed Europe.

War Savings Bonds in this country must not be concentrated in the hands of the upper and upper middle classes if the national debt is to be safe, Kincaid declared.

Officers were nominated at the morning session, and since only one man was named for each post, nomination was tantamount to election. They are G. C. McCall of Norton, president; W. A. Roper of Richmond, first vice president, and Charles T. O'Neill of Charlottesville, second vice president.

Officers Named For New War Damage Corp.

By the Associated Press

The Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones announced today that he would be chairman and W. L. Clayton would be president of the billion-dollar War Damage Corporation now preparing to insure all property in the United States from enemy attack.

Frank T. Christiansen will be executive vice president; A. T. Hobson, secretary; H. A. Mulligan, treasurer, and Claude E. Hamilton, jr., general counsel.

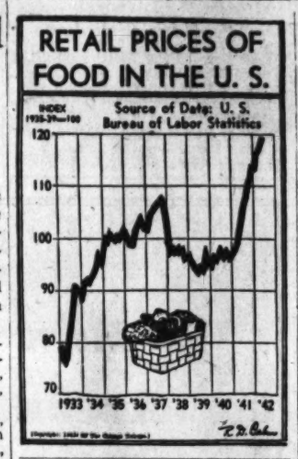
Directors will be Jones, Clayton, Mulligan and C. B. Henderson, Sam Husbands, Charles T. Fisher, jr., Howard J. Klossner, Frederic A. Delano and George E. Allen.

No statement was made about the compensation, but nearly all of them already get their salaries as officers of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or the Commerce Department. Delano is the chairman of the National Resources Planning Board.

First insurance policies of the new corporation will take effect July 1. Applications for insurance may be made with virtually all agents of private fire insurance companies. These agents, designated as official representatives of the Government insurance agency, will have application blanks about June 20.

Sears' Sales Off 19.4% in Month

Chicago, June 5 (AP).—Sears Roebuck & Co., mail order and retail merchandise firm, today reported sales of $68,355,774 for May, a decline of 19.4 per cent from $84,839,135 in May, 1941. For the first four months of the company's fiscal year sales totaled $282,365,839, an increase of 2 per cent over $276,930,379 in the same 1941 months.



Steel Industry Plans Advertising Drive for Scrap

New York, June 5 (AP).—The steel industry announced today it planned to spend $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 in an advertising campaign beginning next month in an effort to step up collections of scrap iron and steel, vital to production of the tremendous tonnages required by war.

Robert W. Wolcott, president of the Ulkens Steel Co. and chairman of the scrap committee of the American Iron and Steel Institute, said the campaign also would urge salvage of rubber, nonferrous metals, cooking fat, tin cans and such materials.

The plan was called one of the first industry-sponsored campaigns in behalf of a Government program.

The advertising, the sponsors said, will run in newspapers, both dailies and weeklies, in magazines, and other media. It was expected to start early in July. McCann-Erickson, Inc., was chosen to handle the campaign.

Produce More Powdered Milk, Dairies Told

By the Associated Press

Because of the tight shipping situation, the Agriculture Department asked the dairy industry yesterday to reduce the production of evaporated milk and increase the output of powdered milk for lend-lease shipments to Great Britain and Russia.

Powdered milk requires only about a fourth as much shipping space as evaporated milk.

The department emphasized, however, that total milk production should be increased to the highest level possible to assure ample supplies of dairy products for the war effort.

Curtailment in evaporated milk production should be made, the department said, in areas where other processing and marketing outlets are available.

The department said the current rate of evaporated milk production was between 90 million and 100 million cases a year. It said that due to the necessity of shifting to powdered milk, not more than 70 million cases would be needed to supply domestic civilian, military and lend-lease requirements and provide a large reserve.

Due to the shipping situation, lend-lease requirements for evaporated milk have declined from 22 million cases to seven million a year. The department said that its general price support program for dairy products would not be affected by this requested shift in production. In other words, the department will continue to buy evaporated milk at designated prices until production can be adjusted to requirements.

The current rate of American cheese production was said to be fully adequate.

Butter Futures Slump

Chicago, June 5 (AP).—Butter futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange declined to new low ground for the year today as traders reacted bearishly to news that the Agriculture Department had asked the dairy industry to reduce the production of evaporated milk and increase the output of powdered milk.

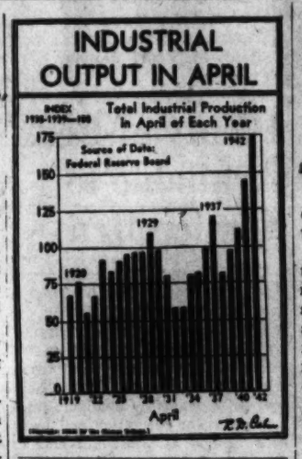
November contracts closed at 37.60 cents a pound, off 30 points, and June at 36.40 cents, off 10 points. Wholesale butter was unchanged to ¼ cent a pound off, with the tone barely steady.

Two-Way Load Order Protested by Florida

Tallahassee, Fla., June 5 (AP).—Nathan Mayo, Florida commissioner of agriculture, today protested that a Federal tire conservation order requiring farm products truckers to carry loads both ways "will paralyze the production of foodstuffs in this State."

In a letter to Joseph B. Eastman, director of defense transportation, he urged modification of the rule to exempt truckers hauling farm products exclusively. Farmers themselves already are exempt.

"There is hardly any doubt as to the willingness of these operators to secure and transport return loads," he said, "but to make that a condition precedent to hauling produce to market will not only create a ... ble hardship upon the trucker but will paralyze the production of foodstuffs in this State."



Change in Sales And Advertising Methods Forecast

New York, June 5 (AP).—The newspaper will assume a position of growing importance in meeting a needed change in advertising and selling methods to fit them into a world vastly altered by war time, William H. Howard, executive vice president of R. H. Macy & Co., said at a convention of National Federation of Sales Executives.

The need is for sharper, briefer messages in advertising to get the sales story across to people who now have less time than ever before for details.

Howard said changes in daily living would effect a wide variety of articles and predicted that a year from now people would be doing without things "that we never dreamed we would have to do without."

The local daily newspaper will assume growing importance in the scheme of things, Howard said, because people will confine their purchases to their own towns. He predicted greater reading of newspapers and magazines and more interest in home decoration.

New York Cotton

New York, June 5 (AP).—Cotton futures settled in their recent rut of successive declines today, closing 75 to 80 cents a bale lower. Yesterday's session brought forth the only gains registered in seven consecutive days of trading.

Renewal of New Orleans pressure and hedging acted as a depressant but the downturn might have been greater had there not been buying by mills and trade interests.

Steel, Aircraft and Chemical Issues in Fore As Stocks Rally for Third Successive Day

New York, June 5.—The stock market made it three in a row on the recovery side today with so-called war infants, recently in the drooping division, attracting the principal buying attention.

Profit taking cropped up after a fairly good start but the selective climb was resumed around midday on fair-sizezd volume when steels, aircrafts, chemicals and assorted specialties stepped to the fore. Gains for selected issues ranged from fractions to 2 points generally. A few isolated stocks were up 3 to 6 or so on restricted dealings.

Recently buoyant industrials that were bid up on peace talk took a rest at moderately lower levels. motors, mail orders and oils were among the laggards. Coppers, rails and utilities trailed along with modest plus signs. Top marks for favorites were reduced in the majority of cases at the close.

That war stocks may still have a long road to travel was indicated to many in Wall Street by the bombing of Dutch Harbor. The repulse of the Japanese at Midway was helpful. Hopes for victory in the end also were further stimulated by persistent aerial blasts at the Germans and other United Nations military shifts.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished with a net gain of .3 of a point at 35.7. This put the composite up 1.1 points since the rally got under way Wednesday. Activity was interspersed with sluggish periods but transfers of 486,170 shares compared with 524,300 yesterday, which were the largest since May 21.

A Nation-wide flattening out of retails sales impeded shares of merchandising companies. Steel and aircrafts were aided by the idea these had been oversold on unfounded fears they would suffer a sharp earnings drop if the war should be concluded in the near future.

Among stocks managing to edge into new high ground for the year were Zenith Radio, Goodyear and Goodrich. Well in front were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Sperry, American Telephone, Anaconda, Dow Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, N. Y. Shipbuilding, Philip Morris and J. C. Penney.

In the Curb, Pittsburgh Plate Glass rose 4¾ and advances of fractions to around 2 were shown for American Cyanamid, Humble Oil, Sherwin Williams and American Gas. Turnover here aggregated 86,634 shares versus 64,050 the day before.

Banks Lend 35 Million To Steel Spring Firm

New York, June 5 (AP).—The Standard Steel Spring Co. has arranged with a large banking group, including the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh and the National Bank of Detroit, for a loan of 35 million dollars under regulations of the Federal Reserve System governing borrowing by firms engaged in war work.

The loan will mature on November 30, 1942, and bear 3 per cent interest on funds actually used and a commitment fee of ½ of 1 per cent on funds unused.

The company planned to take up today 14 million dollars of the amount available. A total of 13 other banks and 48 additional institutions constituted the loaning group.

JOE PALOOKA — Instructions — BY HAM FISHER

HOW DID YOU GET HER TO LIE DOWN AND LOOK SO DROWSY? YOU SAVED ME, MY HORSE AND PROBABLY OUR SKINS.
I GAVE HER A HYPODERMIC. SHE WILL HAVE A GOOD SLEEP. SHE'LL BE BETTER THAN EVER.
WE HAD A VEESEET FROM SOME CHARMING PEOPLE.
I WAS WATCHIN' THRU THE CRACK. WE WAS SURE SWEATIN'-- M'SIEU LE FARGE SAY EEF DANGER APPROACH 'E WEEL MAKE NOISE LIKE 'ORSE. YOU COMPREMEND?
YES INDEED, DOCTOR. GEE, I HATE T'HAVE YOU OR THE LE FARGES IN DANGER TOO.
THE CAUSE EES WORTH THE DANGER, MON AMI. I WEEL COME AGAIN SOON. FOLLOW MY INSTRUCTIONS AN' YOUR COMPANION WEEL RECOVER.
THANK K'YOU, SIR--THANK K'YOU.

WINNIE WINKLE — Reprise — BY BRANNER

WELL, THE FOLKS ARE HOME FROM THEIR ANNUAL FLING AT DAD'S LODGE BALL!!
I'VE DISCHARGED THE NURSES THAT DAN HIRED TO MIND THE TWINS - AND I HAD A WONDERFUL TIME AT THE DANCE---
--THAT IS, I HAD A GRAND TIME -- UNTIL MY BROTHER-IN-LAW, WARREN, SHOWED UP!!
SOMEHOW I CAN'T BRING MYSELF TO LIKE WARREN -- OH, HE WAS SO NICE--ALMOST TOO, TOO NICE!!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — Round-up — BY MONTE BARRETT and RUSSELL ROSS

BUT HE WHIRLED TOO FAST—AND I WAS TAKING COVER—HOW BADLY ARE YOU HURT?
HE WHIRLED AND FIRED WHEN I SHOUTED MY WARNING—
HE WAS BETWEEN US AND HE GOT HIT—DID YOU ROUND UP THE REST OF THE SPY RING?
WE FOUND THEM ALL RIGHT ON SCHEDULE, EXCEPT DOCTOR Z—SOMEHOW HE ESCAPED—
OH NO, HE DIDN'T—THAT'S DOCTOR Z! HE WAS WAITING HERE FOR ME—SUSPECTED ME OF BEING AN F.B.I. AGENT—IT WAS LUCKY YOU CAME WHEN YOU DID!
THEN WE'VE PUT AN END TO THE MOST DANGEROUS SPY RING IN THE COUNTRY—THANKS TO YOU!

SUPERMAN — The Score Is Even! — BY JERRY SIEGEL and JOE SHUSTER

THE WAY YOU MOP UP ON THEM SINGLEHANDED...!
OWW-WCH!!
IT SEEMS THAT SOMEONE IS DETERMINED TO PREVENT YOU FROM SEEING MISS CANBY AGAIN. ARE YOU GOING TO LET HIM FRIGHTEN YOU OFF?
SINCE YOU PUT IT THAT WAY—I WON'T!
(IT LOOKS AS THOUGH I'VE TAKEN ON A FULL-TIME ASSIGNMENT. BUT FROM ALL SIGNS, IT OUGHT TO BE INTERESTING!)

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

THANKS A LOT, MR. MORLEY, FOR SPARING HER LIFE!
I DID IT ONLY BECAUSE I DIDN'T WANT THAT EGG TO BE AN ORPHAN!
BUT I WANT YOU TO RETURN THE $11,000 I LEFT IN EXCHANGE FOR JOSEPHINE!
I'LL HAVE GRANDMA BRING IT RIGHT OVER!
IT SURE IS GOOD, HAVING JOSEPHINE AGAIN!
SHE DOESN'T WANT TO BE A MOTHER, I GUESS. SHE WON'T SET ON THE EGG, OD... WE BETTER FRY IT BEFORE IT GOES BAD!
LOOK, GRANDMA—A MESSAGE ON THE EGG!
We fooled him, pal! But I sure was scared!

Grin and Bear It

By Lichty

"You know Dr. Truffle who's been trying to find out what's wrong with my stomach, dear? Well, I'm bringing him home to dinner tonight."

Listen! with Glynn

"The Spirit of '42" will come from thousands of American throats Sunday afternoon when, in an unique and historic ceremony, thousands of American boys take their oath together to avenge Pearl Harbor.

Exactly six months—to the day, hour and minute—after Japanese planes shattered the Sabbath quiet on December 7 by dropping their bombs on Pearl Harbor, high-ranking officers of the Navy, Marines and Coast Guard will administer by radio the oath of allegiance to the thousands of volunteers who are gathered throughout the country for the occasion.

Focal point of the Nation-wide ceremony will be the Sail Loft in the Washington Navy Yard where the C. B. S radio program, "The Spirit of '42" is originating. There Vice Admiral Russell R. Waesche, Coast Guard Commandant; Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, Chief of Naval Personnel; and Brig. Gen. Robert L. Denig, of the office of the Commandant, Marine Corps, will swear in recruits from the Washington area, while, throughout the country, and its territorial possessions, their radios tuned in to the program, recruiting officers will duplicate the ceremony with the recruits from their districts.

The ceremony will take place exactly at 2:25 p. m., E. W. T., in the latter part of the program from the Sail Loft, the Navy Band will be heard playing music appropriate to the special occasion and the noted songstress, Kate Smith, will sing request selections from Service Men.

Bridge

"During the course of a family bridge game this hand was dealt and caused much comment because of its unusual nature," writes J. N. McL. concerning the hand shown in today's box.

Today's Hand

Neither Side Vulnerable
NORTH DEALER

	♠ None ♡ A K 9 6 3 ◇ K J 4 3 ♣ A 10 7 5
"Mr." ♠ Q 6 3 ♡ J 8 7 4 ◇ A Q 9 7 ♣ Q 8	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ 9 3 ♡ Q 10 5 3 ◇ 10 8 6 5 2 ♣ 6 4
	"Mrs." ♠ A K J 10 8 7 5 4 ♡ None ◇ None ♣ K J 9 3 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Q ♣.

"North opened the bidding with a heart; West passed. My wife, who was sitting South, said, 'Gosh! This is a funny hand; I don't know what to bid.' After a moment's thought she said four spades. I passed, as did North after a little thought. I led the queen of clubs and, of course, South took twelve tricks, losing only to my guarded spade queen.

"The post-mortem then opened, and I would appreciate it if you would give me your idea of how the hand should be bid.

"As regards my club lead, I was afraid to lead a heart for fear of setting up a long suit in North, and did not wish to lead from my tenace in diamonds. The club lead seemed as harmless as any, but it wasn't."

The hand might be bid like this:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
7 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's bidding three suits tells South quite plainly he has no spades, and therefore South abandons his own suit to bid six in his partner's. North can go to seven on the strength of South's forcing takeout and jump in clubs. He can be sure that South has either the two missing aces or a void in diamonds.

At seven clubs declarer's only worry is catching the trump queen, and the void suits indicate an even split of trumps in the adverse hands. The side suit, spades, can be established by one ruff in the dummy.

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

WHAT'LL I DO? IF JOEY ELOPES WITH BABS, JOHN WILL MAKE GOOD HIS THREAT AND GIVE MANDOLA A PUBLIC BEATING!
I'M AFRAID YOU'RE RIGHT, LEONA! AND THE PUBLICITY WILL FINISH JOHN'S POLITICAL CAREER!
IF THERE WERE ONLY SOME WAY OF SHOWING BABS WHAT KIND OF A ROTTER HER IDOL REALLY IS...!
I HAVE AN IDEA... IT WOULD BE DANGEROUS, BUT I'M WILLING TO RISK IT...! AUNT MARY, JOEY MANDOLA HAS NEVER SEEN ME, HAS HE?

MR. AND MRS. — A Break in the Gloom — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL and ELLISON HOOVER

DO YOU REALIZE THAT TOMORROW IS TILLIE TOOTEM'S WEDDING ANNIVERSARY?
NO! HOW LONG HAS SHE BEEN MARRIED?
I'M NOT SURE. I'M JUST TRYING TO THINK
EXPECT TO GET ANY HELP FROM THE DICTIONARY?
I'M LOOKING TO SEE WHAT THE DIFFERENT ANNIVERSARIES ARE S'POSE IT MEANS ANOTHER PRESENT. HOPE IT'S PAPER
IT'S ALL RIGHT. I JUST REMEMBERED THE DATE. IT WON'T BE HER TWENTIETH TILL NEXT YEAR SWELL!
FOR ONCE WE GET A BREAK. NO PRESENT TILL THEN

DIXIE DUGAN — Terrific! — BY J. P. McEVOY and H. J. STRIEBEL

MICKEY!! HOW ARE YOU?? WHEN'RE YOU COMING BACK? HOW'S THE DOCTOR?? ANYTHING WRONG?
WHOA, DEARIE! NOT SO FAST—
UNCLE BEVVY IS DOING FINE! IN FACT HE'S ABLE TO BE UP AND AROUND AND SPENDS HIS TIME LOOKING OVER THE BEAUTIES OF NATURE IN PITTINGER'S SANITORIUM—
COME-COME! YOU CAN LICK THIS THING BY SMILING! THERE—THAT'S BETTER!
I DON'T KNOW WHAT I'D DO WITHOUT YOUR VISITS, DOCTOR
I'M GONNA STAY WITH AUNTIE UNTIL HE GETS HIS DIPLOMA—IN OTHER WORDS, GETS OUT OF THE HOSPITAL—BUT I'M SO GLAD YOU CALLED, DIXIE
FUNNY THING—I WAS JUST GOING TO CALL YOU! I'VE BUMPED INTO A PERFECTLY SWELL SET-UP FOR YOU THIS SUMMER! IT'S TERRIFIC!
YEH!??

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Groping — BY FRANK V. MARTINEK

IT'S A FALSE ALARM. THERE'S NOTHING AT ALL DOWN IN THE WATER.
BUT WE SAW RIPPLES...AND I HEARD A PLOP—
OR DID I? THERE WERE OTHER NOISES JUST THEN
SURE. THAT SECTION-HAND GASOLINE CAR WAS GOING BY
BY THE WAY, THAT RAILROAD TRACK PASSES ABOUT TWO HUNDRED FEET FROM THE RESERVOIR, DOESN'T IT.
SO WHAT? NOTHING PROBABLY. I'VE JUST COME UP WITH A VAGUE IDEA

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

MASTER! YOU HAVE CAUGHT THE FOREIGN SPIES?
YES-SS! BUT YOUR BUNGLING COST DEARLY! THEY HAD ALREADY SENT THEIR INFORMATION HOME!
MY UNWORTHY FACE IS RED WITH SHAME!
SO? PERHAPS THIS WILL HELP YOU REMEMBER YOUR STUPIDITY!
WHY, YOU—!
FLY EAST, KING, AND REMEMBER, I'M HOLDING THIS NITRO BOMB AND HAVE THE ONLY PARACHUTE!
CF-MP
I'LL HAVE THEM LAND ME ON THE COAST—THEN I'LL KILL THEM BOTH!
THIS TIME NITRO'S SLIPPED UP! THAT ONE PARACHUTE IS GOING TO SAVE THREE LIVES!
